A Visit to Glenwood.

Last Saturday evening the Plattsmouth city council visited our neighboring city across the Big Muddy to view its electric light plant. In speaking of their visit the Glenwood Tribune says: "Mayor Henry Gering and the eight members of the Plattsmouth city council were in Glenwood a few hours Saturday evening, coming over on No. 2 and returning on No. 13. "They first visited the Institution and spent a very profitable hour looking over the buildings there and observing the work done. They then came down town and after taking supper at the Commercial house proceeded to look about town. "Among other places of interest visited was the new Carnegie library. Although this building was not completed it was far enough along to give them a good idea of what it would look like. They were much pleased with the structure. "They were the guests of Manager J. O. Bortenlanger of the electric light plant, and he is figuring with them on installing a plant to light the streets of Plattsmouth. They were very favorably impressed with the general appearance of Glenwood."
