CANDIDATES IN A MUDDLE

Nebraska City Without a Candidate for Office on Account of Not Filing in Due Time

A special from Nebraska City says: "The city finds itself in a pretty pickle by reason of both city conventions being called too late to enable the officers to file their nominations with the city clerk in time to comply with the law. Both parties, democratic and republican, held their conventions on the same day and each nominated their candidates for councilmen and members of the board of education. The democrats filed their nominations on March 20 with the city clerk and the republicans filed theirs on March 23.

"Elmer Ingram wanted to run for councilman in the First ward by petition and prepared the necessary document and filed it with the city clerk, and the contesting of this petition brought out the fact that none of the party nominations had been made and filed in time to comply with the law. The law requires that all nominations be filed with the city clerk fifteen days prior to the day of election and neither party had done this. So it leaves the city without any candidates for office at the election called properly for next Tuesday.

"The petition of Elmer Ingram has been declared illegal because he failed to comply with the law. The city clerk has appealed to the city attorney as to what to do and the latter is of the opinion that the clerk will have to prepare a blank ballot and on election day each voter can go to the polls and vote for whom he pleases by writing his name on the ballot and voting it the same as he would a printed ballot.

"This is the first time this has ever occurred in this city and it will be a lesson to the party leaders who had the matter in charge and in the future all city conventions will be called earlier and the nominations filed promptly. If a blank ballot is prepared there is liable to be a host of candidates about the polls on election day soliciting votes so as to enable them to get their names on the ticket a sufficient number of times to be elected and serve the people for two years."

SUGGUMBS TO INJURIES

Andy Bane, Prominent Farmer Residing Across the River, Passed Away.

SKULL FRACTURED BY FALLING TREE

Accident Occurred About Three Weeks Ago—Operation Performed Monday to Remove Portion of Skull.

Andy Bane, a well known farmer residing just across the river in Mills county, Ia., who sustained a badly fractured skull while felling trees, about three weeks ago, has succumbed to his injuries, the end coming about 10 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning.

At the time of the accident, which occurred while the deceased man was engaged with a force of men cutting trees near his place, a mile from the ferry, Bane was struck on the head and rendered unconscious for several hours. After being conveyed home and having his injuries dressed by Dr. Bacon of Pacific Junction, the patient recovered somewhat, but was not able to be about the house. The skull had sustained a bad fracture, and he had lost considerable blood, but still the physician in attendance entertained hopes of the patient's recovery. A few days ago Mr. Bane undertook to walk to a neighbor's, and the exertion on the hot day, brought on a reaction. It was found necessary to summon Dr. Bacon again to dress the wound, which had been reopened, and after consultation with Drs. T. P. and J. S. Livingston of this city, it was decided that an operation to remove the piece of broken skull should be performed. The operation, which was made by the above named doctors, was performed Monday night.

The deceased man was about sixty years of age, and besides a wife, leaves six children to mourn his demise. For many years he has resided in this vicinity and is well known in Cass county, where he was a frequent visitor.

The funeral will likely be held from the Bethlem church, Friday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. Houk, and interment being made in the cemetery east of Henton station.

Chicken Thieves Busy Again.

It seems that chicken thieves are again applying their avocation in the suburbs of the city. Several families have been missing some of their favorite hens in the past few days. The cheekiest act yet was that of a few nights since. A family in the south part of town was keeping eight hens for the eggs. Every morning eight eggs were taken from the nests, which was all that was necessary for home use. The lady of the house went out on her usual rounds the other morning to gather in the "hen fruit," when lo, and behold, the nests were empty, and not one of the faithful hens could be seen on the premises. They had been stolen the night before. The devil will never get his own until he lends this thief in the hottest corner of hades.

McCOOK HIT BY BIG FIRE

Burlington Oil Houses Burn, and the Destruction of Town Threatened

A dispatch from McCook gives the following account of the fire which occurred there Tuesday night, March 22: "McCook had the most terrifying experience in its history this afternoon. During a windstorm the Burlington company's oil house caught fire and from it the gale communicated the flames to the city, destroying a large livery barn, two residences, several stables and other out-buildings. Only by the most heroic efforts was a large portion of the residence portion of the city saved from destruction. The losses are as follows: Burlington railroad company, on oil house, oil, numerous small buildings and five box cars, about $10,000; C. B. Gray, livery barn, $2,500, insurance $1,300; L. A. Fitch & Co., contents of livery barn, $1,000; M. J. Clark, two residences damaged, $2,000; R. J. Brandsome, barn and contents, $500, no insurance. Five valuable horses were burned in the livery barn, loss $1,500. The Nebraska telephone company sustained a loss of several hundred dollars in burned cables and poles."

Grain Trade on Missouri River.

A MARKET AND SALES DAY

Now is the Proper Time to Move in the Direction by All Interested

Since the little article in reference to this matter appeared in yesterday's issue, a number of business men have approached us on the subject. After the Journal man had given his idea as to how such things should be managed, they gave us to understand that they would give reasonable support to the enterprise.

The idea of such sales and market days is simply this: A farmer has a horse, a cow, or other articles he desires to dispose of, he has the privilege of bringing them in on those days to have them sold at public auction, where one or two auctioneers will be provided to do the selling. There is no farmer but who occasionally finds something on the farm that he does not need, and wants to dispose of and such occasion affords the opportunity to do so.

The farmers, as a general thing, demand something of this kind; they will get in the habit of coming to town on such occasions. In fact, when these days become well established, farmers from a distance will make a practice of coming here also on market and sales day. It will advertise our city abroad, and bring trade to our merchants that would not otherwise come to Plattsburgh.

This also, will be an occasion for our merchants to make special bargain sales, which is calculated to bring in many who desire to take advantage of the bargains offered in all lines of merchandise.

We are informed that one of our auctioneers is ready to take the matter up and do all in his power for the success of the enterprise, but he does not desire to take the responsibility entirely upon his own shoulders. He is satisfied that it can be made a great success, with the help of all who should be interested in the enterprise.

It is the intention to have these sales every other week during the summer and fall, and possibly into the winter. It will cost each business man but a small amount to assist in the inauguration of these events, which the Journal thinks will do more good for the business interests of Plattsburgh than anything that can be done.

Let us get together on this matter and start off with a grand, gala inauguration day.
