Sunday evening a tramp stopped at the home of Aug. Panska and asked to stay over night, which privilege was granted him and upon rising in the morning he became so abusive that Mr. Panska ordered him to leave, which he refused to do, so there was a rough house at once and Mr. Tramp was ejected, also taking with him a pair of beautiful black eyes and a good licking. That same evening, Mr. Tramp came up town and bought some nitric acid, asking the druggist not to label it, but it was labeled poison nevertheless. Now, what we would like to know is what this fellow wanted with the acid. If he was going to take it for his own use, all right, but if he expected revenge on Mr. Panska's family, the law ought to interfere, for this same tramp has made this territory regularly for the past three or four years and is known to be somewhat out of line—overcome by the heat or something like that. If he shows up again, we think he will be turned over to the sheriff.

Getting Cars Now.
The freight car shortage on the Missouri Pacific, affecting this section, has suddenly disappeared, as yesterday many of the towns on the branches represented by grain men at the meeting in this city Saturday afternoon received a supply of "empties."
A prominent grain man of Nebraska City today considered this development in the famous situation as probably significant and that the meeting of last Saturday has likely caused the railroad to "shake down" a few cars. Nevertheless, according to the statements of the same gentleman, there is no likelihood of this condition having any bearing on the course the grain dealers may pursue in the contemplated suit for damages against the Missouri Pacific.
No action leading to the institution of litigation has begun and a member of the committee appointed at the Saturday meeting to consult attorneys relative to the suit, stated today that as yet the committee has not exercised its functions.—Nebraska City Tribune.
