

Systemic Catarrh of Summer

Affects Many Organs of the Body.

"There is no better remedy in the world than Pe-ru-na for systemic catarrh."

S. B. Hartman, M. D.

A War Veteran's Experience.

General A. F. Hawley, 1336 25th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used Peruna and find it very beneficial for kidney trouble, and especially good for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."

Spring and Summer Catarrh.

There is a form of catarrh especially prevalent in spring and summer, called by Dr. Hartman systemic catarrh.

This form of catarrh especially deranges the stomach, bowels and other organs of the abdomen. The whole mucous tract lining the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys is in an inflamed condition, and these organs fail to perform their proper function.

Systemic catarrh may be or may not be accompanied by catarrh in other parts of the body. In some cases there is a hacking cough. It may be also associated with catarrh in the head.

But, in typical cases of systemic catarrh all the organs of the abdomen are in a weakened and sluggish condition.

Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Sometimes it is called dyspepsia, at other times biliousness, or the patient may be suspected of having kidney disease or appendicitis.

Systemic catarrh presents symptoms which resemble closely a great many different diseases.

Peruna has for a long time been regarded as the remedy par excellence for conditions of this kind.

The accompanying testimonials are sufficient to indicate the promptness with which Peruna relieves these symptoms and the satisfaction which people express concerning the use of Peruna.

Catarrh of Stomach.

Mr. W. R. Callahan, proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and a prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes:

"I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna.

"I had a very bad spell of sickness and could not eat anything at all.

"My head, stomach, in fact, my whole body ached, and it looked as though nothing would do me any good.

"I had almost given up. I decided to try a bottle of your Peruna and before I had taken half the bottle my appetite came to me and my head became all right."

FACTS ABOUT CULBERTSON

Commissioner Martin L. Fredrich Has Received a Reply to a Letter of Inquiry in Iowa.

"Abe Culbertson, who has made Cass county his home for twenty years is still at Plattsmouth. It is rumored that Culbertson has a son in Thomas county, Kansas, and owns land near Des Moines, Ia., where he frequently visited, but he is now in a critical condition to furnish the desired information to County Commissioner M. L. Friedrich."

The above article which has been going the rounds of the press seems to have created a false idea as to the possessions of the Abe Culbertson, who has made his home in Plattsmouth, at intervals, for the past twenty years. Mr. Culbertson was stricken by paralysis, some weeks ago, and has since been taken care of by Robert Johnson, of this city. Upon application to the board of county commissioners for assistance in his care it was found that, he had laid claim to having a farm a short distance from Des Moines besides the land in Thomas County, Kansas. Commissioner M. L. Friedrich, has written to both places and from Colby Thomas county, Kansas, there has been no reply so far.

From Valley Junction, Mr. Fredrich received a letter from L. H. DeFord of the Board of Supervisors of Polk county, Iowa, of which Des Moines is the county seat, says, in effect, that Culbertson (known there as Brickbill) lived near Valley Junction for a number of years, but had been gone from there a long time. That before he left there he had separated from his wife, who since then had married another man. The letter also stated that the property had all been dissipated, and was gone some years ago. He had no relatives in or near Valley Junction now.

Mr. Fredrich says he expects to hear from the letter he has written to Colby, Kansas, in a few days, at the most. He also states that he thinks that Mr. Culbertson has the land in Kansas, for he has some evidence that he has been getting rent on it not so very long since.

DEEDS, NOT WORDS

Plattsmouth People Have Absolute Proof of Deeds at Home.

It's not words, but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills, for kidney sufferers, have made their local reputation. Proof lies in the testimony of Plattsmouth people who have been cured to stay cured.

J. S. Hall, of 118 South Sixth street, Plattsmouth, says: "I can vouch as emphatically for the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills as I did three and one-half years ago. In 1896 I had a fall, strained my back and this brought on an kidney trouble, at least I attribute the original of the complaint to the injury. From that time on, I suffered a great deal from pain in my back. To stoop caused sharp twinges through my loins and it was most difficult at times for me to rise from a chair. I tried several remedies but found no relief. Finally I had the good fortune to learn of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at Gering & Co.'s drug store and using as directed, the pain was absolutely removed in several hours. This was in 1902 and from that time on, I have hardly ever been without a box of Doan's Kidney Pills in the house to have in case of need. When I take cold and as a result feel any pain or soreness in my back, I take a few of Doan's Kidney Pills and the troubles are quickly ended."

IN HONOR TO THE SOLDIER DEAD

Old and Young Soldiers, Wives, Daughters and Relatives and Patriotic Citizens Generally Pay Their Tribute

ADDRESS OF HON. J. B. STRODE
Parmele Theatre Well Filled With People to Listen to the Excellent Program Prepared.

"Under the Laurel, the Blue; Under the Willow, the Gray."

In memory of the fathers, brothers and dearest friends, who when the country was in danger of dissolution, gave their lives a loving sacrifice for the homes and firesides of their loved ones and of the millions yet to be, we did homage yesterday, with hearts full of thankfulness for a country, the freest and best on earth, one in which every man is the peer of the highest in the land, we endeavor to express our appreciation, of the suffering, the trials, the hardships, they endured in order to bequeath unto us the almost countless blessings of a free nature.

The beginning of the exercises were marked by the assembling of the Grand Army of the Republic, with the A. O. U. W. and the Woodmen and forming of the procession and marching to the cemetery for the decorating of the graves, which had been previously marked and were as published in Wednesday's Journal. The order was made up by the city band, the United Workman, the Modern Woodmen, school children bearing flags, the Grand Army, followed by conveyances for the Woman's Relief Corps and citizens in carriages.

At the Cemetery.

The program was the regular ritual charges and lectures of the Woman's Relief Corps, for with that true chivalrous gallantry, so characteristic to those of the Old Guard, the boys in blue accorded to the ladies the honor of conducting the ceremonies. The Modern Woodmen who have fourteen of their members sleeping at Oak Hill dispensed with their regular ritualistic ceremonies and asked their commanding officer, Judge A. J. Beeson to deliver a very glowing tribute to the ones who were sleeping beneath green sward upon which they strewed pretty flowers, and very touchingly brought into the minds of all present. The love and tenderness which prompted the joining of this order for the protection of those who would be left behind whenever there is another green mound to decorate.

The A. O. U. W. lodges conducted their decoration ceremonies as per their ritual, which is very solemn and impressive. They have a large number of their order buried in this cemetery. After the services at the cemetery, which was rushed somewhat on account of threatened rain, the order of march back to the city and several halls was reversed. This ended the morning exercises and all repaired to dinner.

At the Parmele Theatre.

The afternoon program was given at the Parmele Theatre. The house began to be comfortably filled at about 2:15 and no speakers having arrived. On the coming of the Grand Army and Relief Corps, who presented a beautiful sight, the ladies with pretty bonnets of many colored feathers and ribbons while the boys of 61-65 in their dark blue suits, over which their almost white hair shone like stars in a clear, midnight sky.

The waiting for the speakers was somewhat monotonous and entertained by the impressive patriotism and enthusiasm of the young America which is to make this another wonderful creation in another decade. The chairs upon the stage were arranged and rearranged and then changed and Col. Thrasher coming on the stage, fixed the chairs again which touched off the pent up spirits of the little gallery gods who clapped, stamped, whistled and shouted. In fact the Colonel brought down the house without knowing it.

R. B. Windham, who was the chairman, called the assemblage to order and a few well chosen words told of the program for which the people had come together, paying glowing tribute to the loyalty and patriotism of the soldier brothers dead and living; and was followed by a patriotic song. A. J. Beeson read the address of Lincoln, which was delivered at the dedication of the soldiers' monument on the battle field of Gettysburg, in a clear voice, which was heard in all parts of the house and was well received and loudly applauded. Miss Gertrude Stenner then gave a recitation which showed the love and union between the blue and the gray. There was much merit in this delivery and called forth loud and continued applause. Then came a song "The Star Spangled Banner," sang by the entire audience with spirit and enthusiasm.

The next number was an address by Mrs. L. A. Moore, who said she was a daughter of a Confederate soldier and to prove the war was over and peace was hovering over all, she said she had married and was living in the home of a Union soldier. Among other things she said that Thomas Glenn had fought in the same battle and against Gen John B. Gordon, who lectured here on the last days of the Confederacy.

Then followed Bennie Windem, who recited a poem about Boy Billy, who was a horse and made a charge after his master had been shot from off his his back, and applauded long and loud. Glenn Scott followed with a line oration on the life of Lincoln and a grand tribute to his step-mother, Sally Bush Lincoln, also saying Lincoln was a prohibitionist and said intemperance was our worst foe. Master Scott received his share of applause. Little Morris Dodd of Kansas City took the house by storm when he sang "Yankee Doodle Boy." He was encored, and after making a lightning change in dress he came a second time.

Then Chairman Windham in a few feeling and well chosen remarks, introduced the speaker of the day, Hon. J. B. Strode of Lincoln, who was greeted with a very hearty welcome.

The speaker said he came to Plattsmouth May 1, 1879, and crossed the river on a ferry boat asleep in a car and landed near where the depot now stands; he carried his invalid wife up a long flight of steps to a conveyance, where she was taken to an old comrades house, Geo. Smith, who now sleeps in the cemetery. It was necessary to call a physician, and the one called, an old comrade, who also sleeps in the city of the dead on the hills, Dr. R. R. Livingston. He came down to the postoffice and met another old comrade, the postmaster, now sleeping in the cemetery, Capt. J. W. Marshall. He had occasion to transact some business at the bank and there met an old comrade who now also sleeps in the silent city of the departed, at Lincoln, Andrew McLaughlin. Met and knew another lawyer friend, also one who wore the blue just recently joining the bivouac of the dead, Judge S. M. Chapman. He had a very dear neighbor who passed through all the trials and privations of the war but had since become a member of that division across the border, John O'Rourke. By this time the speaker was almost overcome by the recollections which came crowding down upon him.

He said he would not be like the man who had forgotten his speech for he had come prepared, and pulled it from his pocket. The address was on the turning points of the civil war, and embraced, first, the attitude of Kentucky in refusing to secede, second, defeat of union soldiers at Bull Run, third, emancipation proclamation New Year's 1863 by Lincoln, fourth, the mistake of Lee by fighting the battle of Gettysburg, the last the reelection of Lincoln to the presidency in 1864, ending by a greeting to the members of the Grand Army of the Republic in which he told them of the good feelings he entertained for them. So ended the decoration day of 1907, as celebrated in Plattsmouth.

Under False Colors.

As extensively advertised, the famous game of ball between the National Bloomers (?) and the Red Sox will not be pulled off. It transpires that in an attempt to secure an attraction Manager Frank E. Warren was deceived in thinking that he would have a game that could be recommended but later developments has proven otherwise. From where the aggregation has played it has been learned that of the nine young lady players, who constitute the team eight of them are young men.

Wishing to play fair and make good with the base ball attending public, when Manager Warren found out the facts, he immediately cancelled the date and will not appear. While the public will loudly applaud a lady artist when she assumes the role of a man they take no stock in a big gawky man masquerading as a woman.

ANOTHER OLD PIONEER GONE

E. K. Parmele Passes Away at Immanuel Hospital in Omaha Wednesday Night, May 29, 1907

Elam K. Parmele died at the Immanuel Hospital in Omaha at 7:30 P.M. Wednesday May 29, 1907. He was born at Potsdam, New York, March 24, 1833. When he was fifteen years old he removed to Knoxville, Iowa, and lived there for some seven years, running a stage between there and Oskaloosa. In 1856 he removed to Nebraska, and after living here for two years went to Oskaloosa, Iowa, to transact some business and there met Miss Emma Marks. An attachment sprang up between them and they were married.

During the Civil war they lived at Knoxville, Iowa, and afterwards returning to Nebraska, living a while here and then going to Elmwood where they resided for a number of years, returning to Plattsmouth about fifteen years ago.

He was engaged in the livery business here for a number of years. During the last few years he has not been engaged in active business.

During the last winter his health began to fail and he was confined to his bed for a month or more, and recovered so that he was able to be down town for a few days, when he was taken worse and it was decided that he would have to go to a hospital and have an operation performed before he could hope for entire recovery. Mr. Parmele disliked very much to submit to the operation, as his age and general condition of his health was against a successful termination of it. Afterwards he rallied and it was thought he would rapidly recover, and complications set in and from day to day he grew worse until there was no hope, he passing away as stated above.

The funeral will occur at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon. Rev. J. T. Baird will deliver the address, assisted by Reverends J. H. Salsbury, J. E. Houligate and A. L. Zink. Mr. Parmele was a member of the Presbyterian church, having joined during the last winter. The pall bearers that have been selected are W. H. Newell, A. W. Atwood, J. E. Douglass, M. Archer, Jos. Roberts and M. S. Briggs.

There remains of the immediate family only two now who are Mrs. Maria Hayward, formerly Mrs. Willet Pottenger, who resides in Omaha and is now in the city, and Mrs. Moses Dodge, of Sheridan, Wyoming.

Has Hard Time With Cow.

At an early hour Thursday morning, a fishing party composed of Raymond Travis, Frank Cloldt, Bruce Rosenkrans and Phil Sauter, Jr., were seen wending their way riverward. They spent several hours trying to fish and then attempted to procure dinner. Travis making a noble effort to corner an elusive cow to secure some milk, but the wily animal ran about two miles towards town madly pursued by Ray, armed with milk pail, but in vain. One member of the party fell into the river and while his clothes were drying gave a representation of Venus, clad in an old piece of sail cloth. However the boys enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

Funeral of May Godwin.

The funeral of little May Godwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Godwin was held from the home of her grandfather, E. M. Godwin yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Though it was raining and the weather inclement a large number of friends of little May and her parents assembled to pay their last respects to the one they loved. Rev. J. E. Houligate preached the sermon and the remains were interred in Oak Hill cemetery. In this sad bereavement the sympathy of their many friends are extended to them.

Commencement at Louisville.

A class of eleven students was graduated from the Louisville schools last night. This is one of the strongest classes that has ever gone from the schools. Each member appeared on the program. The class poem by Bert Jacobson, was a decided hit.

County superintendent Gamble gave a thirty minute address, in which he paid tribute to an educational spirit that gives Louisville the best school building in the county. An educational spirit that keeps at the head of the school a man who is not only second to none in the county as a principal but who is qualified to go over the state and entertain and instruct the most intelligent and refund audiences; an educational spirit that makes it possible to keep such a corps of teachers as now in her schools; an educational spirit that produces such classes as the one graduated. Prolonged applause followed the tribute paid Prof. Gaines, thus showing in what esteem he is held by the patrons of the school.

The graduates were the recipient of many useful and beautiful presents.
