Weeping Water

From the Herald.

W. A. Davis and wife and Mabel, left Thursday for Seattle, and other western points, where they will spend the summer.

After being vaccinated and disinfected, Dr. Nelson was released from quarantine at the Hobson home Saturday morning, and left for his home at Omaha.

Miss Edna Leyenberger, one of the academy teachers, left for her home at Brookline, Iowa, where she will spend the summer. We are glad to announce that Miss Leyenberger will return here to teach next year.

John W. Parish, formerly of Weeping Water, now of San Francisco, came up from Auburn Monday, bringing the body of his mother who died last Saturday night at the home of her daughter in Auburn. The Parish family resided here about sixteen years ago. The father was buried here, also one daughter. Mr. J. W. Parish is a largc coutractor in San Francisco.

It took from R. S. McCleery but $17 to settle in Judge Archer's court in Plattsmouth for carving A. Glasgo. The fine was $5 and costs $12. It will take the rest of his natural life for Mr. Glasgo to hide from the public the scars that are the result of the cutting. "Harvest King" is a rather meddlesome fellow.

He makes men glad,
He makes them mad,
To want to quarrel and fight;
Oh the Harvest King
Is a very bad thing,
It leaves you in such a plight,

Want Will Set Aside

A case was filed in the district court today in which Sarah and Matilda Petersen, ask that the will of the late John Albert Bauer be set aside and that they be allowed ono-half of the estate which at the death of Mr. Bauer was valued at $16,000, and is now estimated to be worth $20,000, and some $550 in cash. Since Mr. Bauer's death the increase in the value of the real estate has given twenty-five per cent more value to the land.

Card of Thanks

As I am to leave for my home I desire in behalf of my sisters and brother, to expess our deep appreciation to our many friends and neighbors for their kindness and many floral tributes in our continued sorrow and loss.

Most sincerely
MRS MAMIE CHRISTENSEN

Surplus Committee Meets Here

The surplus committee of the Burlington system, consisting of Jas. Stewart of Aurora, Illinois, general store inspector; H. W. Rachman, patern inspector of Aurora; A. K. Plummer, also of Aurora; J. D. Young of Havelock and H. J. Schluntz of this place, are going over the stock of supplies and will make arrangements for the distribution of the surplus stocks to the point as they are needed. Where stocks on hand are obsolete, as in case of iron and steel, they will be scrapped and used in the foundries of the company at other points or sold as junk; in the case of surplus stocks of brasses and kindred metals, they will be used as material for the construction of new work. And in case of stock of wood materials of which patterns are out of date, they will be used where they can for smaller patterns.
