

A VERY RARE TREAT

At The Parmele Theater,
Thursday Evening,
July 25

One of the strongest attractions ever presented at the Parmele Theater will be given there next Thursday evening when the first "advanced" vaudeville entertainment to be presented west of the Missouri river will be put on under the auspices of the St. Mary's Guild of St. Luke's Church. The entertainment will be in the form of a regular vaudeville bill and will be staged by Miss Ethel Dovey, who has just completed a season as the leading woman of "The District Leader" company. Under her direction several amateur performances have been given her with such smoothness as to be with difficulty distinguished from professional productions. She will be assisted by her sister, Miss Alice Dovey, late star of "The Vanderbilt Cup" company. Two "rattling good sketches will be up the bulk of the bill. One is "A Regular Fix," by James Morton and is presented with the permission of the noted vaudeville manager Mr. B. F. Keith, of Philadelphia. The other sketch is composed of the best scenes in "The District Leader" and will be unusually good. Miss Alice Dovey will sing several of the song hits of "The Vanderbilt Cup." A monologue and several songs and dances have been arranged to fill out the program which will be in two parts with the regular intermission between.

The leading man in the Morton sketch will be Mr. Walter Stopford, an English mining expert, now visiting with Mr. George Dovey. With him in the sketch will be W. A. Swearingen, George Falter, Roy McKinney, Mrs. Wm. Pickett, and Mrs. H. D. Travis. Assisting Miss Ethel Dovey in her sketch, and Miss Alice Dovey in her songs will be a chorus composed of the Misses Hally Parmele, Ellen Pollock, Catherine Windham, Elizabeth Falter, Vesta Douglas, Marie Douglas, Marie Donnelly, Madeleine Minor, Lucile Gass and Catherine Dovey. Playing opposite Miss Ethel Dovey in the selection from "The District Leader" will be Mr. Forest March of Cleveland.

The vaudeville production promises to be one of the most finished entertainments ever presented here, combining, as it does, the experience of professional stage life with the best local talent. Rehearsals for the production are now in progress. The obtaining of the sketch, "A Regular Fix" is considered quite a feat on account of the fact that the Keith forces are now warring with the Klaw & Erlanger or "trust" attractions for the vaudeville supremacy in the east. Next Thursday's entertainment was termed "advanced" as a conciliation to Klaw & Erlanger, who have adopted this slogan.

ARE FURNISHED A HOME

A Matter Which Has Hung Fire For Some Time

A case which has been hanging fire for a long time was partially disposed of today when Mrs. E. P. Quivey, Matron of the Nebraska Children's Home, took Una, Ora and Orville Stull, three illegitimate children of Lou Taylor and C. Lawrence Stull, to the home provided and authorized by the state for those who have no homes or whose home surroundings were such as would not tend to make worthy citizens of them.

This case was begun when Mrs. T. G. Allen made complaint on the 14th of December, 1905, in the county court, and where a decree was rendered on the 18th of the same month that the prayer of the complainant be granted; that a competent guardian be appointed, and recommending the Nebraska Children's Home as that guardian. This was appealed to the district court by the defendant, Lou Taylor, and a bond furnished by C. L. Stull in the sum of one thousand dollars. This appeal was not perfected in the time allowed and was remanded back to the court of origin for the execution of the judgment, which was that the children be placed in the Home at Omaha.

In the taking of the three children by Mrs. Quivey, a partial execution of the judgment has been enforced. Mrs. Quivey will return for the other child, the eldest child, Ira Stull, who could not be found today. That the conditions under which these children have lived goes without a dispute. All children have by a right inherent which should not be denied them, the opportunity of being surrounded during that time, when innocence and purity are a child's unquestioned heritage, with decent influences.

Fell in a Cellar-way

Oscar Hallstrom, who has been working for John Bauer with the cleaning-up force, had a very painful accident today and one which he will not forget for a long time. Passing from the rear of Bauer's store he went to the rear of Krumman & Range's meat market, and running up on the cellar door was looking into the window of the back room where Bine Brisse was trimming meat, and thumped on the glass. Mr. Brisse saw what danger he was in, for the floods had broken the hinges, and it was liable to fall and let him down to the steps below, called to him to get off or he would fall through. Oscar turned to run down and the door slid away from him precipitating him to the bottom of the cellar way where he lit on an old shovel, cutting his right arm and leg in a terrible manner.

He was taken to Dr. Livingston where the cuts were dressed, the wound in his arm requiring twelve stitches to close and the one on his leg, six. He has some cuts which will require Dame Nature a while to repair.

In the Federal Court

T. H. Pollock, of the Plattsmouth water company, was a passenger to Omaha this morning where he goes to look after the filing of a petition in the federal court, asking for an order compelling the city of Plattsmouth to fulfill the terms of the contract made at the time of installing the water plant here, regarding hydrant rentals, or the payment of a forfeit of $1,000 per year for the term of ten years, the time which it has refused to pay for a certain number of hydrants.

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO

Frank Adams Tells of a Toll Bridge Across Salt Creek

Frank Adams, a special representative from Washington, is here looking after the divorce court records, and is accompanied by his wife and little daughter, and are stopping at Hotel Riley. They were visited last evening by his cousin, Lee Adams and wife of San Antonio, who are on their way to their old home at Osceola, Iowa, where they have not been for thirty-one years. In 1876 he left that place and went to Texas, passing through here. He was here also six years before that, making just thirty-seven years ago. At that time he says there was only one bridge between here and Lincoln and that was across Salt Creek. This was a toll bridge and the parties who were running it had the floor of the bridge loose, and when a passenger had crossed the bridge, they would take up the planks and carry them off the bridge and pile them on the bank until the next traveler had paid his toll before they were put back.

At that time Lincoln had but 500 inhabitants, and he was present when Seward was surveyed and laid out, and at that time it had six houses. Mr. Adams says that he notices much difference in the town and country then and now. They departed for Osceola this morning where they will visit for some weeks before they return to their home in Texas.

DEATH OF CHARLES KERR

The Dread Disease, Consumption, Causes Death of A Fine Young Man

Charlie Kerr who has been very low with consumption, at the home of his mother, Mrs. B. C. Kerr, in this city, for several months, passed away this morning about eight o'clock. Charlie was born in the city of Crete, Nebraska, on March 4th, 1880, and soon after came to this place with his parents. He grew to manhood in this city, and was well beloved by all. He was a young man of very pleasing demeanor, and agreeable manners. After having finished school, he entered the shops of the railroad company here, where he worked for a number of years. His first position being messenger boy, and afterwards working in the offices of the company at the store house. Leaving here he worked for the Union Pacific, at Omaha, for two years. From there he went to Kansas City, where he worked for a short time when his health, which was very robust, failing him he came home, and afterwards went to Redlands, California, and Yuma, New Mexico, in the hopes that the change of climate might benefit his health. But the change seemed to augment, rather than benefit his ailment, which was consumption. Some months ago he returned home and has been confined to his bed at the home of his mother.

His relatives and friends hoped against hope that he would again regain his wanted health, but he grew worse from day to day, still clinging on to life. During the last few weeks he has been very low, and while the worst was expected, still the hope was cherished that he might eventually get well. In his passing away he goes to join his father, who preceded him a few years ago.

There remains of his own immediate family, his mother, one brother, Merritt, who has been here since his serious illness, and three sisters, Julia, Alice and Elizabeth, who have made their home here. They were all present at his bed side as he passed to the other world. Two aunts living in Indiana have been telegraphed for, and replies will be awaited from them before completing arrangements for the funeral.

Walt Holmes at the Flood

Among the Havelock items in the Lincoln Star of last evening we clip the following: "C. W. Holmes has just returned from Plattsmouth, having been there during the flood of Sunday morning. He says he does not care to see as much water again for a while and declares that he waded water neck deep trying to get to high ground. 'No person,' said he, 'can imagine the real condition in which the city found itself a short time after the rain when the waters rolled down the street in great volumes. Stores were flooded several feet and damage amounting to thousands of dollars was suffered by the merchants.'

J. Stenner and wife were passengers to Omaha this morning where they have some business matters to look after.

ANOTHER PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Cornelius Coffey Died Last Evening in Omaha

About eighty years ago Cornelius Coffey was born in the county Tipperary, Ireland. When still a young man he came to this country, and first landed in New York City, where he made his home for a time, later coming to Nebraska, and about the close of the civil war, settled in South Bend, this county, where he was employed as section foreman for about twelve years, coming to this city about 1876. During his residence here he worked for the Burlington railway, most of the time in the local shops.

In December 1904 his wife died at the age of 72 years, and soon after, Mr. Coffey with his daughter, Mamie, went to Texas, where they lived for a short time with their son and brother, Dan Coffey, and after their return made their home in Omaha, where on the 28th of March last Cornelius Coffey, jr., died, and was buried at this place. For the past months, Mr. Coffey has been troubled with cancer of the stomach, and has been very low for a long time, and last evening at 6 o'clock he passed away after a great amount of suffering.

No positive arrangements have been made for the funeral as yet. Daniel has been telegraphed for, and until he is heard from, no arrangements will be perfected. Mr. Coffey leaves of his own immediate family, one son, Daniel, now in Texas, and one daughter, Miss Mamie Coffey, who was with her father when he passed away. Mike Whalen was a nephew of Mr. Coffey's wife, she was a sister of his mother.

You Know How It Is Yourself

Last Saturday for a few minutes the flood gates of heaven appeared to open. It seemed as if the elements opened up and the bottom dropped out. It didn't rain long, and if it had the Herald force would be pumping water out of a basement and polishing up machinery instead of printing a paper. It required some quick work baling to keep the water out. We have called attention to the inadequacy of the tiling under the cement crossings to carry of the water, and on all four corners of the street this was noticeable. The street commissioner could remedy this some by the proper kind of work, and our dreams would be more comfortable on rainy days. —Weeping Water Herald.

CROP CONDITIONS IN THE STATE

The Outlook Not So Bad, Considering Everything

Recent heavy rains in Nebraska materially damaged wheat in stock in bottom lands over the state, but this condition is not general, and crop experts local grain and elevator men, and farmers still maintain that the crop this season will be an average one. Corn and oats were not injured by the heavy precipitation; in fact the rains were needed to prevent impairment of the crops.

The wheat harvest is nearing a close, and it is predicted that within a week practically all of the crop will have been cut. Farmers were delayed in certain sections of the state by the unseasonable weather, but the only real delay in harvesting operations was where the scarcity of farm hands was felt. Less men are available this year than last, but there are many reasons for the stringency. Wages offered are not as high as last year, considering the demand for labor but this is not the real reason for the scarcity. The men are lazy, says the Lincoln News. Practically all over the state corn cultivation is completed, and the crop "laid by" in clean condition. It has yet to go through the most trying time of the year but July thus far has given promise that the summer is not to be a dry one.

After all the reports of deficient stand, poor growth, green bug damage and other troubles that beset the oats earlier in the season, it is coming to maturity with a promise of a yield that will easily equal last year. The area is not materially different from that of last season but there doubtless would have been an increase had the difficulties encountered in getting the crop planted proved a detriment. The excellent growing weather has hastened the crop along at a rapid rate, and the prospects are certainly encouraging.

Much Water in River

The river is higher than for many a moon with prospects still of going up more. The water has backed into the mouth of the sewer so that it very nearly fills it half full. This no doubt is accountable for a part of the trouble which is experienced in the sewers taking care of the water when the severe rains come.

PLATTSMOUTH'S WOMAN'S CLUB

Will Be Restored
A gang of linemen of the Postal Telegraph company are in the city removing the wires they have had on the poles of the Plattsmouth Telephone company. The leases which they had with the telephone people expired on the thirteenth of the month. At that time the Telegraph company's office at this place was discontinued. It is understood that since that time they have executed a contract whereby they get two wires through here from the Nebraska Telephone company and the offices at this place and Nebraska City will be restored.

A Reunion of Charter Members Today in the Capital City
The members of the Woman's Club of 1895, are meeting with Mrs. S. A. Davis in Lincoln, today. Those who went up today from here were Mesdames E. D. Cummins, H. D. Travis and Miss Anna Heisel. Mrs. M. Howland and Mrs. E. H. Wescott were passengers to Lincoln, and will be present at the meeting today. This will be a memorable meeting, as it is a reunion of the Woman's Club of Plattsmouth as it existed in 1895. We judge the ladies will have a good time, and from the personal of those who go from here and the jolly hostess we should think that every one would enjoy themselves.

Mrs. S. A. Davis assisted in organizing the Plattsmouth Women's club in 1895, just in time to have it enrolled as a charter member of the State federation. For several years Mrs. B. M. Stoutenborough was president of the club, and it had a membership of fifty, but she now resides in Seattle, Wash. Mrs. S. A. Davis, Mrs. S. H. Atwood, Mrs. S. Waugh, Mrs. W. McLennan, Mrs. P. Kessler, Dr. A. Clark, Miss Margaret Howland, Miss Margaret Davis and Mrs. S. A. Traver now reside in Lincoln and Mrs. Henry Hemple in Havelock. Mrs. Davis has invited all of the former members to meet at her home to a luncheon, at high noon, which will be followed during the afternoon by reminiscences of former days of an unusual and interesting nature.
