At five o'clock last Wednesday afternoon at the residence of J. H. Johnson, in Herman, occurred the wedding of Mr. Oscar Gilbertson, of this city, to Miss Nellie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Johnson, of DeSoto township. J. H. Johnson, proprietor of the Herman drug store, is a brother of the bride and his home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. F. Grant Hamm, pastor of the Church of Christ in this city, performed the ceremony in the presence of about forty relatives and intimate friends. Miss Marie Berger, the bride's cousin from Cass county, was the maid of honor, and Miss Maude Meader was bridesmaid. Mr. Emmet Johnson, the bride's brother, was groomsmen. After the short, but impressive ceremony and congratulations were over, a bountiful wedding dinner was served. Among the many wedding gifts for the bride were just 88 quarters, being one for each subscriber of the Herman Telephone Co., which company she gave three years of most efficient service. It was a unique and graceful remembrance and will not soon be forgotten. Mr. and Mrs. Gilbertson left on the eight o'clock train for a two week's wedding trip to West Virginia, where two of Mr. Gilbertson's sisters live. The groom is one of Blair's progressive young business men and the Pilot wishes him and his abundant prosperity and every joyful day long life affords.—Blair Pilot.

THE LATE ROY OSCAR YOUNG

A Synopsis of the Address Delivered by Chancellor Aylsworth of Cotner University

Roy Oscar Young was born in Cass county, near Murray, Neb., December 28, 1881. Here he remained until the fall of 1901 when he went to Bethany, Neb., to enter Cotner university to the purpose of gaining a higher education. He would have completed his course at that institution next June. During his college course he was honored at many times by being elected to the highest places of honor the college could confer upon him. At one time he was president of the Y. M. C. A. He was taken sick September 23, 1907, and grew worse until death came at 1 o'clock October 23rd at Lincoln, Nebraska.

He was the sixth of a family of eight children, all living, with the exception of one, Charles Howard, who died fourteen years ago. He leaves a father, mother, four sisters and two brothers to mourn his loss.

He was a consecrated christian. A member of the Christian church, and had given his life as a minister of the same. To know him was to love him. The students in a body of Cotner university were dismissed and were at the train when the body left Lincoln. All the members of the senior class, of which Roy was a member, accompanied the family to Murray, where the funeral was conducted Friday at 10 a. m., by Chancellor Aylsworth, assisted by Rev. Lucas, of Murray. He was buried at the cemetery northeast of Murray.

Chancellor Aylsworth delivered a sermon on the "Elements of Comfort in the Gospel," taking his text from 1 Thess. 15-18. "Therefore comfort one another with these words."

The chancellor at the opening of his sermon commented upon the presence of trouble in the world—look upon the bright side as we may, there are dark shadows across the path of every life; disappointments, losses and death, which comes to all. The world has no adequate cure for its sorrows. The elements of comfort in the gospel are its exalted ideal of friendship. Nowhere else is this social grace more beautifully exemplified—Christ is the friend that "sticketh closer than a brother." No wonder that His followers are bound together with golden chains of sympathy and love. The manifestations of friendship for our deceased brother, shown by his classmates, the entire body of his college associates, as well as by this community is an indication of exalted christian friendship. It is a christian comfort to remember the noble lives of departed heroes. The first blinding grief of lost friends prevents the appreciation of the value of such memories. After awhile the chambers of memory grows beautiful with the radiance of the faces of departed loved ones. What a holy influence such memories exert upon the living, beckoning them to better living.

The gospel presents a solution of Divine Providence, nowhere else found. The present is but a little section of life. Its sorrows endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning. These light afflictions work out a larger good. The speaker described his ascent of an Alpine mountain, sometimes a dark overhanging cliff would shut out the light and every beautiful thing; again magnificent scenes would burst upon view only to be obscured later, but at last the summit reached, the whole snow capped range stood out to vision and a world of beauty was revealed. So of our life Christ said: "What I do thou canst not know now but thou shalt know hereafter."

Finally, the gospel presents surer and stronger assurances of the future life than are found anywhere else. Jesus did not content himself with saying "I am the resurrection and the life," but yielded to death and slept in the grave and rose victoriously, triumphing over death. About no sacred fact has so much evidence been accumulated as about the resurrection. What comfort rests in the promises of the reunion of loved ones beyond the grave. It was the practice of a great agnostic never to meet a funeral procession if possible to avoid it. A certain tribe of savages without hope of a future life, were accustomed to obliterate all marks of the graves of their departed, to drive droves of cattle over their burial places. If there is no resurrection their acts are wise. But what comfort glorifies the christian faith. Death has no sting, the grave no victory. We mark the hour of burial with flowers and songs of hope. The true remedy for sorrow is found in trusting the promises of the gospel and in forgetting our own troubles in care and labor for others.

D. Shrader has opened up the new tonorial parlor in Murray in the Otis McNurlin building on Lower Main street, and is now prepared to meet all wishing anything in his line. His family will occupy a portion of the building and moved to Murray the latter part of last week.

IS THE MAN VERY CRAZY

A Suspicious Looking Individual Languishes in the County Jail

John C. Aldrege, a man of 44 years of age, wandering into this town, having a sack which was tied into three divisions was rounded up by the police, and by the sheriff taken before the county attorney this morning and questioned as it was feared he was not right. In the examination, this man tells the following story, he says: "I was born in Vermillion county, Indiana, about 44 years ago, and lived there the most of my life. About twelve years since, I was incarcerated in the asylum for the insane at Indianapolis, where I was kept for a short time and discharged, the keeper of the place saying I was not crazy. I was placed in the institution at the behest of my father-in-law because he wished to be rid of me. During my life I have been a farm hand, and have chopped wood during the winter seasons. I came to Omaha and Council Bluffs last spring, and also worked in the counties west from there coming back this fall as I wanted to husk corn, the crop being very poor in that portion. This fall I was at A. J. Kiser's and also at Ben Horning's. I wish to get to Red Oak, where I can husk corn, and get an opportunity to feed cattle during the winter." The man lacked considerable of being a prepossessing man in appearance, wearing a suit of workman's overalls, which, while he was a very large man, was entirely too large for him, and showed signs of hard usage. He wore a full growth of shaggy beard, and carried a sack containing his property, the sack being divided into three portions. The authorities are keeping him in jail until an examination can be made of him, and a conclusion reached as to what disposition will be made of him.

Out of Sight

"Out of sight, out of mind," is an old saying which applies with special force to a sore, burn or wound that's been treated with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's out of sight, out of mind and out of existence. Piles too and chilblains disappear under its healing influence. Guaranteed by F. G. Fricke and Co., druggist, 25c.
