A CASE OF SOUR GRAPES

From the Late Candidate for County Clerk, Who Was Defeated by 1054 Majority.

Last evening a certain man living in the west end of town, looked upon the green cheeks and then into the glass a few times and when he started home his feet would not track. Arriving at his place of abode he found nothing to his taste, so he threw the dishes around the room and at his wife and daughter. After a few moments the dining-room looked like the trail where Napoleon crossed the Alps. The mother and child succeeded in getting away, and telephoned for the police. Our informant could not tell whether anything was done other than a reprimand or not.—Plattsmouth Journal, 13th.

Following the publication of such an article as the above in a Weeping Water paper, The Journal would reprint and head it "In Prohibition Weeping Water." Yet they report such news almost daily. The above likely means a drunken husband and the suffering of his family, and yet the editor cannot tell whether anything was done other than a reprimand. Plattsmouth saloon keepers cannot live without making drunken husbands and causing their families to suffer. Plattsmouth saloons dictate in a great measure the election of county officers, of the mayor of that city, of judges of courts. They have in the past, assisted in electing district judges so rotten that the scales of justice never could balance. You have to be a jolly good devil to get anything in Plattsmouth.—Weeping Water Republican.

The sequel to the above is very easily read. Bricka, the head man of the Republican, was a candidate for county clerk on the republican ticket, and was defeated by a majority of 1054. Now he vents his spleen on Plattsmouth. But what Bricka may say about this city—the people simply feel like the fellow that was kicked by the jackass—consider the source. It is simply a case of sour grapes—that's all.

Thanksgiving Day.

The annual Thanksgiving day occurs one week from today, and from present indications there will be numerous entertainments for the young, who love sport more than the old. In addition to the big turkey dinners and the numerous family gatherings, informal jollifications and home gatherings of a like nature, there will be other enterprises in Plattsmouth to hold out a hand for a little of the pleasure-seeker's surplus. In his proclamation, Governor Sheldon declares that prosperity in Nebraska has been unparalleled. Crops, industries and rural expansion, calls for public gratitude and thanksgiving. Therefore, bear in mind that it is your duty to suspend all business operations next Thursday and spend the day in a manner that suits your own taste.

Licensed to Wed

License was granted this afternoon to Chas. H. Hennings, aged 31 of Louisville and Miss Ethel Barker aged 20, of Cedar Creek, and also to Ralph W. Jones aged 21 of Omaha and Miss Theresa Furhworth age 19 of St. Paul Minn.

Nebraska Veterinary Association.

Dr. A. P. Barnes, president of the Veterinary Association, handed us a program of the second annual meeting of the association, which is to meet in the city hall at Grand Island, January 7, 8, 1908. The program is replete with speakers, who will cover the entire field of ailments of the horse, and who from their position are amply able to discuss the propositions presented in a very intelligent and instructive manner. Dr. Barnes has done much to perfect this organization, and out of the work he has done in its behalf we see an organization which will redound to the benefit of every one owning an animal of any kind.

WHY AND HOW

WHY do I always talk about a certain brand of shoes? Because I know that that particular kind is worth talking about. I am not wasting time nor breath when talking Queen Quality to any one, for I know that if my customer does not buy the first time, she will the next, as no one can resist the temptation when in need of shoes. We are selling more Queen Quality shoes than ever, and how do we do it? We take care of our customers and we do it right. We do not hurry any one, because that is not profitable to either party. We take time to explain every little detail and are pleased when a question comes up. This shoe stands the test—it always has. It is a shoe which is made of the best material which can be secured, and I have yet the first pair of Queen Quality shoes to be returned to me on account of not giving satisfaction and I know of no better advertisement. Than they are made by people who has made the shoe trade a life long study and they could not afford to put inferior stock into a shoe for a little profit and lose a reputation which it has taken them a life time to establish.
