The Lloyd-Boediker sale was well attended and the stuff sold well. The man who has a sale must remember that it pays to advertise.

Chas. S. Stone clerked at the Lloyd and Beodeker sales Monday. He reports a very large crowd, and every thing brought a fairly good price.

Col. Jenkins is the proud owner of one of the latest styles of cameras he received it as a Xmas present, somewhat late, but thankfully received. It is one of the latest and one of the best.

The old brick school house three miles southeast of Murray is being torn down and removed. It is one of the oldest school houses in the state and one of the oldest landmarks in the county. On the erection of a new building, the old building was placed up at auction last week and sold to the highest bidder, Mr. R. R. Nickels.

The Chicago Concert-Trio gave an entertainment at the Presbyterian church Tuesday night under the auspices of the Murray Lecture Association. The approbation of the audience was shown by the hearty cheering and the encores the different performers were given. The next number of the lecture course will be a lecture by Lanham, the date of which will be announced in the Journal.

The Omaha News tells of a couple coming from Chicago to Omaha to get married. The young man was 21 but the girl was only 17. They could not procure license. They went to Council Bluffs where they also failed. Later they went Plattsmouth where they were married. This seemed very peculiar until an investigation proved that they came to Plattsmouth over the Missouri Pacific Railroad which cleared the difference in age with six months to spare.

H. G. Todd, was county seat visitor Wednesday.

For sale—A number of registered shorthorn bulls. H. G. Todd, Murray.

The Chicago Concert Trio which appeared at the Presbyterian church Tuesday night, under the management of the Murray Lecture Course, gave universal satisfaction. The program rendered was superb and worthy of the highest commendation.

Henry Sans, who went to Milford, a few days ago to undergo an operation at the Dr. W. K. Loughridge hospital for appendicitis, is getting along nicely the operation being most successfully performed, and his speedy recovery is looked for. This is Dr. Loughridge's first case from Murray, and it is indeed encouraging to learn that the patient is doing so nicely under the doctors care, in which cases he has proven a most successful practitioner.

Notice to Patrons.

Postmaster A. L. Baker, desires to call attention to the practice of some patrons of rural delivery of placing loose coins in their boxes each time they desire to dispatch letters instead of supplying themselves with postage in advance of their needs.

This practice imposes undue hardship on the rural carries in removing loose coin from boxes and delays them on the service of their routes.

The Postmaster, therefore, urgently requests that patrons of rural delivery provide themselves and keep on hand a supply of stamps consistent with and in advance of their needs. It is also very desirable that rural patrons place in their mail boxes small detachable cups of wood or tin in which to place coins, when necessary, in purchasing supplies of stamps.

Little One Dies.

Notice.

As this is the first of the year, the time that all firms make an effort to collect their outstanding accounts, and in order for all adjustments to be made I hereby make the request that all parties knowing themselves indebted to me to call and settle at the earliest possible moment, as I need the money and need it now to meet my own obligations. I thank you for past favors and wish you a prosperous year of 1908.
Very respectfully yours,
JAMES LOUGHBRIDGE.

H. C. Long was looking after some business matters in Plattsmouth Monday.

Mrs. James Root of Lincoln is in Murray this week among friends and relatives at the old home.

C. M. Supernant, who came here from Plattsmouth about three weeks ago to accept the foremanship of this section, has been released and the place filled by Lewis Waggoner, of Springfield, who will move his family here in a few days. Mr. Supernant is moving back to Plattsmouth.

Have you noticed that happy smile playing over the face of our genial friend, W. H. McDaniel, for the past few days and did you ask him what it was about? If not do so now, and he will tell you it is a bouncing baby boy and looks just like his pa. Both mother and little one are doing nicely, and "Bill" still gives you full weights in groceries at the old stand.

It has seen it shadow and we are in for it. Yes, the groundhog, not the Dog Eater for it is not afraid of its shadow. Now some people think there is no such a thing as this a ferocious dog-eater but there is. Here is a description as given by bankers and barbers and harnessmakers in Murray. It is about five feet bony, two feet high and has a black bushy coat of bristly hair. Has a tail three feet long smooth and hairless except at the top end where there is a bunch of hair resembling a dusting brush. The head is long and pointed, a month set with teeth like knife and from beneath the shaggy foretop a pair of black beady eyes glint with thirsty blood lust. The legs are short and very powerful and terminate in a small hoof similar to that of a horse, but only about three inches in diameter. The dog-eater can be easily track in the snow by the shape of the hoof. In the impression of a horse's foot in the snow the imprint of the frog is easily discerned, in the imprint of a dog-eater you will find a toad instead. A slight difference but easily detected by those accustomed to hunting this animal. The curator of the Smithsonian Institute claims that while this animal is rare it is well to science as canis carnivera murrayakorum.

FOUND A NEEDLE IN HIS ARM

A Severe Pain in the Member Caused Some Uneasiness and Upon Examination the Needle Was Found

Alva Long, residing near Murray, better known as Dr. Long, has of late been having some trouble with one of his arms, complaining of a soreness in it, and at times suffering extreme pain. In order to see if he could not find something which would give relief, he went to Dr. Brendel of Murray and had an examination made of the lame member. After examining the arm for a moment, the seat of the soreness was found, and the physician felt something that appeared like a foreign substance in his arm. It felt like a bit of wire or a pin, and on making an incision, he was able to extricate the offending particle which proved to be a needle with a thread in it, just as if some one had been using it for sewing purposes. Mr. Long does not remember when he has received a wound lately, and thinks that the needle and thread has been in his arm for some time, as it was corroded and blackened by long action of the blood.

On Tuesday evening, the Colonial Saxophone quartette gave an entertainment at the M. W. A. hall here. They were accompanied by Miss Victoria Lynn, (reader.) They all made a great hit and had a full house. It finished the lecture course for this season, and the Modern Woodmen are to be congratulated and complimented on the financial success which they made of the course. For they sold enough reserved seats the first night to pay them for the full course.

Monday, February 3. Something happened that aroused our citizens to action. About noon Carl Eisenhut was seen to put a small rough box in his buggy, also a pick and shovel and start out to the cemetery. People began to enquire and found that his two months' old baby had died suddenly, apparently without cause. He had notified none of the neighbors, nor called medical aid, but made a rough box and putting the body of the dead baby into it, carted it away to be buried without ceremony or sympathy. A number of citizens called on members of the town board and demanded an investigation. So after consulting county authorities, they sent word to the sexton who sent Eisenhut back to town to await a post mortem examination, which was held by Drs. Munger and Jones Tuesday, and developed nothing more than death was due to probable criminal negligence of the father. The jury was composed of H. A. Tool, Chas. Radke, S. M. Cox, M. W. Moore, Chas. Schneider and P. Eveland. A half dozen witnesses were examined, and after summing up the evidence the jury exonerated the father. They also administered a severe reprimand to Eisenhut, in regard to the uncivilized way in which he lives and treats his family. Mr. Rawls gave this lecture which was a good one, and if Eisenhut has reason enough to conceive at least a part of the meaning of this lecture, he will certainly treat his family more decently in the future. About two years ago a five months old baby, belonging to this family died in a mysterious manner, and was carted away by the father and buried as if it had some animal. This incident is fresh in the minds of most of our citizens, and they demanded the investigation Tuesday, which was right and proper in the minds of all sane people who are acquainted with the facts in the case.

The heavy sleet first of the week broke down many telegraph poles for the C. R. I. & P. Ry., also some wires for the local telephone company.

H. R. Neitzel came in from the west Monday, Dave Thingam remaining in the west awhile.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

THE CZAR'S BEST ENEMY

Prof. Paul Milyoukov, formerly of the University of Chicago, member of the third duma for St. Petersburg, and leader of the constitutional democrats of Russia, at the solicitation of the civic forum of New York city came from his home to address it upon the topic, "Constitutional Government for Russia."

He traveled more than 5,000 miles to present, in a single address, the cause of popular government in Russia, and judging by the applause which greeted his words from the 4,000 present, the mission of the distinguished legislator was fulfilled.

Milyoukov has suffered in liberty's cause if any man has. In 1898 he was inculcating a spirit of reverence for constitutional liberty in the minds of the students of Moscow university when the police suddenly snatched him out of his chair and railroaded him to Siberia after a summary trial. He utilized his time writing "The History of Russian Culture." After two years of close confinement he was liberated, but on his return to European Russia he was deported to Bulgaria and an expatriation warrant issued against him. Denying the right of the government to drive him out of his own country, he returned and was promptly sent to prison without trial. Here he remained five months and was released on condition that he leave the country. He came to America, where he preached the doctrine of liberty. Then came the upheaval in Russia, and a general amnesty was forced upon the czar. He took advantage of this to return to Russia.

Milyoukov was a candidate for the first and second dumas, but the government on some technicality declared him ineligible. Not daunted by government hostility, he presented himself again for the third duma and was elected. He was at once chosen as the leader of the groups which stand for the constitution as granted by the czar, the groups which committed the unpardonable impertinence of taking it for granted that the czar meant what he said when he made the promise.

A Dollar spent at home reacts in its benefits with unceasing general profit. Sent out of town it's life is ended. Kept with the home merchants it is a messenger of continuous benefit. Business men should awake to the importance of keeping this dollar at home and make a bid for it by judicious advertising.
