Knights and Ladies of Security
At the meeting of the Knights and Ladies of Security last evening, a good sized crowd was present and listened to the address given by the fieldworker, J. E. Harrison, who addressed those present under the head of the "Good of the Order." Mr. Harrison called the attention of the members, as to how much more good there is in the order which we might get out of it if we would. Besides the feature of insurance which is one of the principal reasons for one holding membership, there are many ways which the order may be made beneficial to the people who are members, besides the insurance and social feature. The designers of the order had more in mind that a mere insurance company when they laid the foundation for the society which should embrace as members both the Knights and Ladies of Security.

Given Up to Die.
B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago I had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was practically given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? F. C. Fricke & Co.

Criminal Carelessness.
The recent awful tragedy in Collinswood, Ohio, wherein 167 children lost their lives in a burning school building, has sent a thrill of horror throughout the land. To every parent having children in school, doubtless came the question on reading the harrowing details, How about my own? In this school, it appears, the children had repeated fire drills, and, at the time of the catastrophe, were promptly formed in line by their teachers and started out in good order. Suddenly encountering, however, a mass of flame and smoke, they naturally fell into a panic. Even then there might have been little or no loss of life but for the fatal fact that the rear doors, through which the children tried to pass, opened inward. It is asserted—which the janitor strongly denies—that these doors were locked, but it is not likely that, lock or unlocked, it would have made any difference. The children, throwing themselves in solid mass against them, those in the rear frantically struggling and pushing those in front, precluded all possibility of getting them open.

It is the law in nearly all states, and we presume in Ohio, that doors to all public buildings shall swing outward. The author, Fred G. Even, says that, were there no such law it would seem like criminal carelessness in these days for any person or corporation to construct a public building with doors opening inward. An attempt has been made to throw the blame on the janitor for not having the doors unlocked, but it would seem that the culpable ones are the members of the school board, who allowed the doors to remain day after day as they were, knowing the danger incurred thereby.

The untimely fate of the children in the Ohio school has had at least one good effect. It has stimulated school boards all over the country to see that the building under their charge, as well as the children in their care, are made as safe against repetitions of such a tragedy as possible. Attention has been called in numerous instances inadequate exits and the remedy made, and the observance of fire drill has been insisted upon.

The thought remains, however, why does it seem always to take some great catastrophe like the burning of the Gen. Slocum pleasure steamer with its crowd of innocent children, or the holocaust of the Iroquois Theater with its six hundred victims, or this last horror, to bring about the application of those precautions for the safeguarding of human life that the most common intelligence might foresee would be necessary? There doesn't seem to be much answer to this question.

Do Not Crowd the Season.
The first warm day of spring bring with them a desire to get out and enjoy the exhilarating air and sunshine. Children that have been housed up all winter are brought out and you wonder where they all came from. The heavy winter clothing is thrown aside and many shed their flannels. Then a cold wave comes and people say that grip is epidemic. Colds at this season are even more dangerous than in mid-winter, as there is much more danger of pneumonia. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, however, and you will have nothing to fear. It always cures, and we have never known a cold to result in pneumonia when it was used. It is pleasant and safe to take. Children like it. For sale by F. G. Fricke & Co.

HARD ON MAIL ORDER HOUSES
A Young Man Sees a Golden Opportunity Follow it up, and has his Hopes Shattered
A dispatch from Mt. Carmel, Illinois, dated February 23d, states that a young man of West Salem recently purchased a pair of trousers from a mail order house. In the pocket was found the following note:
"Should this fall into the hands of a good-looking young man who desires to correspond with a young lady of sweet disposition, kindly address.
MISS CLARA CLARK, Alon, Ill.
Within a fortnight the credulous swain received the following discouraging reply:
"Sir—My wife has just received a letter from you addressed in her maiden name. Fifteen years ago, when she worked in a sweatshop, she might have written the note. She is now the mother of six children and my lawful wife. If you don't cut out writing to her there will be something doing."
The young man has decided to patronize home industries in selecting clothing and sweethearts. 'Tis ever so with those who deal with foreign industries.

NOW LANGUISHES IN MILLS COUNTY JAIL

James Walker, Formerly a Sojourner in Plattsmouth, Arrested for Beating His Wife, Also Late of This City

It will be remembered that two or three months since, one James Walker was paying his respects to Mrs. Brown, a widow lady, living with her father in this city. The father objected to his attentions, and in plain language told Walker so. They came to blows and in the melee, the old man got the worst of it. Walker was arrested and through the testimony of his present wife was acquitted. Soon afterward they proceeded to Glenwood and married and went to Emerson, Iowa, to make their home. Now we will let the Emerson Chronicle tell the rest of the story as follows:
"Deputy Sheriff Dalton came up from Glenwood Monday and took James Walker to the county jail to await his trial on the charge of assault with intent to do bodily harm, the victim of which assault was his wife.
"Two weeks ago the Chronicle made mention of the fact that during a spree Walker went home and 'mistreated' his wife, but it was not then known just how severe this mistreatment was. Since then all kinds of stories have been reported, some to the effect that Mrs. Walker was in a very bad way from the effects of the beating administered by her burly husband. It is said that she has been confined to her bed and unable to rise or turn over, and that her condition is critical.
"Last Saturday Sheriff Linville and Co. Attorney Starbuck were here and the attorney went up to see Mrs. Walker, and her condition was such that he brought the action against Walker and before Justice Eaton had him bound over under $500 bonds. At that time, Dr. Priest, believing in Walker's good intentions and that Mrs. Walker's condition would soon be all right, went on his bond.
"Monday morning, however, Dr. Priest concluded that he knew too little of Walker to risk $500 on his integrity, and he notified the sheriff that he had decided to withdraw his bond. So at noon, Deputy Dalton arrived, and there being no one else found who was willing to go bail for him, Walker was taken to the county bastile.
"Walker was married about two months ago, and came here from Plattsmouth. His wife was a widow with one little girl when she married him, and it is said the child has some money left her by her father. Walker is a big, strong fellow, and a hard worker and apparently peaceful and quiet enough when sober, and it is to be regretted that he is so unfortunate as to let liquor master him occasionally."

They All Read the Journal
F. W. Moore, of south of Kenosha, was a visitor in the city this afternoon, and while here made this office a pleasant call, renewing his subscription to the Journal, and also paying for a year in advance for his brother Chas. Moore, at Fruita, Colorado, and Mrs. Moore's father, L. W. Patterson, at Narka, Kansas.

Boarding at the Manspeaker
John McQuestion, on the 18th of January, while under the influence of liquor, became involved in a quarrel with Henry Kauffman, and being rather quarrelsome, jumped upon him and beat him in a beastly manner. McQuestion got away and has been in hiding since until apprehended the other night, when he was arrested. Judge Archer gave him fifty dollars and costs, and paid the amount in meal tickets at the Manspeaker Hotel. John now is boarding the amount out.

Argue the Treating Law
In the district court this afternoon, before Judge Good, the case of the State vs. Alvin Jones, charged with buying intoxication liquors, for other people will be argued to the court. This is the test case which is to go to the supreme court to get a final decision as to the constitutionality and validity of the anti-treating law, which has been on the statute books for the past quarter of a century and not enforced.

Return From Oklahoma
John Murray returned last evening from a week's trip to Alvo, Oklahoma, where he has been looking after his farm. Some one was on the farm and would not be dislodged by letter, and he has his cattle running on Mr. Murray's what he had to go and give the man a boost. John reports things looking fine down there, with the peaches and other fruit out in bloom, many clippings of which he brought back with him. He also has some nice specimens of wheat growing there about eight inches high.
