Taking Cyclone Pictures.

G. R. Olson, the photographer, came in yesterday morning from Fairfield, where he has been taking pictures of the terrible cyclone which occurred at that place Friday evening, in which so many people were killed. At Fairfield he says the destruction of property was the greatest, while the loss of life was the smallest, their being only one man killed, and that in the country, and no one hurt. But the cyclone swept a strip, a half block wide diagonally through the entire length of the city. He was unable to ship the plates here in time to work upon them as soon as he wished and so brought them in himself. He will return to that portion of the state this evening.

Out of Business for Three Hours.

Last Saturday Frank Stanley, the well known real estate man, sold an 80-acre farm three miles east of Cedar Creek to John Kopia, who runs a store in the west part of the city. In the trade Mr. Stanley became the possessor of the stock of goods. Now, the question was to get rid of the goods. A real estate man selling goods behind the counter, don't look well. After Frank had possession of the store just three hours he sold it back to Mr. Kopia. It don't take Frank Stanley long to get rid of property when he starts in to sell. He is a salesman from a way back, and an awful good fellow with it.

BROTHER KILLS LITTLE SISTER

While Playing Brother Throws Small Stick at the Sister.

The Glenwood Tribune tells of a very peculiar and deplorable accident which occurred seven miles northwest of that city, in which a little girl was almost instantly killed by a sharp stick thrown by her brother in play, penetrating the brain at the base of the skull. The Tribune further says: The two children had just finished their supper and had gone out on the lawn in front of the house. Other members of the family remained in the house and knew nothing of the accident until after it was over. It is said that while the two children were playing about the yard they discovered a bucket partially filled with water. Picking up the pail, Sarah playfully sprinkled some of the water on her brother's head. When he told her to stop she did not do so, but continued to splash the water until finally he picked up a stick about a foot long and jokingly threatened to strike her with it if she did not desist.

She did not do as requested and the brother, who was standing a few feet away, threw the stick at her in a manner which he thought would cause it to miss her by a wide margin. Instead, it whirled from his hand straight for the little girl's head, striking her at the back of the ear at the base of the brain. The girl fell to the ground with a scream which brought the parents running from the house. The father picked the child up and carried her to the house and summoned Dr. W. R. Wall, but the child was dead in a few moments, long before medical assistance arrived.

After a dinner fit for a king, of which the general public partook, they all returned to the school house, where a splendid program was rendered."

WEDDING BELLS STILL RINGING

The Marriage of Mr. L. W. Lorenz and Miss Ida Meisinger Solemnized This Morning.

We saw two clouds in the morn,
Tinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on
And mingled into one.

At the St. John's church this morning, as the finger of time pointed to 10 o'clock, was solemnized the wedding of two of our citizens, of whom all feel it an honor to be called friends.

The ceremony which united L. W. Lorenz and Miss Ida Meisinger was to have been at half past nine o'clock, but the heaviness of the roads prevented its consummation until a half hour later. As the clock was chiming the hour and the church organ, under the inspiring touch of the deft fingers of Miss Loretta Scotten, was pealing forth the wedding march the bridal party entered, the little ring bearer, Sophia Hild, with the two rings carried in a lily, in advance, followed by J. M. Meisinger, the father of the bride, who was leaning on his arm, and followed by the maid of honor, Miss Anna Meisinger, a sister of the bride, meeting at the altar the groom and his brother, E. A. Lorenz, the best man. Here, where they paused, Rev. Father Bradley taking the rings from the lily, gave to each of the contracting parties the one for the other, and in the English language pronounced the ceremony which joined their lives, while high mass was delivered in the German language, congratulations following.

The ceremony consisted of the double ring ceremony, while the groom placed the ring upon the finger of the bride, she likewise placed the ring upon his finger thus forming a compact enduring as time itself. The bride was beautifully costumed in betiste trimmed with Irish point lace, and carried a shower bouquet of cream bride's roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in blue chiffon over silk. The groom and groomsmen wore the conventional black. Immediately after congratulations were over the party repaired to the studio of W. S. Soper, where they had their pictures taken, and then departed for the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Meisinger, where an elegant wedding breakfast was served. The celebration of the happy event continuing during the day.

The bride is one of the most handsome young ladies that one could see in many a day travel and as good and kind as she is beautiful. She has grown from childhood to womanhood in the neighborhood west of the city, and maintains the honor and respect as well as the love of all who know her. The groom came to this place a number of years since and by a strict business integrity has secured the honor and respect of a vast number of people. By his sterling business principles he has gained a very good business where he, with his brothers, are still adding to their list of friends and satisfied patrons. The newly wedded will not take a wedding trip but will settle down to work keeping in the north part of the city, where they have a home provided and thoroughly furnished. The Journal joins with their host of friends in wishing them happiness and prosperity in their new life, and may it be replete with the graces which go to make the best in life in all its circumstances. And may their life be as free from these things which distract from its full enjoyment.

Surprise Their Friend.

Miss Alice Thornburgh, of Sioux City, a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Tartsch, who has been making her home here, was fifteen years old last Monday. Her little friends, hearing the fact set about giving her a surprise reception. Barbara, Harriet and Janet Clement and Miss Dorothy Britt organized and brought to a final success, the social affair. The little folks consisting of the four originators, and Dorothy and Mary Helps, Emma Cummins, Aletha Adams, of Lincoln, and others, met and went in a body to the home of Miss Alice, and gave her a truly good surprise. They held their pleasant afternoon session on the lawn and brought their own refreshments, having a most enjoyable time.

WHERE QUALITY COUNTS

Fremont Bridge in Danger.

For several days there has been no train to this city on the Sioux City branch, on account of the high water. A special from Fremont, under date of yesterday says: High water in the Platte early this morning took out one pier underneath the Burlington railroad company's big steel bridge south of Fremont. The pier was carried two hundred yards down stream. The two spans which it supported at one end both sagged down almost to the water line. Today the Burlington ran no trains over its line south of Fremont. It is likely it will be several days before the bridge can be put in repair. Commencing this afternoon, the Burlington's passenger trains use the Northwestern line between Fremont and Lincoln.

The June rise is the highest ever known. Had it not been for the dykes and levees above Fremont, the south part of the city undoubtedly would have been flooded as it has been many times before. The dykes held out against the heavy pressure of water. Members of the dyke board and a gang of workman remained on the dykes all day to make repairs in case there should be any breaks. This morning the water came out over the first lowland north of the wagon bridge, inundating probably twenty acres. Teams in order to reach the wagon bridge had to wade knee-deep in water. Water also came out below the Burlington bridge as far as the packing house property. It flooded pasture land, doing but little damage.

A Difficult Job.

They have been working on the well for the past two and a half months, and after the first ninety feet found solid rock. After going through a considerable thickness of which they came to clay again and passed through a layer of thirty-five feet, then rock again. In the distance now gone they have drilled through 135 feet of solid rock, with water still to get.
