Professor DeBolt Sues State Superintendent McBrien

Alleging that J. L. McBrien, state superintendent of public education, made false and damaging statements about his character and prevented him from securing work at his regular employment, that of teaching, Victor H. DeBolt has brought suit against McBrien for $5,675.

DeBolt was principal of the schools at Murdock and held a certificate from the Cass county authorities. Last May he secured the principalship of the schools at Winside, Wayne county. He asked to have his certificate transferred, but alleges that at this time McBrien issued a ruling preventing the authorities from issuing the new certificate.

Further than that he declares McBrien spread reports that he was "a loose fighter" and poker player. He alleges that he was required to take a state examination, but that McBrien in writing notified the authorities at Winside that he wouldn't grant a certificate if DeBolt passed the examination. The result was that he lost the job—World-Herald.

This is an educational enterprise which every citizen should feel glad to support. Don't fail to have a part in it this year.

Fell Off Wagon and Broke His Leg

Surden Sergenson had the misfortune to break his leg while hauling wood for Hugh Warden on Tuesday evening about six o'clock.

He and Mr. Warden were hauling wood in separate wagons and were on their way home. While coming down a hill about a half-mile south of Ernest Ahrens, he arose to put on brake and lost his balance and fell off breaking his left leg between the knee and ankle.

Mr. Warden who was some distance ahead heard his cries and went back and found him lying beside the road. He took charge of both teams and went for help.

Dr. Walker was notified and he went out and reduced the fracture. He is resting as well as can be expected, after his lay on the ground while Hugh was getting assistance.—Nehawka Register.

The services held in Lincoln Sunday were at the residence of the deceased, the services being conducted by Rev. Rogers of Plymouth Congregational church. The funeral held at Louisville was largely attended despite the fact that the weather was very bad. Owing to the inclemency of the weather Conrad Schlater, the close friend of the aged victim, was unable to be present.

He is Not Married.

The Journal is in receipt of a letter from Roy McKinney dated at Lincoln on Oct. 1st, denying that he was the Roy McKinney for whom the marriage license was secured at Omaha although he admitted there was a striking similarity in the name and age—so much so that he almost believed it himself. He assures the publisher that he is writing straight goods and states he has had no thought of getting married. He wants the rumor denied in toto which the Journal cheerfully does. The letter closes "Sincerely yours, forever single, Roy McKinney".

TERRIBLE STABBING AFFRAY

In Which One Man Loses His Life at Greenwood.

Tuesday a.m. at 8:30 a terrible stabbing affray at Greenwood took place resulting in the almost instant death of Jas. Dwyer, a well-to-do resident of the town. Dwyer and Milton Bozark also a resident of Greenwood, are reported to have had trouble that evening when rumor has it, Dwyer had threatened to shoot Bozark on sight. In the morning the men met and instantly the trouble started. Dwyer received four knife wounds in the abdomen resulting in his death within twenty minutes. Bozark was immediately placed under arrest by the Constable and placed in custody there, the intention being to bring him to this city at night.

Dwyer, the dead man, is reputed to be a well-to-do citizen of Greenwood with a large family, leaving a widow and eight children to survive him. Bozark, the man who did the killing, is in needy circumstances leaving a family of two children and a widow. It is not known what the circumstances are which led to the trouble, there being conflicting reports in circulation. It has been ascertained that the men were not drinking men and were not under the influence of liquor when the unfortunate affair took place.

From another and different source the report reaches the Journal that the wounds which caused Dwyer's death were not all in the abdomen but that one thrust penetrated the heart which was the immediate cause of death.

Visits the Plattsmouth Schools.

The cold weather has caught the school board napping and as a consequence the heating plant at the school house was not in working order and school had to be adjourned until it can be put in repair. The teachers, however, took advantage of their forced vacation and went in a body to Plattsmouth Wednesday to visit the Plattsmouth schools.—Louisville Courier.

Bryan vs. Roosevelt.

The editor of the Register makes no apologies for being an admirer of the Great Commoner, Mr. Bryan, no more than he did for his support of Mr. Roosevelt in his administration, but in either case our admiration is confined to these gentlemen. The campaign up to last week was a tame affair, until Teddy, with the "big stick," like the "Fighting Tip" from the Old Sod, "always spoiling for a ruction," put precedent and presidential dignity into cold storage, and through the medium of an open letter made an adroit attack upon the other object of our affection, Mr. Bryan, in hopes to advance the candidacy of his protegee, Mr. Taft. The campaign warmed up—and so did the editor, and he took sides too. The fight is over. Mr. Bryan accepted the challenge, and with the skill of an expert swordsman soon had Mr. Roosevelt on the defensive and making explanation for his administration, his own conduct with the Steel Trust and with the first conviction under the rebate law, our own Paul. The retirement from the field by "big stick" is announced. Mr. Roosevelt has met his second Waterloo. There are two men who are championing the people's cause, and against whom no man dare bring charges of insincerity: they are Benj. Tiltman and William J. Bryan. Against both of these Mr. Roosevelt very foolishly pitted himself—and lost. His zeal for Mr. Taft is very commendable, but his judgment is to be deplored. In trying to help kill a mule he has unintentionally badly crippled an elephant.—Nehawka Register.
