ADMITS DE REUS' OFFENSE.

Holland Says It Would Have Recalled Minister to Venezuela.

Caracas, Oct. 3.-In Holland's answer to President Castro's note, in which he gave his reasons for sending Minister de Reus his passports, the Notherlands government not only admits the offensive character of the fetter written by its minister, but goes very much further. The minister for foreign affairs of Holland says that his government, on the very moment of taking cognizance of the publication of said offensive letter, would have country this morning and was a passen- without the necessity of being asked

GRAND MISTORIS PAGGANT REFORE THE BOARD OF COUNTY

CROWNING FEATURE OF THE PHILADELPHIA PETES.

Represented—Terrible Crush Valley Dyahone District.

Phillidelphia, Oct. 10.-Like pages out of the past, torn from the great book of history and heavy laden with the memories of 225 years, the hying scenes of the first great historical pageant ever planned in this country were untolded Friday before a concourse of three-quarters of a million necule:

People fought to get a glimpse of the parade and hundreds of women were taken crushed and fainting from the congusted corners. Every ambulance in the city was brought into play and every bospital was hiled. The eight miles of grandstands, covering practically every foot on either side of the route traversed by the pageant, were fairly stormed by ticket-holders, while speculators reaped a harvest at ex-

Following the scenes of early settlement there came the period of William Tou and the Quakers. From this line on events moved rapidly and Benjamin Franklin soon followed Penn upon the scene. It was not long until the spectators found themselves gazing upon Washington, Jefferson, Lafayette, John Paul Jones, Rochambeau and others in the various scenes of their patriotic activities. Then there came a touch of real history. It was the old Liberty bell. On a carefully guarded truck and partly buried in straw, the old relic itself was shown as it was being hurried away to Allentown in a hay wagon for safe-keeping in 1777. On the heels of the departing bell came the entrance of the British troops into Philaielphia under Sir William Howe and Lord Cornwallis. The advent of the red-coated troops was an imposing feature of the spectacle. There were about 1,000 welldrilled men in the lines and all were costumed in the period of the revolu-
