

FACTORY PROPOSITION GEOS OVER

Time is Not Quite Ripe for Action. Commercial Club Organized.

From Wednesday's Daily.
The meeting held last evening at Coates' hall to hear the report of the canning factory and alfalfa mill investigation committee, was excellently attended and much enthusiasm was manifested at the prospects for getting the plant. Probably one of the largest meetings of the kind ever held in the city when numbers are considered marked this second meeting.

Hon. R. B. Windham who presided at the former meeting called this assemblage together and remarked upon the splendid turnout of the people and the good men which such an attendance meant. He also spoke at length upon the feasibility and benefits of the proposed plant and pointed out many things which he had learned since the previous meeting which strengthened his faith in the project. The report of the investigating committee was next presented. This committee which consisted of Messrs. C. E. Wescott, C. C. Parmele, Frank E. Schlater, Philip Thieroff and Julius Pitz made their report, which has been heretofore published in the Journal. It provided for the control of the funds raised for the building and equipment of the plant and the control of a major portion of the stock by the committee until the proposed bonded indebtedness of the company was wiped out. The details had been mapped out by the committee in such a manner that the result could not help but be satisfactory to those who figured upon investing their money.

W. W. Coates, however, proceeded to state some facts which showed that at the present moment the project could not be put through. It was not on account of lack of capital or on account of the unfeasibility of the project but rather because of an unsatisfactory state of affairs disclosed during his investigations in the east. While there was nothing detrimental to the personal integrity or ability of Mr. T. H. Roberts, the promoter of the affair disclosed in the investigation, there were certain peculiarities which might make trouble for the concern and this it was proposed to avoid. To this end it was suggested that further time be taken in organizing the plant and that other parties be consulted as to the active management of it. In no sense was the project dropped nor even postponed for any considerable length of time, but only until such time as the right man could be obtained to take hold of it.

Others also cited certain facts disclosed by letters which they had written which did not meet with their approval and the general opinion prevailed that hasty action at this time might prove costly and disastrous in the end. Under all these circumstances it was thought best to let the affair rest for a brief period before trying to run it through.

Mr. J. P. Falter after this matter had been disposed of brought up the matter of organization of a Commercial Club the object of which would be the upbuilding of the city and its industries.

The suggestion met with instant favor and upon a call from President Windham, who also warmly endorsed the idea, some sixty of those present rose to their feet and announced their readiness to join such an organization.

It was then moved amid great enthusiasm that the meeting resolve itself into a Commercial Club, the members of which were to devote their efforts to the uplifting of the commercial life of the city. This met with hearty response and an organization was perfected at once.

J. P. Falter was elected president of the new organization, R. B. Windham vice president, H. E. Wescott, secretary and Rea Patterson, treasurer, all by acclamation.

A committee of three on constitution and by-laws was also ordered, this committee consisting of Messrs. J. P. Falter, H. N. Dovey and J. E. Douglass. The committee will meet tonight at the office of J. P. Falter to formulate the new constitution and draft the by-laws of the organization, and also to determine when the next meeting of the club shall be held.

There was also appointed a committee of three on membership, which consists of Mr. Philip Thieroff, W. L. Pickett and J. M. Roberts. This committee will at once get busy and enroll members for the organization which bids fair to become one of the liveliest commercial bodies in the state.

On the whole the meeting last night was a great success. It shows that the citizens are alive and looking after their interests and that any subject is sure to get a hearty response from them. Business in the city is now commencing to feel the pulse of the new movement and the assured success of the canning factory and alfalfa mill means a continuance of the good times. Money in plenty is in sight for enterprises here and everyone feels confident now that at last the city will commence to show its true spirit and boom in earnest.

Will Egenberger today made a shipment of a fine Shetland pony colt to Postmaster A. A. Hyers at Lincoln. Will is becoming quite an expert in breeding Shetlands and it is expected that he will soon be able to sell these little animals in competition with the best of breeders. The one sent Mr. Hyers is a beauty.

Today was the return day for the writs in the attachment cases filed by Chas. Wilkins and Ed. Edgenberger against Frank Benfer but no service was had upon Benfer who has left the country, in consequence of which fact the cases stand adjourned for a period of forty days to secure service upon him by publication. This makes the date of hearing for January 6, 1909.

LAST OBSEQUIES FOR THE DEAD

Many Friends Attend Services Over Mrs. Geo. H. Poissal.

From Wednesday's Daily.
Yesterday afternoon occurred the funeral of the late Mrs. Jennie Knight Poissal from her late residence on South Seventh street. There was a large assemblage of friends present to pay a last tribute to this most excellent woman. The services were conducted by Rev. A. A. Randall, pastor of the Methodist church, of which Mrs. Poissal had been a devoted member for many years.

The sermon of Rev. Randall was a beautiful and touching one, he drawing many lessons from the life of the good woman who had passed into the Great Beyond. For his text he had taken Psalms 90:12, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom" and the theme of the sermon was "Man is not alone mortal but immortal." The minister found much in the life of Mrs. Poissal worthy of emulation and particularly her devoted and Christian spirit which had ever been the guiding star in her life.

For the music Mrs. H. E. Wescott sang a beautiful solo "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me" and a quartette composed of Misses Tvey and Randall and Mesdames Johnson and Wescott sang "Nearer My God to Thee," "We'll Never Say Good-bye in Heaven" and "Asleep in Jesus," all favorite hymns of the deceased.

The interment was at Oak Hill, there being a long concourse of carriages in the cortege from the residence to the grave. There were a great many floral tributes to the worthy lady, all of them of exceptional beauty. The pall bearers were all old soldiers, the husband of the deceased having been a member of that order, and their names were W. H. Freese, Thos. Fry, William Cole, Jas. H. Thrasher, T. M. Carter and T. W. Glenn.

PORTER-RYERSON-HOOBLER COMPANY

Journal Representative Visits Mammoth Concern. Fine Business Prospects.

From Wednesday's Daily.
While in Omaha last Friday a representative of the Journal staff visited this establishment and had the pleasure of going through the various departments under the guidance of our good friend, Henry R. Gering, the president of the company and general manager.

Mr. Gering, as is well known, has been a prominent business man and hustler in Plattsmouth for fifteen years and still owns a drug store and carries on the business in this city. Up to the meeting of the city council last Monday night he had been mayor of the city of Plattsmouth, to which position he had been elected nearly five years ago, and never in the history of the old town has it boasted of as efficient and faithful official and one whose interests were the special interests of the city.

As a business man Mr. Gering has but few equals and the Porter-Ryerson & Hoobler Company knowing his excellent qualities as a manager, a few weeks ago installed him as chief manager of the entire business, and it is due to him to say right here that business establishment has increased considerably over 100 per cent in business since.

The plant was established seven years ago. It occupies a large four story building on Howard street, and each floor from the basement to the top floor is occupied. Some of the most experienced chemists in the world are employed by this company, and they manufacture and put up special medicines of their manufacture, including extracts of all kinds which are used by druggists everywhere in putting up medicines. It is an enterprise of which Omaha should be proud, being one of only a few of its character in the world, and one among only two or three in the United States.

The company employs about thirty people, including several ladies. They have in the road six or seven traveling representatives, and expect to employ several others on the first of January next. While the Journal representative was in their offices a few moments in the afternoon orders were received for goods from all parts of the United States, one or two from Germany and several from China. All employed were as busy as bees.

Mr. Gering has watched the movements of this company as an investment proposition for some time, and thought it a good one. And the company having watched Mr. Gering's business career as a manager, have been insistent on him being one of the firm and taking charge of the full management. And the increase of the business since he took charge a few weeks ago fully demonstrate that they have made no mistake in the selection of Mr. Gering as president and general manager. While the Journal regrets the removal of Mr. Gering from Plattsmouth, it is proud to know that he goes up higher and higher in the scale of a business career.

Mr. Tom Murphy, of this city, is now one of the office force of the company, and is in training to take a position on the road. Mr. Murphy is a product of Plattsmouth, a young man of sterling qualities, and we look forward to the time when Tom will be one of the most useful employes of the firm.

The Journal confidently looks forward to the time when the firm of Porter-Ryerson-Hoobler company enjoy a business equal to any of its character in the whole world, and building of its own that will be an ornament to the metropolis of Nebraska.

O. L. DICKESON GOES HIGHER

Burlington Superintendent Gets a Promotion.

From Wednesday's Daily.
O. L. Dickeson, assistant superintendent of transportation of the Burlington, with headquarters at Omaha, will give up his position December 1 to accept a higher position with the Burlington. He goes to Chicago to become a member of the staff of the second vice president of the Burlington, in charge of operation.

The rise of Mr. Dickeson in the railroad world has been most remarkable. At the age of thirty-one he has reached a position high in the official family. Sixteen years ago as a barefoot boy on a farm in Illinois he watched the Burlington trains scot by from a fence on his father's farm. Ten years ago he took a position as stenographer in the general offices at Chicago and his four promotions since that time have been rapid. In his last position as assistant superintendent of transportation Mr. Dickeson has been in charge of the transportation department of the lines west of the Missouri river. Few men at his age have held more responsible positions.

The work of Mr. Dickeson in assisting the transportation committees in planning the two trade excursions to the northwest was most thoroughly appreciated by the Commercial Club, the last excursion being provided with the finest train ever gotten together in the west.

Mr. Dickeson's new work will bring him to Omaha and the west quite frequently, as he will continue in looking after the transportation features of the road, although it is not known just what his title will be. During his brief stay in Omaha Mr. Dickeson has made a host of friends, who will regret to see him leave.
