Campbell, deceased Plaintiff, against said defendants, in said cause, No. 1000. C. D. QUINTON, Sheriff Cass County, Nebraska.

Again It Changes.

The vicissitudes of the News-Herald which has been struggling along for sometime in an effort to keep alive, are not ended. Another change has been promulgated in the ownership of the plant and it is to be run hereafter by a stock company, three of the incorporators of which filed articles of incorporation Thursday with County Clerk Rosencreans. The articles are signed by Ernest M. Pollard, W. L. Pickett and A. L. Tidd. They recite that the corporate name of the concern is to be the News-Herald Publishing Company with a business of printing and publishing a news paper and to do general job work. They also expect to erect and maintain various and sundry buildings and to purchase real estate and machinery. The stock is to be $7,000 divided into shares of $25 each which to be paid up as well as subscribed for. The corporation is to be in existence from July 1, 1909, and run for a period of 20 years. There is to be a board of directors of five elected by the stockholders in the time and manner provided in the bylaws. The officers are to be the president, secretary and treasurer, elected by the board of directors and to hold office for one year or until their successors are elected and qualified. The limit of indebtedness is placed at $4,500.

Thus much for the articles. By the change Messrs A. L. Tidd and R. O. Watters who have been the presiding geniuses of the establishment ever since it made its last essay for public favor, are relegated into innocuous desuetude while the bright shining star of T. Jefferson O'Day of Nehawka soars athwart the horizon, blazing like a 1,200 c. p. arc and scattering beams of republicanism abroad in the land. T. Jefferson's conversion while a little on the eleventh hour order, is unquestionably sincere. But a few days since he was promoting a democratic paper for Weeping Water and lately he has been running an independent paper in Nehawka but all this was before he saw the light. His timely advice on republican politics will doubtless have a great weight with the rank and file of the party and tickles the prospective candidates for office this fall exceedingly. Incidentally T. Jefferson is almost as strong a prohibition crank as Bixby of the State Journal which is some crank.

Robt. Mauzy who has been spending several days in the city with his parents M. Mauzy and wife, departed this morning for Burlington, Ia., where he will make a further visit before returning to Denver, Col. Mike Glass and family departed this morning for Herington, Okla., where they will make a visit with relatives for several weeks.

BLOOD IN THE AIR

One McCarthy From Bellevue Starts Doings in Fight Line

The eight o'clock closing law has yet more sins to answer for. Last night before the hour had told, so to speak, one McCarthy from the erudite neighborhood of Bellevue where Christian simplicity is taught the youth of the land, set sail into the village yesterday and while here concluded he could carom the balls about on Mr. Gregg's fancy green covered billiard tables. Anon came one Petty erst also one young man yelet Harvey and merrily joined them in the sport which rivaled even the haleyon days of Greece in its grandeur. Marked by much merriment and gladness glee, progressed the game for sometime until the hour of eight had almost come when dark-eyed and troublous anger smote upon its lyre and the sweet song of innocent merriment gave place to loud words of wrath. Anon came the God of battle and mixed it up and soon McCarthy was pecked upon the block and war—intercine, red visaged war—reared its ghastly front. From mitt the warring factors dashed to arms and soon knives gleamed in the dying light of the red-hot day. McCarthy erst so villiant with fist became a veritable demon when his trusty inch and a half dirk was called into action and he carved several small gashes in Petty's arm.

Harvey who had first reared the war head was down and out or as the poet has well said, nux vomica. With the coming of armed civilization and the flow of red gore, came cries for the bulls. El Toro was not to be had and McCarthy departed hurriedly for the worst road in the world intending to make it be a sure getaway. Enroute he stopped at a dealer in hardware and guns and armed himself with a weepin also stopped at a place where intoxicants are dispensed before the hour of eight and as he lapped up a few while the barkeeper kept his eye on the fateful clock, he told of what was in store for the Toros who should be venturesome knuff to try to pinch him. Then departed him for the M. P. full of bug-juice and dreams in which he fought e bulls to a frazzle and left their bleeding and mutilated carcasses over his wake. But he wotted not whereof he spoke for, anon came El Toro Del Citadel Rainey and Noche Trout and set sail in pursuit of McCarthy and his lugger. When near the M. P. depot McCarthy was beached and El Toro Rainey invited him to unlimber his artillery and make ready to battle, also advising him to file the sights off his cannon so he would not tear his clothes in drawing it. Alas and forever more, McCarthy was of the four flush for he failed, omitted and refused to battle and permitted aforesaid two toros to hale him away to jail with many merry club and jest. Facetiously the happy toros vented their merriment upon the hapless Mc. and soon he reposed in a noisome cell along with one Walsh and one Conwell, two others who had butted into El Toro the day before.

The morn dawned and with it came Mc. before hizzoner Judge Archer who sate stern eyed and omnipotent so to speak in the hall of justice and who dealt out to Mc. and the erst while beligerent Petty equal and exact justice to the tune of five plunks and the trimmings amounting to the grand total of eight plunks and then some apiece. In default with the wherewithal to satisfy outraged and humiliated justice, Mc. was restored to the charge of El Toro in Chieftain Rainey and back to the hot weather and donjon keep. Petty secured special leniency from the judge by making good the fine and went his way rejoicing that it was so. Thus comes it about that the eight o'clock law again reaches its victims even unto Bellevue.

Brings a Nice Price.

The Holshuh property just west of the city has changed hands, it being sold by Holshuh to A. W. Smith of Carson, Ia., who purchased the forty acres for the sum of $6,000, or $150 per acre. Mr. Smith who is a brother of Harry Smith who recently moved here from near Glenwood has secured a fine piece of property in this place and secured it at a bargain. $150 per acre for land lying as close to the city as this does with the splendid improvements which it has is dirt cheap and Mr. Smith is to be congratulated on his bargain. His brother Harry conducted the negotiations and is proud of the fact that he secured so good a piece of property so cheaply. Land here is far cheaper than in Iowa where these gentlemen came from and much better land, lying nice and rolling and draining finely. It is to be hoped Mr. Smith and his family move to this city and become permanent residents. The sale included the growing crops worth in themselves a neat sum as Mr. Holshuh is a good farmer.
