They both had a very delightful time however, and thoroughly enjoyed their visit.

That the Winsocks can raise fine apples was asserted yesterday and this morning it was corroborated by a branch from a small apple tree which Harry Winscot brought in and left at this office. This branch, which is two feet in length, contained eighteen apples, all perfectly formed and full size. This is a remarkable showing and one which so far leads all others so far as known. Harry was well pleased at his showing and he is some fruit raiser.

Mrs. Martha Baumeister was a passenger this morning for Omaha and Lincoln, where she will make a visit with relatives for several days. Mrs. Baumeister yesterday received word that Walter Rutherford, who is well known in this city, had the misfortune to have an arm broken several days since in a wreck. O'Day, who was to have assumed the management of former Congressman Polhard's paper in this city, spent a few hours here this morning, returning to Nehawka, where he is now trying to dispose of his paper. His appearance on the scene now is postponed indefinitely until his other interests can be closed out.

The mail from the east this morning was an hour and a half late and was thrown off at this city by an extra which passed through over the old main line for Lincoln where it will connect with No. 5. The delay was occasioned by the heavy rains throughout Iowa and soft tracks. All trains from the east are late and running under difficulties. No. 15 the morning train for Omaha and Lincoln was not held at the Junction for the mail but ran through on time. Omaha reports that all trains entering that city from the east and south are badly delayed as floods have washed out tracks in every direction.

James Gets Justice.
A Terrier whose real name developed this morning to be James Brannan and who ran afloat Chief of the Bulls Rainey yesterday was haled before Judge Archer in the palace of justice and given an opportunity to explain to the potentate why he came thus. James, whose name should have been the unready, failed miserably to elucidate to his highness the court, the whyness of his condition. He did unfold him a tale which reads like a page from the western romances of Oil Coombs. In the beginning, James the unready, beat the side doors from the village of North Platte afar in western Nebraska into the town which Jim Dahlman made famous. Here the bulls who wander up and down the streets, told him again to beat it, and he took passage for Nebraska City, realizing that anything went in that town. But, as has been well said by the poet alas and alackaday, he mounted the wrong Pullman and mistook a Burlington train for one on the Missouri Pacific. Herein arises cause No. 1 of his undoing, for who ever heard of a man entirely sober making this mistake. Finding himself rolling into a splendid city with towers and minarets and mazzins and things, and enthralled with the grandeur of the city, he dismounted and made himself at home in this city—for believe me, people, this was the place. And it has gilded places where the cup which cheers and inebriates is sold and these places beckoned a long finger to James, who entered their portals and herein imbibed sundry and many beakers of amber colored fluid, likewise several and many short, red ones until the atmosphere waxed rosy and the hectic flush pervaded the landscape. Anon came General Reaction and the atmosphere and the landscape assumed somber hues and war and desolation seemed to his troubled vision about to ensnare James. Then went he forth into the world albeit somewhat unsteadily, and here he found the chief of the bulls awaiting him, not at the church, but at the county court house, as told yesterday. And when he had finished his tale, he unfolded unto Judge Archer that he fain would depart the city and hie him afar even unto the wilds of Nebraska City. And the Judge thought it was well, and to speed the parting guest he annexed a bit of justice yeelp, one dollar's worth with trimmings, the same to be in full force and effect should James be found in the precincts wherein Judge Archer held forth one hour later. And James departed merrily on his way content that it so came about and happy even though he had lost his coat and sundry shekels in the shuffle.

OFF FOR MISSOURI RIVER CONGRESS

Omaha Delegation of Forty Business Men on Way to Yankton.

GRAIN ROUTE TO THE GULF.

Will Try to Secure Improvements on Big Muddy Which Will Make It Possible to Ship Products of West Over Its Waters—Will Endeavor to Bring Back Next Convention to Omaha During Corn Exposition.

Omaha, July 8.—Forty business men, headed by Commodore F. D. Wead, left for Yankton, S. D., as delegates to the Missouri River Navigation congress, which convened there for a three days' session, and will help out the efforts of that organization to secure improvements on the Big Muddy which will make it possible to ship the products of the great west over its waters to the gulf.

The Omaha men were joined by a delegation of thirty-five from Kansas City and adjacent points and the whole crowd was taken up on a special train over the Northwestern.

Captain Tilley of Pittsburg, who is to address the Yankton meeting, was a guest of Omaha navigators and accompanied them up the river. Omaha is going up with the specific intention of asking that the next congress be brought to this city and that it be held during the National Corn exposition in December. In this way it is believed that the grain growers can be more directly reached and more easily interested in the navigation proposition. Inasmuch as the greatest service which a fleet of boats on the Missouri would be to this section would be in transporting grain to the gulf its interest to farmers can be readily seen.

SAYS LOVE SHOULD RULE

Japanese Consul Gives Views on Question of Races Intermarrying.

Omaha, July 8.—K. Matsubara, consul of the Japanese government in Chicago, stopped in Omaha for a few hours on a return trip from Denver, where he visited friends for ten days. During the morning he was driven around this city and South Omaha in an automobile. He was much impressed with the magnitude of the packing business.

The consul would talk but little regarding the Chinese and the recent Sigel murder case in New York. When asked if he thought American girls ought to marry Japanese or Chinese, he gave an isonic reply. "Love is love," were his words, "and there is no need of outside influence. I, myself, am against discrimination and I don't like to discuss any countrymen, not even my own. If a girl loves a man, no matter whether he be Italian or German or Chinese, she ought to be allowed to do her own judging and not be bothered by outsiders."

Mother Swept Into Flooded Ravine at Council Bluffs and Drowned.

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 8.—The body of Mrs. Mary Kranninger, aged fifty-eight, wife of John Kranninger, who was drowned while frantically searching for a son who had gone to Lake Manawa and had gotten caught in the storm, was recovered. The Kranningers live near the outskirts of the city. Mrs. Kranninger, becoming alarmed over the continued absence of one of her five sons, took a lantern and started out in the direction of the city, thinking that possibly her son had lost his way in the darkness, intensified after leaving the city streets. She evidently attempted to cross a small ravine which had become a torrent, and was swept from her feet and drowned. The lantern was found where it is supposed she fell, and the body over a mile away. Five sons and four daughters survive. The family did not report Mrs. Kranninger's absence until the body was recovered.

TRAIN SINKS IN KANSAS FLOOD

Three Coaches Roll Into Eighteen Feet of Water.

PASSENGERS SAVED BY BOATS

People of Pattonsburg, Mo., Rescued From Roofs of Houses—Pomona, Kan., is Almost Completely Inundated—Six Men Swept From Bridge at Chillicothe—Flood Covers Whole Valley of Missouri.

Kansas City, July 8.—Swollen by unprecedented rains and by melted snows from the mountains, down through the Missouri valley, the rivers left their banks, causing much damage in many parts of Missouri and Kansas. The results of the flood are as follows:

Train No. 5 of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway, which left Kansas City at 9:25 a. m. for Denver, met with a wreck at Pomona, Kan. Of the ten coaches which made up the train, four, a baggage car and three day coaches, left the track and rolled into eighteen feet of water. The roadbed was covered with water and the train was proceeding slowly, when the tracks spread and overturned the coaches. The overturned coaches are supposed to have been empty.

Communication with the town was interrupted. Although railway officials denied that any one was killed or injured, a telephone message reports two people injured.

Pomona is almost completely inundated, the Marias des Cygnes river at that point being three miles wide.

Train Sinks Slowly.

It appears that the train, which had been derailed from the main line over the Emporia branch, was running along smoothly through the water, when it began to sink on the undermined tracks. The coaches sank so gradually that the passengers and crew were able to get into the Pullman cars before the other coaches finally toppled over and sank from view. People from the surrounding country, attracted by the cries of 300 marooned passengers, immediately endeavored to start on a rescue. Rafts were hastily constructed and the few boats available were pushed out, but by this time the current was so swift around the train that only the most venturesome were able to reach the people. It was after dark before a rescue, by means of a series of boats tied with ropes, was effected. Boat trips of from one to two miles were made to the nearest farmhouses free of the flood and the passengers all were finally taken to safety. The passengers probably will have to remain at the farmhouses until the surrounding flood subsides.

At Chillicothe, Mo., on the Grand river, six men were swept from a bridge and were seen floating down the stream. Whether they reached shore was not learned. Hundreds of people at this place have been forced to leave their homes. Residents in the unaffected districts have started to bake bread by the wholesale for the sufferers, and a relief train loaded with supplies has been sent out from surrounding points.

At Pattonsburg, Mo., over a thousand people were imprisoned on roofs or in second stories and the situation was hourly growing more acute. Boats and supplies were rushed there from nearby points, but with little prospect of crossing the two miles of swirling water between the marooned residents and dry land.

Many women and small children are among those held prisoners by the river and the condition is causing general alarm. Already at least one man is drowned, having been carried away by the current in the main street.

From as far down the Missouri as Jefferson City reports of crop damage in the river bottoms are reaching here and the inevitable further rise in that region will swell the total. Most of the wheat in the lowlands has been harvested, but the corn crop in some of the rich bottom fields will be a total loss, it is feared.

KILLS WIFE; DROWNS SELF

Wisconsin Man Beats Woman to Death With Shotgun.

Lodi, Wis., July 8.—George Knerzer of this city killed his wife by crushing her skull with the butt end of a shotgun. He then committed suicide by drowning in a pool four feet deep near the house. Knerzer was believed to be insane.

St. Louis, July 8.—Mrs. Bertha Casanova and two children were drowned on the old General Grant farm, in St. Louis county, when they attempted to ford the Gravois creek, which was swollen by heavy rains. Three other children were rescued after clinging to the wagon when it was swept down stream.
