VALUE GIVING CLOTHIERS

Make hay while the sun shines; it won't shine long at our "value giving" sale. Come Saturday morning, July 24th, 8 a. m.

Spend Delightful Evening.
 The ladies of the Cedar Creek D. of H. lodge and many of their friends were entertained with genuine country hospitality by Mrs. Will Seybert at her farm home near Culom last Thursday. The guests began to arrive early, some driving, while those from Cedar Creek, Louisville and Plattsmouth came by rail, being met at the station by Mr. Seybert with a large hay rack, which made a commodious conveyance and there was great fun on the trips to the farm house a half mile distant. Miss Marie Kaufman of Cedar had her kodak and took a very fine picture of the visitors as they stood in the rack. The merrymaking was in full swing when the hostess uncovered a neat surprise consisting of a large amount of gooseberries which were doled out to the company for stemming. All worked with a will and were progressing with great fun in the gooseberry game when the hostess informed them they were entitled to some lunch on account of their industriousness and were invited to the dining room, where the large table was loaded down with the choicest foods and delicacies of the season. After luncheon there was music and social conversation and another delightful occasion for the good of the order came to a close by the departure of the guests for their homes.

 Those present were: Mesdames Sarah Schneider, Mary Duff, Mary Schneider, Ella Wolff, Anna Inhelder, Emma Sears, Frances Sayles, Laura Wallinger, Maggie Horn; Messrs. George Horn, Halley Wallinger, Ray Horn, Misses Lelia Duff, Ruth Sayles, Verla Schneider, Verena, Wolf, Helen Schneider, Elsie Inhelder, Grace Duff, Inez Horn, Marie Kaufmann of Cedar Creek; Mesdames Bertha Ahl, Lena Seybert; Misses Tillie Dugan, Iva and Margaret Seybert of Louisville; John McNurlin, Mrs. Liesetta Sayles, Blanche and Adelia Sayles of Plattsmouth.

Departs for Oklahoma.
 A party of Plattsmouth and Cass county people were passengers this afternoon on the 1:58 train for Omaha, from which point they will proceed to Pocasset and Minco, Okla., where they go to look up some land. The party includes Messrs. William Hohlsuh, who goes to Minco; John Marasek, Peter C. Hansen and his sister, Miss Christina Hansen, all of whom go to Pocasset. Mr. Hohlsuh recently disposed of their property in this city and vicinity and is inclined to invest in Oklahoma land if any can be found which will answer their wants at a reasonable price. The remainder of the party have friends in and near Pocasset whom they intend to visit and also intend to keep their eyes open for bargains in lands. They will probably be gone for several weeks.

Mrs. D. C. West, wife of D. C. West, cashier of the Nehawka bank, and daughter of Hon. J. M. Stone of Nehawka, was in the city over night, the guest of Mrs. B. S. Ramsey and family. Mrs. West came up from Nehawka to attend the meeting of the W. C. T. U. and returned to her home this morning.

W. C. T. U. Convention.
 The convention of the W. C. T. U., held yesterday in this city, was largely attended and one of the most successful this organization has ever given. Three separate sessions were had, the first and second sessions, which were held during the day, taking place at the Christian church, while the third or evening session was held at the Methodist church.

There were many distinguished ladies present from points in the county, acting as delegates, and quite a sprinkling of ladies interested in temperance work from outside counties. The program was quite an extended one, the morning session devoting a greater portion of its time to hearing various reports and statements from the county officers on local conditions at different points. The reports were generally encouraging to the members. In addition the members were formally welcomed to the city.

Several important papers were read at the afternoon session, one of the best being that of Mrs. Oella Kirkpatrick of Nhwaka. Rev. Luther Moore of the Christian church also addressed the convention upon "How Women Can Aid the Cause of Temperance." Officers for the ensuing year were chosen at this session.

In the evening Mrs. E. H. Covell of Omaha, the widow of the late G. W. Covell, and well known in this city, made an interesting address, while Rev. A. A. Randall delivered an able address upon "Law Enforcement." All three sessions were marked by excellent musical numbers on the program which added greatly to the success of the gathering.

The convention continued this morning at the Christian church, all business from yesterday's session being completed and the various superintendents chosen.

Buys Fine Auto.

The Crabill-Cummins Automobile company has just concluded the sale of a fine Ford touring car to Phil E. Becker for his use in traveling between the city and his farm, west of the city. The new machine is one of the standard Ford cars, than which there is no better on the market. It is a twenty-horse power machine with capacity for five passengers and is a handsome one, as well as strongly made and durable. The body of the car is highly polished black and it makes an effective showing with the brass fittings which grace it. The Ford touring car has a reputation second to none as a stylish and comfortable car and the entire Ford line stands at the head in endurance and durability. Mr. Becker made no mistake when he chose this handsome little car from among many competitors. In price the Ford does not rank with the high priced machines, but is among the lowest, and especially so when its superior grade is considered. The machine which Mr. Becker purchased is an $850 one.

Aged Player Injured.

The Journal learns with regret that Editor Charles L. Graves of the Union Ledger a few days since essayed to play baseball with disastrous results to himself. The aged editor seemed to believe he was as young and supple as some forty years ago when he used to be the star pitcher for all the ball teams in this neighborhood, and he went into the game determined to make good. In sliding to first base, he broke one of his ankle bones and badly injured his foot. Charles ought to know the rules have changed since he last played, and it is no longer regarded as good form to slide to first. However, he was put out just the same, both figuratively and literally and mourns more over the former than the latter. Charley is one of the diamond veterans and could not withstand temptation when the game came round. He has our sincere sympathy, for we know how it is.

Pleased With Colorado.

Ben C. Hyde and wife returned yesterday morning from a visit of several days at Sterling, Colo. Mr. Hyde returns enthusiastic over the country around Sterling and states that it is as good as lies out of doors. He reports that great crops are the rule all over that country, it being all irrigated land, and that those who have settled there are more than well pleased at what they got. There are still some claims to be had at remote distances from the railroad, but practically all the good land is taken up. Relinquishments are selling from $500 to $1,000 per quarter section, which Mr. Hyde considers dirt cheap for them. He is thinking strongly of returning to that country and getting him a permanent home. Mr. Hyde talks very entertainingly of the country and the land and evidently has given it close study.

BOLD ROBBER MAKES A VISIT

Enters Home of Ben C. Hyde and Secure Small Sum

A belated case of burglary was reported yesterday afternoon to the police, the victims being Ben C. Hyde and family. The facts seem to indicate that the burglary and robbery took place last Monday night, although this is doubtful, as it could have taken place the night previous. Mr. and Mrs. Hyde were away from home at the time of the occurrence, having been passengers for Sterling, Colo., the last of the week. At the time the affair occurred the house was occupied by their children, several in number, and a young lady from Glenwood, Ia., who is a relative of theirs.

According to those in the house, they were drugged by the administration of chloroform or some similar drug, they stating that they smelled something of that nature in the house on Monday night and that they were soon sound asleep. Then it was that some one took the screen off an open window and entered the house. The children did not notify the police, but waited the return of Mr. and Mrs. Hyde from their Colorado trip, when they told them.

They claimed that the loss consisted of $8 which they had in the house for running expenses. Other articles were not molested, the marauders seeming to care for nothing but money. Mr. and Mrs. Hyde returned yesterday morning on No. 4, and as soon as they reached home they learned of the crime. This, however, was not until in the afternoon, and Mr. Hyde made an extended investigation. He found the place where the burglars had effected their entrance, but was of the opinion that it would be useless to notify the police owing to the length of time which had elapsed.

Later in the day the children and Mrs. Hyde noticed a stranger in the neighborhood, apparently making an attempt to keep in hiding and otherwise acting strangely, and it was decided to call the police. A call was accordingly sent down town and Officer Bird answered, going up on Wintersteen hill, where Mr. Hyde lives, and searching the neighborhood, but with unavailing results. The man had evidently grown suspicious or had concluded to change his base for some other reason, as he could nowhere be found. The surroundings of the Hyde home are such that it is comparatively easy for a person to hide and escape the officers, there being underbrush and high weeds and grass scattered over the neighborhood.

Owing to the length of time elapsing between the burglary and its report to the police little hope is entertained of getting trace of the burglars. Some people profess to believe the case may be in some way related to the recent slugging of Will Grele, which also took place on Wintersteen hill, and that both crimes when traced down will be found to have been the product of local talent. If this should be the case extraordinary steps should be taken to apprehend the offender and a good, heavy sentence imposed upon him.

More Improvements.

Improvements is the order of the day at the Plattsmouth Steam Laundry, George Ballance, the owner, has just completed the installation of a steam mangle in the plant, making a great many changes in order to do this. This enables the plant to turn out work as fine as any in the state. The new machine cost him $500, and quite a bit more to install it, but it adds fully that much or more to the value of the plant. This is the first steam mangle ever put into service in this city, and makes a distinct step in advance in the laundry business here. It is a large sized machine, Mr. Ballance finding that a smaller machine would not answer the purpose, and that it could not handle his business, which is so rapidly increasing. The mangle was given a little work yesterday merely to test it and this afternoon it was further worked, but it will be several days yet before it can be said to be entirely ready for use. The employees of the laundry have had little experience in handling these machines before, but they are ready and ambitious to study them and learn, and this means that no time will elapse before they will be doing as well as the best. Mr. Ballance also contemplates in the immediate future the installation of a domestic finishing machine for collars and cuffs, so that he can turn out work the equal in every respect to the metropolitan laundries. He states that his trade has very largely objected to the domestic finish, but that the demand for this style of work is growing slowly and soon will compel the adding of this new machinery. Mr. Ballance is one of the city's most enterprising business men and he seeks to give the public what they want. With this end in view he has made many investments and additions to the laundry plant and figures on many more soon.

Farmers Take the Plattsmouth Telephone.

The farmers living southeast of Plattsmouth, who have been holding meetings to consider the advisability of building their own lines, met at the farm of Hans Kemp last Saturday night and voted to take the Plattsmouth telephone.

The Plattsmouth Telephone company completed the lines yesterday and installed telephones for Hans Kemp, August Beins, Peter Mumm and Charles Miller, and will immediately build to a number of other farmers in that vicinity.

The Plattsmouth Telephone company is also installing telephones on the farms of Henry Stander, John Albert, Adam Forno, G. G. Meisinger, Dovey & Lincoln, west of town.

PLATFORM DANCE.

There will be a platform dance on Saturday night, July 24, at Valery's. Good music and a fine time for all.

Enjoying Himself.

Ye news scribe is in receipt of a postal card from T. S. Clifford from Santa Catalina Islands, Cal., in which he says "delighted; would be satisfied, if I had a wife, to stick a while." Wouldn't that jar you? We were fearful to let Teddy get away and out to the coast by himself, and it wouldn't surprise us now to hear he had found a soul mate there and concluded to stay. We are also in receipt of a week's copies of an Los Angeles paper containing full accounts of the proceedings of the Elks grand lodge, and they make handsome and interesting souvenirs of the great gathering. Brother Clifford was a delegate and was an ardent advocate of the election of J. U. Sammis of LeMars, Ia., as grand exalted ruler. Mr. Sammis won over August (Garry) Hermann of Cincinnati, O., by a comfortable majority.

Making Fine Improvements.

Our good friend, P. A. Hild, living west of the city, has been making some extensive improvements upon his already fine property. He has just finished the construction of a fine barn, size 38x40 feet, and is now engaged in the construction of a cattle shed, 20x38 feet in size. These two structures will make valuable and handsome additions to the fine buildings he already possesses. The carpenter work on the buildings is done by A. Baxter Smith and O. M. Klutz, while M. S. Briggs did the painting. Mr. Hild is one of the enterprising and hustling farmers of Cass county and believes in keeping his farm right up to the top notch in every respect. A tireless worker and a frugal and economic citizen he has accumulated quite a store of this world's goods, and is one of the soundest men the county boasts.

Mrs. Hawrick Operated Upon.

George Edgerton today received a postal card from Andy Hawrick, who was summoned to Chicago, Ill., a few days ago by a telegram announcing the serious illness of his wife. The card states that Mrs. Hawrick was operated upon before he arrived there, but that she was getting along finely and doing very well, indeed. This will be good news for the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hawrick, who were uneasy over the probable outcome of the operation, and they unite in hoping that her condition continues to be favorable, and that she can soon return home quite well.

Christening at Mr. Hild's.

A christening took place last Sunday at the home of Phillip Hild when the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Hild was christened Verner William. There were quite a number of relatives and neighbors present and a pleasant time was had.
