

JUDGE T. C. MUNGER ISSUES INJUNCTION AGAINST STRIKERS

New Move Made By Burlington in Boilermakers Strike Now on in the Havelock Shops.

Over 100 striking boilermakers at Havelock were ordered last evening through a blanket restraining order issued by Judge T. C. Munger in United States court, from using any methods coupled with force, intimidation or threats in seeking to dissuade employes of the Burlington railroad from their work or other men from entering its employment. The writ of restraint was granted upon application of attorneys for the railroad company, after the president of the boilermakers' union, J. W. Jones, had been notified at the court's direction and had failed to appear in opposition. The hearing was set for 9:30 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday, May 18. A surety bond for $2,000 was furnished by the Burlington in support of the order.

Accompanying the petition of the railroad company, affidavits were filed setting forth the situation at Havelock. According to these papers, several assaults have been committed by strikers upon persons who continued at work for the railroad company and were instrumental in getting others to take jobs. It is charged that upon different occasions, crowds of the striking boilermakers congregated and called other workmen vile names, following up these tactics with physical attacks.

List of Restrictions.

The order of Judge Munger puts the members of the union under the following inhibitions:

From compelling or inducing or attempting to compel or induce by threats, intimidation, force or violence of any of the said plaintiff's employes to fail or refuse to work for it or to leave its service.

From preventing or attempting to prevent any person or persons by threats, intimidation, force or violence, from freely entering into or continuing in the said plaintiff's service.

From congregating upon or about the plaintiff's premises or the streets, approaches and places adjacent or leading to said premises for the purpose of intimidating its employes or preventing or hindering them from fulfilling their duties as such employes or for the purpose of or in such manner as to induce or coerce by threats, violence, or intimidation any of the said plaintiff's employes to leave its service or any person to refuse to enter its service.

From congregating upon or about the plaintiff's premises or the sidewalk, street, alleys or approaches adjoining or adjacent to or leading to said premises and from picketing in a threatening manner the said plaintiff's places of business or the homes or boarding houses or residences of the said plaintiff's employes.

From interfering with the said plaintiff's employes in going to and from their work.

From going singly or collectively to the homes of the said plaintiff's employes for the purpose of intimidating or threatening them to leave its service.

From doing any of the aforesaid or any other acts for the purpose of compelling and inducing or attempting to compel or induce the plaintiff by threats, intimidations, force or violence against its will or the will of its officers, to employ or to discharge any person or persons whomsoever, and especially to employ members of said unions or discharge persons who are not members of said unions.

From combining, associating, agreeing, mutually undertaking, concerting together or with other persons for the purpose of doing or causing to be done any of the aforesaid prohibited acts.

From the threats, intimidations, persuasion, force or violence, compelling or attempting to compel or induce any of the apprentices in the employ of the said plaintiff to break their contracts and leave the employ of the said plaintiff.

From interfering by intimidation, threats or violence with any person or persons having or attempting to transact business with the plaintiff.

From hindering, impeding or interfering by intimidation, threats or violence the said plaintiff or its employes in the transaction and conduct of its business.

The foregoing from this morning's State Journal shows that the Burlington is now commencing to fight back at the striking boilermakers. The statement above is supplemented by a long list of names of the boilermakers who have been enjoined including many who formerly lived in this city. The injunction was granted after several witnesses had been called to prove threats and assaults upon the men who remained at work, the defendants failing to appear and make any defense to the case.

Plattsmouth is still without trouble over the strike and it is to be hoped it remains so. As printed in yesterday's Journal the best of conditions exist here, and the men are unwilling to join the strike and lose their jobs. The expected delegation from Havelock which was to come down and picket the local shops has not yet shown up and it is hoped they will see the folly of such a course and stay away. A large number of men at the shops have formed a committee which will meet any visiting delegation and urge it to return to its home and leave this city and its workmen alone. The spirit of the shopmen here is decidedly against a strike and they especially resent having Havelock workers come down here and tell them what to do.

The sentiment among the business men and the people of the town is also strongly against any interference in the local shops by outsiders and the public is in no condition to have trouble started here. Plattsmouth's business men want the city peaceable and its men employed and they do not intend to sit idly by and have trouble made and the business of the city injured to benefit other places.

Canon Burgess Injured.

Canon H. B. Burgess of St. Luke's Episcopal church this morning suffered a severe and painful injury to his head while moving about the rectory where repairs are being made. The carpenters have been working at the building for some time past and this morning as the Canon was engaged in going from one room to another he accidentally slipped and struck his head against a door jamb, the impact knocking the skin off his head in a large patch, causing the blood to flow profusely and pain him considerably. Owing to the size of the injury and the loss of blood which was threatened, the gentleman hurried at once to a surgeon who dressed the injury and stopped the flow of blood. Owing to his advanced age some little apprehension was felt as to the seriousness of the wound but the attending surgeon does not consider it as dangerous unless unforeseen complications set in. The aged rector is a very popular man in this city with all classes of people and the news of his injury will be received with the deepest and most sincere regret. It is to be hoped that he will soon be able to be out and about again and that the wound may heal speedily and effectually.

A touch of rheumatism, or a twinge of neuralgia, whatever the trouble is, Chamberlain's Liniment drives away the pain at once and cures the complaint quickly. First application gives relief. Sold by all dealers.

GET UP TO SEE HALLEY'S COMET

Many Citizens View It and Proclaim It a Grand Sight.

About half of Plattsmouth's population this morning seemed to have turned out on the hills and in the streets to take a look at Halley's comet and they were well rewarded for their trouble. The comet is now very bright with a tail of stupendous length, reaching from near the horizon almost to the zenith. The increase in the size of the comet and its tail since a week ago is remarkable. It certainly seems to be carrying out its promise to make a grand showing of the wonders of astronomy. Operator Moore at the Burlington station called a number of people on the telephone to witness the spectacle and many of them dressed and went down to the station, where they had no unobstructed view. Those who had good points on the hills also saw the spectacle at its best. The comet this morning showed up better at about 3:30 than either before or later as the sky at that hour was unclouded and still quite dark. It was before Venus had risen, and, as this is the dark of the moon, there was nothing to hinder a grand view being had. Venus, the morning star, is also quite a spectacle, being very brilliant and in fact, at its best. Every one who saw the comet this morning unites in the report that it is now a grand spectacle and there is every likelihood that it will grow in brilliancy rapidly until the 18th, when the earth will pass through the tail of it. The big, blazing star with the monster tail will certainly spread terror among the ignorant and especially among the southern negroes who will see in it the forerunner of great disaster and possibly the end of the earth. Scientists, however, do not entertain any such fears and do not expect any very unusual demonstrations when the earth and the planet reach their nearest point.

Dusty Rhodes Vamooses.

Our old friend Dusty Rhodes several days in the habit of spending several days in the city every few months until the bulls drive him out, lighted yesterday and proceeded to carry out his old form of living. He first tanked up on all the free drinks he could garner then he sharpened a few knives and scissors until he had enough coin of the realm on hand to buy some red eye, after which he was in his element. He wandered about the residence portion of the city alarming timid women and the small babes and spreading the impression that he had bats in the belfry until Chief Rainey heard of his escapades and started out to round him up. He finally located him in an alley making love to his bottle of liquor and gave him sundry minutes to separate himself from the city and its environs. Dusty tried to make good on the orders and went down to the Burlington yards with the highly commendable idea of going to Pacific Junction or Omaha or some other seaport, when lo! and behold! Alex Bisanz who works for the Burlington and between times does a neat and scientific job of sleuthing and policing fell afoul of Dusty and ordered him to get out of the yards forthwith. Dusty was thus put into a dilemma akin to that of Mr. W. H. Taft—he didn't dare to come back up town or the regulars would get him and if he stayed down in the yards the insurgents would have him. He finally concluded to defy Alex and the latter took him to the bastille where he remained over night and sobered up.

This morning he was hailed before Judge Archer who listened with great patience to his story of how he came to be before him once more and who delivered a clever talk upon the sinfulness of Dusty's ways and the folly of malefactoring in the city. At the conclusion Judge Archer concluded to temper justice with mercy as the Good Book advises, and fined Dusty $10 and costs. In consideration of Dusty finding his way out of the city forthwith the fine was suspended and he was told to hit the pike at a speed as near that of the comet as he could muster up. This he did, departing for Nebraska City full of spirits and enthusiasm and well pleased that one bright side could be made to look like two.

A Pleasant Gathering.

Last Saturday and Sunday, the sons and daughters of Mrs. Lovica Kinnamon, together with a number of good friends gathered at her home in the southern part of the city to aid in celebrating her sixty-ninth birthday. The afternoon of Saturday and all day Sunday was devoted to the occasion which was a highly enjoyable one. The aged lady found much comfort in the visit of her children from abroad and all gratefully enjoyed the meeting. As is always the case with so delightful gatherings, there was plenty to eat and the guests found the hostess had prepared all the dainties of the season for them. Mrs. Kinnamon has lived in this city for many years past and has a great many friends who will extend their congratulations upon her passing another milestone in life's journey and who trust that there are many more in prospect.

Among those who were present were: Charles A. Kinnamon and family of Lincoln, he being one of the sons and a well known and popular man, both here and at Lincoln; C. A. Peterson and wife; Philip Kinnamon and family; H. Gartleman and wife; and Miss Lola Kinnamon, all of the latter living in this city.

Phil's Prophecy Holds Good.

Phil Harrison has made good as a weather prophet. About a week ago he had the Journal print a forecast of the present cold wave which he fixed for the 12th, and which he warned the public would nip all flowers and tender plants which might be left out of doors uncovered. He made good on his promise and delivered the cold wave last night and this morning. Some of these amateurs will monkey around with the weather until they do some damage some of these day and the people will rise up against them. Phil has demonstrated that he can produce the goods and he had better stop now while he is well off. The cold wave, however, has not been severe enough to do a great deal of damage it is believed. There are no reports in the morning papers of any extensive damage anywhere and the indications are the wave will be of short duration. The weather bureau predicts fair weather for today with Friday, fair and warmer.

The only court business done in county court today was filing the petition and stipulation, making a settlement of the claim of the estate of B. J. While the amount of the settlement was not made public, the settlement is generally considered by those who know the circumstances as satisfactory to both the railroad company and the widow.
