The infant mortality in Iowa has been so strikingly heavy this summer that the people at large may be led to give serious attention to the bulletins of the state board of health; and this is the main problem in the matter of saving the babies. Any physician of ordinary professional qualification can tell how to save the babies but as a rule he can't get anybody to listen until after the babies are dead.

Death of James Rice.

Three weeks ago James Rice, a prominent and well-to-do farmer living near Murray was suddenly strickened with an illness which finally ended in his mind becoming deranged to the extent that he was taken to the insane hospital at Lincoln for treatment. He gradually grew worse and Mrs. Rice was summoned to his bedside on Wednesday last, and remained there until death relieved the unfortunate man Saturday. Mrs. Rice accompanied the remains to his late home and on Monday the body was laid at rest in the Otterbein cemetery, near his late home. The deceased was about 49 years of age, and highly respected by all who knew him. He is survived by the wife and several children. The entire community deeply sympathise with the widow and orphans in this, the hour of their deep bereavement.

Yesterday he was making the trip from Oreapolis, and Engineer Thrall was hitting up about twenty-five miles an hour around a curve, when "Old Sport" lost his balance and went several summersaults into the weeds. He was not injured, however, and immediately started back to Oreapolis to wait for the next train.

Fireman Giles Roman notified Mr. Thrall of the loss of a member of the crew when the engine was slowed down and stopped, and backed up for "Sport" to get on. The dog again mounted the switch engine and arrived at the station with the switch engine, feeling, no doubt, that his friends still stood by him.

Ambrose (Pete) Neligh of Wisner came in last evening and remained over night, returning to South Omaha this morning. Pete and his father are in the stock business, and he came down to South Omaha to buy some feeders. Pete has to visit his old chums occasionally for fear he will forget them.

Rock-Ribbed Democrats.

From 'Tuesday's Daily Milt Moore of Murdock, and Scott Hare, of Omaha, came in last evening from the metropolis and remained until the north bound passenger this afternoon. The two rock-ribbed Democrats are old and fast friends, and many are the hours they have consulted over the political issues. Mr. Hare lived in Murdock for many years, where he was successful in business and Milt owns several hundred acres of land in Cass county. Both are excellent gentlemen, and the Journal people are always glad to meet them.
