Good Farmers in Town.
P. B. Smith, C. M. Cole, J. L. Smith and Thomas Nix, all from the vicinity of Murray were looking after some business matters in the county seat Tuesday afternoon. They are all good friends of the Journal, and we were pleased to see them. Especially we were glad to see our old friend, J. L. Smith, and to know that he is able to be up and around again. The old gentleman is eighty-three years of age and for the past year or more he has been very sick and at times doubtful whether or not he would recover, and we were indeed pleased to see him look so hale and hearty. They are all good men and our only complaint is that they do not visit the county seat oftener.

MORE MURDERS IN ROCK BLUFFS THAN ONE
From Wednesday's Daily.
Yesterday the Journal printed an article written after an interview with our excellent friend, William Gilmore, residing south of this city in which we stated that the Shera murder was the first ever committed in Rock Bluffs precinct. The Journal also has a friend residing in Plattsmouth and one who has resided here for many years in the person of Mr. Joseph Johnson who says Mr. Gilmore is mistaken in the number and localities of some of the Cass county murders. A great many years ago a man whose name he has forgotten, but who was conducting a saloon just below the old town of Rock Bluffs was murdered and the murderer escaped across the river and was never captured. About forty years ago he says an old lady by the name of Powers was shot down from a clump of underbrush along the roadside, being killed. Mr. Johnson does not make this statement with the intention of entering any controversy whatever, but he says it is right to place the crime where it is committed.

PIONEER LADY PASSES AWAY
Has Lived on One Farm Near Murray For Past Thirty-five Years
From Wednesday's Daily.
Mrs. S. J. Fleming, one of the pioneer ladies of Cass county died at her home one mile south and two miles west of Murray at one o'clock this morning of complication of diseases which has been very baffling to the physicians but was thought to be cancer. The deceased has been ill for some months past and expert medical aid was summoned with no avail. She grew worse gradually until the end came at one o'clock this morning.
Miss Orilla Holcomb was born in LaSalle county, Illinois, on the 12th day of April, 1841, and was married to Samuel J. Fleming in 1861, moving to Cass county and later settling on the farm where death claimed them both, thirty-five years ago, or in 1874, Mr. Fleming having answered the final call and passed to the great beyond ten years previous. While Mrs. Fleming had lived to advanced age, being sixty-nine years of age, she was in perfect health up to two years ago when the trouble that caused her death first appeared, in the form of a growth under the arm. This was removed by an operation and she seemed to improve for a time but later returned with fatal results.
To this happy union four children were born, three daughters and one son, the three daughters survive her, and the one son, Clarence, met death from drowning about twenty years ago. The three surviving daughters are Mrs. Silas Crabtree, who lives in Idaho, Mrs. J. T. Porter, with whom the deceased has made her home on the old farm near Murray, and Mrs. Blair Porter, living in Union.
The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of all in this, their hour of deepest sorrow, and in the passing of this most highly esteemed lady they realize the fact that the loss is not only confined to the near relatives but to the entire community where she has lived for so many years. A loss which only lives ever changing events can subdue.
The funeral will be held at the late home on Thursday afternoon and interment will be had in Mt. Pleasant cemetery where all that remains earthly of this excellent lady will be laid beside her chosen companion through life, her husband.
