GAS ENGINE FACTORY PROPOSITION STILL SEEMS SLIGHTLY IN DOUBT

Committee of the Commercial Club Still Lacks Some $600 of the Amount Necessary to Secure Plant.

From Saturday's Daily.

The committee appointed by the Commercial club, consisting of T. H. Pollock, E. A. Wurl and Henry Schneider, assisted by Mr. L. C. Sharp, the well informed machine man of Omaha, exercised decidedly strong efforts yesterday in the interests of the new gas engine factory proposition now before the Commercial club and the good citizens of Plattsmouth. The time is growing very short and the gentleman at the head of the factory over in Iowa is very anxious to ascertain what our people are doing with his proposition so that he may be able to govern his future steps accordingly, and this is in no way contrary to the average successful business man. Valuable time is getting away from him and he does not wish to enlarge his plant in his present location, as he intends to move somewhere, and that within the next year or less. The demand for his engine is growing and the Commercial club have strong evidence of this fact from correspondence in their possession, and he wants to get settled in order to enlarge his plant and increase the output of the finished product to comply with the demand. We are reliably informed that he has orders now for more engines than he is prepared to manufacture. Such a state of affairs surely places any business man in a very undesirable position, and he is surely justified in wanting to know just what we are doing with his proposition.

Mr. L. C. Sharp has also thoroughly examined the engine now on exhibition and has been thoroughly tried, and he pronounces it as good in every particular. Mr. Sharp's judgment on machinery of all kinds is too well known to the people of Plattsmouth for us to dwell on any further comment, and as for ourselves we accept the proposition as good and believe that our people should do likewise. This is but one step in the right direction to secure future factories to which there is no limit, in fact there is no limit to the output of the one now in view. A general iron foundry and casting plant will be placed in connection with the engine plant, which alone is a winner and will employ several men. There is also a chance to secure the services of Mr. Sharp in the manufacturing line in Platt-mouth once more, as he has leased his Omaha plant and for the present is at leisure and open for most any proposition that looks good to him in the machine manufacturing line. He says Plattsmouth is a most desirable location for many small factories and it is the duty of our people to accept the one now in sight. So let us act and act now.

A few years ago the town of Waterloo, Iowa, established a small gas engine plant, in a similar manner to the one now on foot here, with a few men employed, and today this same small factory is employing over 150 people, and the increase in Waterloo's population is a greater per cent than any town in the state, and the Waterloo engine is sold in all parts of the land, and being manufactured by the hundreds. What has been done in other towns can certainly be done for Plattsmouth, if our people will only come to the front with a little financial aid at the time it is needed, and now is the time.

The Journal has explained the proposition now before the Commercial club a number of times and all are familiar with the terms, so all that is necessary at this time is to say that the hustling committee are about $600.00 short of the desired amount to secure the factory, and this must be raised soon or once more we lose out in a mighty good cause. Surely our people will not let such a small amount prove a stumbling block in the progressive roadway to success. No, this cannot be true, and yet the hustling committee are getting very much discouraged over the outlook. They have requested the Journal to appeal to the smaller investor at this time, many of whom have expressed a willingness to contribute $5 and $10, or even more. All who feel like assisting them in this way and to either amount will please call on Mr. E. A. Wurl at his store on Sixth street, or Mr. H. A. Schneider at the postoffice, who will gladly explain the proposition and accept the amount you feel like offering, but let it be done soon, as the time is very short. This is the Commercial club's final appeal to you, so do not let this small amount stop the securing of the first factory for Plattsmouth. "Act, Man, and Act Now!"

ENTERTAIN FOR "NEWLY WEDS"

Methodist Glee Club and Choir Entertain Married Members

From Saturday's Daily.

The M. E. choir and glee club last evening tendered a reception to the four young married couples, members of the choir, who have been married within the past few months. The guests of honor were: Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. Max Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tuedy and Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Howter. The reception being held at the home of Miss Etha Crabill.

Two of the leading features of the evening's entertainment consisted first of a cartoon contest, in which the best artists of the musical organization were given an opportunity to show their skill in depicting on the black board some feature of a given member of some incident of such member's career.

Some surprises were sprung on the unsuspecting musicians, Rev. W. L. Austin showed marked skill with the crayon, and depicted the lost trunk of one of the guests of honor so vividly as to be quite startling in its life-like appearance. Miss Ellen Windham portrayed the features of another of the guests of honor with such life-like similarity that it was difficult to prevent the membership from taking the picture in lieu of the original.

Music was a part of the entertainment, a solo being rendered by each of the brides, who are all splendid singers. The second interesting feature was a realistic story in four thrilling chapters, into which was woven incidents and occurrences in the wedding tours of each of the young couples. Blanks were left in the narrative to be filled by the guests, with some catchy sentence provided for the occasion by the thoughtful hostess and her able assistants.

We are sorry that our limited space will not allow us to reproduce the story today, but at some future time we may do so.

Lovely refreshments crowned this evening of enjoyment, and at a very late hour the choir and glee club adjourned, voting Miss Crabill, the princess of entertainers.

JURY FINDS FOR PLAINTIFF IN INSURANCE CASE

From Saturday's Daily.

The jury in the case pending in the district court, in which Vesta Clark sued the Bankers' Accident Insurance company for the accidental death of her husband by falling from a telephone pole at Union last October, brought in a verdict last evening for the plaintiff in the sum of $1,000.00. The defendant company made a strong fight against the judgment, claiming that the application was never signed by the plaintiff's husband, and that he never paid the $3.00 entrance fee, but that it was paid by the brother of the deceased, and that the deceased never claimed any benefit under the policy.

The defendant offered to produce the policy in evidence, but the same was ruled out on the objection of the plaintiff's counsel.

The court instructed the jury in substance, that it did not matter whether the application was signed by the deceased insured, and that it was immaterial whether the admission fee was paid by the insured or some one for him, provided the company accepted the money for the purpose of purchasing insurance, and provided also that the person to whom the money was paid had authority to transact business and sell insurance for the company. The defendant's counsel, Clark and Robertson, submitted a few questions for the jury to answer, which is not a usual proceeding. After the jury was polled, and the decision announced, the court excused the members from further service until the 17th inst.

BITTER FEUD OVER BOND TAX

Sensational Charges Against Attorneys in Petition at Atlantic.

Atlantic, Ia., Oct. 8.—Trouble over the bond tax voted in aid of the A. N. and S. railroad by Cass county has broken out again and this time threatens to involve numerous prominent people in sensational actions at law.

Shortly after the bonds were voted the collection of the special tax was enjoined. After several months of delay and time spent in negotiations for settlement of the matter, it was announced that a compromise had been effected and the effort to prevent the collection of the tax would be abandoned. In support of this injunction proceedings were withdrawn in court.

Now it is alleged that the compromise was obtained fraudulently and the charge is made that attorneys in the case sold out their clients. This charge involves leading members of the Cass county bar and suits and counter suits are threatened.

C. P. Meredith, Wilson Prall and T. P. Stafford of Atlantic, through their attorney, filed in the office of the clerk of the district court of Cass county an application for reinstatement of the tax case.

From Saturday's Daily.

Last evening Superintendent Gamble and the teachers of the High school enjoyed an outing in the nature of a picnic supper, the festival being observed in the peaceful quiet of Ben Horning's grove, far from the busy confines of the school room.

Miss Blanche Horning provided the farm products of the reast, and liquid refreshments, while the rest of the contingent brought the waffles and other city delicacies. The party left the high school campus about 5 o'clock and marched in a body to the grove, where they were met by Miss Horning. The banquet was spread on the grass, the appetites of the participants were quite whetted by the two-mile walk, and the party lingered at the banquet table until the sun went down, and the stars came out. A huge bonfire was built to light up the dell, as the fragments of the feast were gathered up. The party reached the city about 8:30, having enjoyed the outing immensely. Those present were: Superintendent J. W. Gamble and wife, Principal J. L. Richey, Miss Allison Johnston, Miss Lena Freiday, Miss Cora Anderson, Miss Blanche Horning and Miss Florence Dye.

Progress Made On Paving.

From Saturday's Daily.

H. C. McMaken and son are making good progress in placing the curbing in paving district No. 3, and will have finished the curb this evening for the block on Vine, between Fourth and Fifth streets.

There is a large amount of dirt to be graded out before the paving can be put in place, and the M. Ford people will be here Monday with a force of men and teams to begin this part of the work.

The surplus dirt will be used in filling in the holes and leveling up. When the paving is in, a vast improvement will be noticed on Fourth street west of the court house, which is now almost impassable for pedestrians wishing to cross from one side of the street to the other. Vine street for the present is blocked and will be now until the paving is completed. The result of the paving will be to greatly improve the properties on the south side of Vine street, as they will be left above grade.
