HAYWARD MAKING WILD STATEMENTS

Calls President Taft "Progressive" Despite His Record

As a candidate for congress, William Hayward may not realize how easy it is to make it mighty hard for one so disposed to vote for him.

If his utterances are being correctly reported, he is doing that in his speeches. When he characterizes President Taft as "the best progressive of them all," he is inviting a slight conception of his sincerity and a slight estimate of his political judgment. He is flying in the face of popular sentiment, for the great majority of his hearers do not agree with him.

Mr. Hayward may think, as he is reported to have said he does, that it is strange that the most abused congress of recent years should be that of the past session, but the progressive republicans of Nebraska do not think it at all strange, and are apt to wonder why he does.

They know that most of the desirable things in legislation secured by the people from the last session of congress were secured from other progressives than this vaunted "best progressive" he speaks of, and that he later sought to use his power as a patronage distributor to defeat it by intimidating them.

The great majority of Mr. Hayward's hearers know that there was precious little progressiveness in the legislation introduced by this so-called "best progressive of them all," and that if it had not been for the determined fight made by those whom he leaves us to infer were the least progressive, we would have secured very little progressiveness at all.

It is decidedly courageous in Mr. Hayward to point to the postal savings bank law as materially progressive, if, as is claimed, we are to have under it but one postal savings bank in each state. If that be a compliance with the law, it is a progressive joke.

It may be true that sixteen of the president's nineteen recommendations in regard to the railroad bill were enacted by congress, and that may not interfere with the fact that the real progressiveness in the bill was in the rejection of the three recommendations which congress turned down.

In assuming to proclaim the virtues of the Taft administration and stand-patience in congress, he is unnecessarily handicapping himself and making it easy for his really progressive friends to change their allegiance.

Nothing he can say will ever convince the sturdy insurgents in this state that President Taft, or even ex-President Roosevelt, is a better progressive than are LaFollette of Wisconsin, Dooliver and Cummins of Iowa, Beveridge of Indiana, Bristow and Murdock of Kansas, or George Norris of Nebraska, the men whose stand for progressiveness in legislation invited the punitive measure adopted by the president when he sought to whip them into line by denying them a voice in the allotment of federal patronage.

It is not incumbent upon a candidate for congress in this insurgent state to attempt to mislead the masses as to the confessed stand-patience of the administration. It cannot be done.—Lincoln Star, (Rep.)

Will Stand For Re-election.

From Tuesday's Daily
 D. C. Morgan went to Omaha this afternoon, accompanied by his wife, Mr. Morgan to attend a meeting of the Grand Lodge of the Degree of Honor, and Mrs. Morgan to visit relatives. Tomorrow the annual convention of the officers of the Grand Lodge of the order will be held.

Miss Tresa Hempel, the grand recorder, and Mr. Morgan, chairman of the finance committee, will be candidates for re-election to their respective positions. Also Mrs. Cleaver, Grand Chief of Honor, will be a candidate for the same position next year. It is to be hoped that Miss Hempel and Mr. Morgan will both be successful in their campaigns for the positions sought.

The funds of the reserve fund have never been more judiciously handled than since Miss Hempel has been grand recorder and Mr. Morgan the chairman of the finance committee. He has something over $115,000 invested in first mortgage loans on farms within a short distance of Plattsmouth.

There is little in the salary, so that unless Miss Hempel is elected to succeed herself as grand recorder, Mr. Morgan will not care to hold the office of chairman of the finance committee.

Peter Halmas, a prosperous young farmer of Plattsmouth precinct, went to Omaha on the afternoon train today.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE AT HOME OF GEO. MEISINGER

The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. George Meisinger, of Plattsmouth, was the scene of a delightful social affair Sunday, when they entertained a number of relatives and friends in honor of Mrs. Meisinger's brother, Mr. George Meisinger, and his granddaughter, Miss Mary Vetter, of Green Valley, Illinois. At the noon hour an elegant dinner, consisting of roast beef, fried chicken and many other delicacies, which a farmer's wife knows best how to prepare, was spread in the dining room and to which the guests could not help but do ample justice and which elicited many compliments. The afternoon was devoted to social conversation, music and games and at a late hour the guests departed for their homes, indebted to the host and hostess for the splendid entertainment afforded them.

Those in attendance were Messrs. and Mesdames George Meisinger, John Meisinger, Peter Meisinger, George A. Meisinger, Wendell Hell, Philip P. Meisinger, Conrad Meisinger, William Hassler, John Bauer, George J. Meisinger, George L. Kraeger, Henry Hirtz, Henry G. Meisinger, Fred W. Meisinger, Misses Lizzie and Sophia Kraeger, Mary Vetter, of Green Valley, Illinois; Minnie Born, Frances Hell, Isabel Todd, Eleanor Todd, Tillie and Flora Meisinger, Gladys Meisinger, Helen Hirtz; Messrs. George Meisinger, of Green Valley, Illinois; Mr. Leonard and son, Charley Bailey, of Big Spring, Nebraska; William Kraeger, Fred and Walter Hell, Emil and Edward Meisinger, Carl and Albert Kraeger, Harley Meisinger, Clifton Meisinger.

Depart For California Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Roetter entertained a number of relatives and friends Sunday in a very pleasant manner. The occasion was in honor of their children, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Buckley and little son, Jonathan, and was in the nature of a farewell, as Mr. and Mrs. Buckley will depart for San Francisco, California, Tuesday, where they will make their future home and where Mr. Buckley has secured a responsible position with the Grandeur Music Co. Relatives and friends regret their departure from their midst, but wish them much happiness and good luck in their new home.
