THE HOME OF SATISFACTION

BOX SOCIAL AT HOME OF MR. AND MRS. TODD

Thursday evening, about 7:30, two hay-rack wagon loads of Loyal Sons and Loyal Daughters, of the Christian Sunday School, with Grove Livingston driver of one team and Claude Mayab, driver of the other, with laughter and song, made their way to the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Todd, residing three and a half miles west of the city.

The occasion of the visit of the young people was a box social, the proceeds of which are to be used in the work of the church.

The hayracks with their loads of happy Sons and Daughters, arrived at their destination about 9 o'clock, and festivities immediately commenced. A short time was spent in a social way, then a short program which had been arranged by the committee, was had. Two instrumental duets were played by Misses Isabell and Eleanor Todd. Miss Fannie Will also furnished a piano number. Miss Mildred Cummins gave an entertaining reading, and Mr. John Falter furnished two readings, the entire program was of high merit and much enjoyed by those present.

The boxes were to have been auctioned off by a skilled auctioneer from Omaha, but for some reason best known to himself the auctioneer failed to arrive, and Rev. Ratcliffe was induced to fill the vacancy, and so well did he perform his part that the sale of boxes was a very lively transaction, and the finest box, that of Mrs. Todd, brought the handsome sum of $3.10. Each box contained the name of the lady the owner was expected to share the contents with.

At a very late hour the young people returned to the city, having enjoyed a lovely time, the occasion proving both a social and financial success.

The Brotherhood's Intervention.

(New York Sun, Sept. 27, 1910.)
The railway managers of America, despite the legends of the great political power, have not been strong enough to secure in all cases fair play from legislatures, congresses, commissions and executive. The discontent of practically every railway president in the United States is sufficient proof that the government is not under railway control.

The investing public, which owns the securities of the railways, although more than a million strong and having the sympathetic support of business men generally, has not been strong enough to secure in all cases fair play for the railways. The doubt entertained concerning the value of railway securities is sufficient proof that the government is not under the control of the owners of the railways.

Now enters a third influence to demand fair play for the railways—namely, the employees of the railways. The great railway brotherhoods, through their officers, have prepared a memorial calling attention to the fact that, while everything the railway has to buy—labor and material—has gone up in price, the only thing they sell—transportation,—has gone down, and that this process can not go on indefinitely without menacing railway wages. Will the brotherhoods be able to do what the railway managers and the railway owners have been unable to do—that is, guarantee fair treatment of the railways when rate orders are made?

There is reason for hoping that the railway managers, exercising such legitimate influence as they possess, plus the railway employees, exercising such legitimate influence as they possess, will be strong enough to counterpoise the producers, shippers and middlemen, who demand lower and lower rates without regard to fairness. We may be nearer to an adjustment than we think, and a removal of the shadow that has rested on the railway business—that the public could not be relied on to be just. The intervention of the brotherhoods is of the highest degree important.

The M. P. R. Co.'s Statement.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 21, 1910.
To the officers and other employees of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company and St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern Railway Company:

There are no material differences existing between the railway company and the machinists except the question of the reinstatement of the foremen who went out with the men. The machinists' organization insists upon their reinstatement to the positions they formerly held, which request has been refused.

The right of the railway company to select its officers of whatever rank, including foremen, is one which cannot be relinquished to a labor organization, while the company is held to responsibility for the safety and efficiency of its service.

The action of the other labor organizations to coerce the railway company into compliance with the machinists' demands by threats of a sympathetic strike, in violation of their contract agreements entered into since the machinists' strike was declared, cannot be permitted to influence the company in its determination to maintain control of its business through its own official organization.

C. E. Cook was in the city today looking up some business matters, and informed the agricultural editor that he had just finished putting up the fifth crop of alfalfa cut from his meadow this season. The yield averaged about a ton and a half for each cutting per acre. At the present price of hay, C. E. would pay for a farm of $200 per acre land in two years.

FRIENDS SURPRISE GEO. W. HORN

Birthday Anniversary Celebrated Saturday.

The 22nd of October being the birthday anniversary of Mr. George W. Horn, about thirty-three of his friends assembled at his home and tendered him a more than pleasant surprise. At the noon hour a sumptuous repast was spread in the dining room, which was most temptingly served. It is needless to say aught about the dinner, as it had been prepared by Mrs. Horn, and everything one could think of or wish for was to be found on the tables, which were simply groaning with their burden of eatables. In addition to the superb quality of this most elegant repast, the service was far above the ordinary, being in the hands of Mr. Brown, who devoted himself to making the dinner pass off without a flaw. Mr. Brown in his unaccustomed position as waiter acquitted himself grandly.

Various games and contests, interspersed with social conversation, were indulged in during the afternoon and after wishing Mr. Horn many more happy birthdays, the company dispersed, one and all declaring they had had a glorious time and one which would never be forgotten.

Those in attendance were Messrs. and Mesdames Henry Horn, P. A. Horn, Mrs. W. A. Becker; Misses Nettie Meisinger, Katie, Lulu, Mayme and Adella Hell, Maggie, Katie, Marie and Dora Kaffenberger, Anna Kopla, Bertha Nolting, Viola Becker, Helen, Bernice, Marie, Gracie and Lucile Horn, Helena and Louisa Hennings; Messrs. George P. Horn, J. L. Brown, Ally, Will and William Meisinger, Adam and Roulph Hell, John, George, Fred, Mike and August Kaffenberger, Earl and Floyd Becker, George and Harry Horn.

Some Fine Potatoes.

Our excellent German friend, John Kaufman, residing south of Plattsmouth, has completed his big crop season by raising about 400 bushels of fine potatoes, and they are fine ones, too. He certainly must be pretty well experienced in the new dry farming process, at least he has found sufficient moisture the present season to grow plenty of everything. He brought ten sample potatoes to this office yesterday evening, the finest that we have seen, either grown here or shipped in. They are not the largest in the patch either, for we have been informed that he found a jack rabbit's nest on the inside of one of them. If you do not believe this story, just ask Fritz Olenhausen, who never told a lie in all his life, and he is the one that told us about the nest. He did not tell us that the rabbit had stored away sufficient provisions for the winter. All that we know about this story is that the potatoes are fine, and we have the proof in the ten left at this office.

Tests the Cement.

Chris Baysel, the engineer, went to Omaha this afternoon, taking with his samples of cement to be tested. The concreting will commence next Monday, if the weather permits, and will take about six days to complete. The concrete will have to stand about five days to get properly set before the sand and brick will be placed upon it.

The ditching and laying the water mains has interfered somewhat with the progress of the leveling up, but this is all out of the way now so that the matter can be pushed along. The contract for extending the sewer is not yet signed, and it seems that the bidder is not as anxious for home concerns to get the job as was thought from remarks made. The matter should be let to some other responsible bidder, if the one to whom it was let does not want the work.
