Down in Otec County.

E. J. Steadman and M. A. Bates have won scores of warm friends and supporters by the manly manner in which they have conducted their campaign and they have not made a single pledge they will not keep. They are both men whose word is as good as their bonds and who will stand square on the democratic platform, voting just as it has pledged the people they would, both as to the senator, against option and many other things. They have been tried and can be trusted again.—Nebraska City News.

BOY SCOUTS TO MEET WEDNESDAY EVENING

Boys are required to pass examinations and tests, Wednesday, November 9th. There will be a meeting Wednesday night to take this examination, which consists of committing the scout law, the signs and salutes, to know the history of the stars and stripes, and tie four standard knots, which, when they have passed the examination satisfactorily, and taken the scout's oath, they become tenderfeet for a month before they can become a second-class scout. Examinations and tests are required to pass to the position of second and first-class scouts.

All scouts are requested to be present Wednesday night of this week at 6:30, sharp, to take the following examination:

The scouts' oath is: "I give my word of honor that I will do my best.

1. To do my duty to God and my country.

2. To help other people at all times.

3. To obey the scout law. The scout law is: First, a scout's honor is to be trusted. That is, when a scout says that he will do a thing, he will do it, and when his superior says, "I depend on your honor to do this," he will do it and feel proud, as much as if he had taken an oath to do it. Second, a scout

2. A scout is loyal to president, to his officers, his parents and employers. He will stick to them through thick and thin and be loyal under all circumstances.

3. A scout's duty is to help others, and he will, every day, try to do some good turn for somebody.

5. A scout is courteous and polite to all, especially to women, children, invalids and cripples.

6. A scout is the friend of animals and he will be kind to them, and will not do a cruel thing to any animal.

7. The scout must obey orders of his parents, patrol leader, or scout master, without question.

8. The scout always smiles, too, and it matters not what disagreeable task comes his way, he whistles merrily and smiles, which makes sunshine on the darkest day.

9. A scout is thrifty; he must save something for a rainy day. Not that he should be thought greedy, for that is a disagreeable trait of character, but he must learn to be provident.

To become a scout a boy must be at least twelve years of age and be able to pass the following examination: Know the scout law, signs and salute, know the history of the stars and stripes, to tie four standard knots.

SHERIFF FOILS LYNCHERS

Missourians Chase Man Charged With Assault Into Iowa.

CAUGHT AT PACIFIC JUNCTION.

Harry Barger is Lodged in Council Bluffs Jail Following Alleged Attack on Woman in Atchison County, Missouri, Near Hamburg.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Nov. 7.—Harry Barger, accused of a criminal assault upon Mrs. Chet Baker, residing in Atchison county, Missouri, a few miles southeast of Hamburg, Ia., was captured at Pacific Junction, Ia., and brought to Council Bluffs for the purpose of preventing a posse of pursuing Missourians from lynching him.

Barger was taken from Pacific Junction to Glenwood, Ia., and lodged in the Mills county jail, but when Sheriff Lindeville heard that a band of Missourians, recruited from the neighborhood where the crime was committed, were coming to Glenwood in automobiles to lynch Barger, he placed the prisoner in an auto and sped across the country with him to Council Bluffs, exacting a promise from Sheriff McCaffery not to divulge the fact that the prisoner was in the Council Bluffs jail lest the late Missourians should come up there and finish the job they had undertaken.

Barger was a hired man on a farm near the Baker residence and was acquainted with Mrs. Baker and her family. He went to the house when he knew she would be alone and left her in an insensible condition. He left the place before she recovered and before any member of her family returned. When she regained consciousness she telephoned her brother, having only strength enough to tell him to come to the farm quickly. Her brother used his automobile for a speedy journey. On the way he met Barger coming from the direction of the house, but not knowing what had happened, merely spoke to him in passing. Mrs. Baker told her brother the story, and the farm telephones were quickly used to raise a pursuing party.

Barger was followed, but he got into the hills and went across country, where his pursuers, mostly in automobiles, were unable to follow and they lost him. He came to the vicinity of Pacific Junction, where, partially disguised by a stained face, he found employment husking corn for a farmer named Moore. He was recognized as the possible fugitive and Mills county officers placed him under arrest. An hour after he was brought into Pacific Junction the pursuing Missourians had reached the Moore farm and learned of the arrest. It was then a chase between them and the sheriff, in which the sheriff won by getting his man.

Cowles, a poor and homeless youth from New York, who has developed natural talents while attending Ellsworth college at Iowa Falls, Ia., will come into possession of a fortune of $30,000 left him by Mrs. Dora Bolander, a former Iowa Falls woman. Mrs. Bolander was a childless widow and when she removed from Ackley to Iowa Falls in 1909 she applied to Ellsworth college for a student who would be worthy of help and a home and who could be useful about the house. Cowles, who had come from New York and who was working his way through college, was recommended to her. Two months before her death she made a will, giving to Cowles the bulk of her estate. The only other bequests were two of $1,000 to two nieces, who contested the will. Cowles is still attending college, where he expects to complete his education.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Finger prints were admitted in evidence in a criminal court in Chicago for the first time in the world in an effort to send a human being to the gallows.

Chicago Prosecutor on Trial Before Bar Association.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—State's Attorney Wayman was put on trial before the grievance committee of the Chicago Bar association on charges of jury fixing, made against him by Attorney Charles E. Erbsstein and Arthur McBride.

of meeting Wayman during the trial of George Katz, two years ago, before Wayman became prosecutor. He said Wayman took him to a barrel house, drank whiskey and urged him to bribe a juror in the Katz case. He then testified that he did "fix" this juror, and the result was a verdict of acquittal for Wayman's client.

The name of the juror Wayman is alleged to have "fixed" through McBride was finally brought out after an hour's argument. McBride said it was Frank Ware, the committee ordering him to reply to the questions as to the name after repeated objections by Attorney Erbsstein. It was stated that a lawyer and two detectives were sent by Erbsstein to the Pacific coast to bring Ware back to Chicago, when the trial will be resumed and sensational exposures are expected.
