EASTER SUNDAY VERY APPROPRIATELY OBSERVED IN PLATTSMOUTH CHURCHES

The Presbyterian, Methodist and St. Luke's Church Have Programs Especially Prepared for the Event and the Weather Propitious for the Occasion.

Easter dawned beautiful and bright, and the weather continued lovely throughout the entire day. Everyone seemed happy in the thought that the day was very propitious for the donning of that Easter hat or new Easter suit. The churches that had special programs for the occasion were largely attended. Below we give a synopsis of what was done at several of the churches:

At St. Paul's Church.
Easter Sunday brought out a very large congregation to the St. Paul's Evangelical church. The church was tastefully decorated with ferns and carnations. The choir rendered two beautiful German hymns under the leadership of Mr. Wesch.

Mr. Steger delivered a very impressive sermon appropriate for the day. After the services the Lord's Supper was held, there being nearly 100 communicants. The Easter offering was very large, it amounting to $103.50.

At St. Luke's Church.
Easter services were fittingly observed at St. Luke's church yesterday, the church being beautifully decorated with smilax, ferns and Easter lilies in front of the pulpit and about the altar, and each pew was decorated with white carnations. The Sir Knights Templar were present in a body and occupied seats in the auditorium reserved for them. The special music consisted of the "Te Deum Laudamus," in which the solo parts were taken by Miss Edna Peterson and Mr. H. S. Austin. And an Easter anthem, "As It Began to Dawn," in which Miss Gretchen Donnelly sang the solo part. The music was well rendered, each singer doing his or her part very creditably.

The sermon by Rev. Burgess was especially well timed to the occasion, and in paying a fine tribute to the visiting Sir Knights Canon Burgess made a touching reference to the chair made vacant by the death of the late Mr. F. S. White, and read an original poem eulogistic of the departed knight.

The above refers to the services at 11 a. m. Interesting and appropriate services were held in the early morn at 8 o'clock and at 7:30 in the evening.

One of the striking features of the decorations was the curtain, made of green foliage, the material of which had been very kindly donated by Mr. L. A. Moore, the curtain being constructed by the committee of ladies in charge of the decorations, after which it was placed by Mr. Moore. It was a most handsome piece of decoration and surely something out of the ordinary.

Another feature was that each pew was decked with three white carnations and three ferns tied with white ribbons. This morning the committee in charge distributed the flowers among the sick and the shut-in of the church, as has been customary.

At the Methodist Church.
The glad Easter celebration began with the Sunday school at the M. E. church yesterday morning, the lesson period was preceded by a program consisting of recitations, exercises, duets and a chorus by the Sunday school choir.

The church was tastefully decorated, the words, "Easter Greeting" were suspended from the archway. A mammoth geranium stood in front of the pulpit, potted plants were interspersed about the platform wherever there was a vacant place, and twenty or more Easter lilies nodded their beautiful faces toward the happy children in the auditorium. The attendance at the Sunday school was large, there being 228 present. The junior department took possession of its room in the basement for the first time yesterday.

The morning service was largely attended, the membership gladly greeting their pastor after a recess of five weeks. Rev. Austin preached a powerful discourse on "The Life Beyond," the context being concerning the Jews who criticized Jesus' teachings of the resurrection, and asked the Savior whose wife a certain woman would be in the next world, when she had been the wife of seven brothers in succession. Rev. Austin elaborated on this branch of his theme, leaving with his auditors the statement that the spiritual life would be so far in advance of the physical there would be no thought of the environment which surrounded men on earth. Two persons were received into the church. The league service was conducted by Mrs. Edna Westcott, the topic of the meeting being that of missions.

The evening congregation was larger than usual and the service very interesting. Rev. Austin spoke on the theme of the "Comforting Christ," the text being, "It Is I, Be Not Afraid." An Easter anthem was sung both morning and evening. Mrs. E. H. Westcott sang a solo and the Glee club sang "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me."

At the Presbyterian Church.
A large congregation greeted Rev. L. W. Gade at the Presbyterian church at the opening of the morning service yesterday. The choir rendered two Easter anthems and Mrs. Edna Eaton a solo, accompanied by Miss Verna Cole, with pipe organ, and Mrs. Will Troop with violin. The violin in the skillful hands of Mrs. Troop added much to the special music.

Rev. Gade delivered a short Easter discourse, which was full of hope and comfort to the believers. Among other things Rev. Gade said: "Easter festival is the largest observed of all the Christian festivals on the calendar. It brings into view the resurrection of our Savior and through Him the resurrection of the dead. Church ritualism and church formalism cannot destroy the power of its value. The Greek church, the church of Rome and all Protestant denominations join in hailing the Redeemer's triumph from the tomb. Jesus and the resurrection has been the glad theme of preachers and worshippers, poets and philosophers, for nineteen hundred years. Easter can never be forgotten for it celebrates Christ's glorious resurrection and complete triumph over all the powers of death and hell. It marks God's approval of the sacrifice and atonement made on Calvary's cross. When we echo of Easter there comes the echo to heaven and earth of Christ's triumphant words, uttered in the darkest of earth's shadows, 'It is finished.'"

After a clear and convincing presentation of the proofs of Christ's resurrection, Rev. Gade said: "Over the arched gateway to one of our great cemeteries in the east is inscribed the words, 'Until the daybreak and the shadows flee away.' How fitting are these words to us who come in and lay our beloved dead from sight, and go our way to rejoice in a glorious resurrection. The risen Christ keeps us. He leads us through life's dusty way when it is dim and dark; He carries us across earth's deepest chasms; He holds our hand that our footsteps slip not, and He rests us to sleep—the sleep that men call death—and keeps us 'until the daybreak and the shadows flee away.' In the resurrection of Christ is the hope of our resurrection and reunion with our friends. Our mother, our father, our brothers and sisters went out from us on that long-distant afternoon. They went into the shadows, and in the hope of Easter morning, I ask you, was it death or dawn? When you visit that loved spot, where the grass grows refreshingly green in the springtime, across which sweeps the summer zephyrs, and where you delight to plant sweet flowers, when you visit that spot, I fancy there comes to you the blessed thought:

"When I go home I hope to see A little face look up at me, Unchanged from what it used to be;

When I go home, 'Easter gives this greeting light,"

At the close of the sermon two young men were received into the church, after which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed.

AN EXCITING RUNAWAY NOT YET CHRONICLED

The Assessor of Rock Bluffs Precinct Has a Joy Ride Not Anticipated.

As the assessor of Rock Bluffs precinct was making his rounds listing the personal belongings and chattels of the citizens of his precinct last week in his single buggy and behind his trusty gray nag, he unexpectedly took a joy ride which he had not counted on.

As the assessor was descending one of the gentle slopes which abound in the eastern part of the precinct, the bit in the mouth of his foaming charger gave way and left nothing with which the officer could check its speed. The buggy and the assessor crowded down upon the mare, and the faster she went the more frightened she became, and at the first farm house passed she turned in and nearly ran over the lady of the house. Nothing seemed to check the frightened animal, and on she sped until she came in collision with the pig pen, into which the gray, with the buggy and driver still intact, plunged, and where she was stopped.

There was no particular damage done, unless to the feelings of the joy rider himself, as nothing was broken but the bridle bit.

CROSSED THE RIVER FIFTY-FOUR YEARS AGO TODAY

An Interesting Bit of History Related by Judge J. W. Johnson.

Judge J. W. Johnson, in conversation with the writer this morning, stated that fifty-four years ago today he crossed the Missouri river, landing at the foot of Main street. He had just finished the journey on foot across the state of Iowa, and he, with two companions, named Russell VanFleet and Joseph H. Cox, within the next three days after landing on this side of the river, went a few miles out west of town and located on a quarter of government land each.

Judge Johnson remembers the year very distinctly, it being the year of the panic of 1857, when banks everywhere were going to the wall, and there was not much in sight to eat except grass. Mr. VanFleet returned to Pennsylvania when his title was secured, while Mr. Cox afterward removed to Council Bluffs, where he died. The quarter entered by Mr. VanFleet was transferred to Mr. Ragoos, who still owns the quarter, there having been but one transfer in fifty-four years.

SUPPOSED TO BE A REVOLUTIONARY WAR RELIC

In the window of J. C. York's barber shop this morning could be seen a knapsack and powder horn of ancient make. The knapsack is of leather and on the fastening was a bronze disk on which is the image of an American eagle holding three arrows in one of its talons and an olive branch in the other. In the pocket was a brass belt and an ornament containing the same design. The relic was brought to Mr. York's shop by a Mr. Baker, who told its history in part, stating that it had been snatched from the body of a dead Indian by a man named Bates during an engagement of the Revolutionary war, and by Bates carried into a fort.

GREAT IMPROVEMENTS AT MAJESTIC THEATER

Manager Schlaes Will Have a Most Beautiful and Enticing Place of Amusement.

Manager R. M. Schlaes of the Majestic is contemplating making quite a lot of improvements at his popular theater. The front will be repainted, Mr. Frank Gobelman doing the job.

In addition to this, Mr. Schlaes has let to Mr. M. M. Beal the contract for painting the lobby and frescoing the ceiling and papering the side walls, as well as the auditorium, which will be repainted, repapered and the ceiling frescoed. Mr. Schlaes will not stop with this, but will procure rubber carpet for the aisles and the lobby and the front will be lighted with a large arc light in the center of the lobby or two smaller incandescents in each window.

No expense will be spared to make an artistic and inviting room, where the public can go and enjoy its evenings. The work on these improvements will be commenced right away and pushed as rapidly as possible. There is nothing too good for the patrons of the Majestic, is the way of Mr. Schlaes' thinking.
