The ball game here between

George Shackley is busy hanging paper. If you need his serving paper, Weeping Water and the home team was an exciting one from start to finish, and not until the last man was out was the game decided. The home team had the lead until the seventh inning, when the game was tied. In the ninth inning, with two out, a wild throw let in two runs for the visitors, which was enough to win. Avoca came back with one score, losing the game by a score of 3 to 4. The game was a dandy and deserved a better attendance. It costs money to play ball, so when the next game is played try and attend and help the boys out in a financial way. The score: Weeping Water 0 0 0 0 1 1 0 2—4 Avoca 1 1 0 0 0 0 0 1—3

FINE TIME AT THE HOME OF HENRY KAUFMAN

Large Number of Guests Present and All Were Royally Entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kaufman, residing south of the city, invited a few of their friends in Sunday and a picnic was enjoyed. As a part of the amusement for the gentlemen a fat pig was raffled off, the condition of the raffle being that the winner should get a case of beer, which was already on the ground, which, with a case furnished by Mr. Kaufman, would supply the liquid refreshments for the occasion. Mr. Chris Tschirren was the lucky holder of the ticket which drew the pig. He immediately traded the pig to Ed Donat for two cases of beer, one for himself and one for the party. The shoat was brought to Plattsmouth Monday and delivered to Mr. Donat. It is rumored that other parties had their eye on the shoat and had planned to "swipe" it and had their wagon backed up to Mr. Kaufman's rig, ready to load the pig when a photographer was discovered with his camera trained on the group, and the whole scheme was abandoned.

A fine time was had. Supper was served at 6 o'clock at the Kaufman home. The picnic was enjoyed by the following: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Egenberger and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McDonald and daughter, Ellen Belle; Mr. and Mrs. C. Tschirren, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Warga, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Nelson, Mrs. A. H. Welebach, Mr. and Mrs. H. Tekoetter and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Egenberger and son, Stewart; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sattler and son, Johnnie, and Mrs. Pritte; Misses Tressa Hempel, Bertha and Gladys Nelson, Jeannette Weber, Mathilda, Nettie and Dora Kaufman; Messrs. August Gorder, Pete Goos, A. Geise, Fred Kaufman, Louie Liner, Ed Donat, A. Welsch, C. Wolfarth, John Weighman, John Jess, William Budig, Pete Euv, John Kaufman and Ed Egenberger. Mr. Demmie Hiatt was present and took some very interesting views of the party.
