and will run longer without losing than is possible when set the old hot way!

You will not be out the use of your vehicle, as it requires but a few moments to do the work!

- No charred surface to wear away and loose the tire.
- No overdriving wheels or slitting felloes or cutting out too much of the rim.
- The BROOKS sets them in a mechanical and scientific way.

(The United States Government finds the cold process the best and has adopted the BROOKS at the shops of the U. S. Forts and the Department of the Interior.)

Don't Neglect It!

The damage to your wheels by running them with loose tires for one day may amount to much more than the cost of re-setting them. Let us set them as soon as you discover they are loose. Keep them tight and your wheels will last longer at less expense and much less annoyance and chance of a break-down or accident.

All work absolutely guaranteed, if not return and get your money back.

THE WIFE'S TEN COMMANDMENTS

Modern Decalogue Drawn Up by the Queen of Roumania.

- Thou shalt not cause the first quarrel, but if unavoidable, fight it through bravely. To be victor in the first domestic quarrel may have a tendency to elevate thee in thy husband's mind for all future.
- Thou shalt not forget that thou hast married a man, not a god. Therefore be not surprised by his frailties.
- Thou shalt not always talk money to thine husband. Rather try to get along on the allowance he maketh thee.
- If thou considerest thine husband heartless, remember that, verily, he hath a stomach. By persistently appealing to his stomach with well cooked meals thou mayest, after all, touch his heart.
- Once in a great while, but not too often, thou shalt let him have the last word. It tickleth him and will not do thee any harm.
- Thou shalt read the whole newspaper and magazine, not merely the stories dealing with scandal and society. Thine husband will be pleasantly surprised to find, off and on, that he can talk on general topics and even on politics with his wife.
- Thou shalt not be rude even when quarreling with thy husband. Forget not that at one time in thy life thou didst consider him little short of a demigod.

8. Thou shalt, from time to time, allow thine husband to know a little more than thyself, admitting that thou are not infallible all through.

9. If thine husband is a smart man thou shalt be his friend; if he is not, thou shalt be both counselor and friend to him.

10. Thou shalt esteem thy husband's relatives, especially his mother. Remember that she loved him long before you didst.

Place for Plattsmouth Ad.

The beautiful little plot of ground south of the Burlington station would be an excellent place for the Burlington to erect a white stone with the name of our city upon it. It would be a nice advertisement for the town, beside imparting information to travelers who have lost track of their folder and would obviate the necessity of an inquiry as to what town the stranger is in when he reaches the foot of Main street.

A GOOD MOVE IN THE DIRECTION OF HOME ADVERTISING

Every Business Man Should Patronize Home Print Shops, Instead of Foreign Fakers.

The York News, commenting upon the recent move of Hastings merchants, relative to doubtful advertising propositions, says:

"Hastings business men have signed an agreement by which they refuse to patronize what they designate as doubtful advertising schemes. Many of the devices which are hereafter to be tabooed have been under the ban in York for some time; but some on the list are occasionally met with. The things the Hastings men declare they will not support or patronize under any circumstances are enumerated as follows: The city directory, unless the same is published in Hastings; hotel registers, desk cards, room cards and similar devices; newspaper schemes of every character, when presented by promoters or agents other than those regularly employed by Hastings papers; cook books, society and church programs, time cards and similar devices; theater tickets, theater programs, society programs, restaurant programs, restaurant tickets, baseball score cards, etc.; irregular publications and circulars issued wholly or chiefly for advertising purposes. This paragraph shall not be interpreted to prohibit circulars issued directly by merchants.

"Relieved of feeling that they must spend money in these questionable forms of publicity, the merchants of Hastings ought to be in a position to patronize legitimate advertising mediums with good effect. The main thing to be considered in placing advertising is that it appears where it will be read and read by as many people as possible. The newspaper fulfills this condition better than any other known institution."

D. Ward King's Epigrams.

Good roads are a matter of good heads; get the heads of the people right and the roads will take care of themselves.

The best material for filling a mud hole is mud.

The sort of a drag you use doesn't make so much difference; anything you can hitch a team to will make the roads better, if you have a man to drive it.

Let the man alone who won't drag his road. He has his reward—the neighbors sneer at him, his doctor throws it up to him, and once in awhile an unrighteous traveling man curses him.

The more a road is rounded up in the middle, the better it will stand up through a wet spell.

Nine times out of ten a man doesn't drag his road for fear someone he doesn't like will get the benefit of it.

You can't poison a hog, and some men won't take the good roads fever.

Some people want their corn shelled. You can't have a rounded-up road and one that the horses won't slip on when wet.
