REV. LEW WALLACE GADE PAYS MAGNIFICENT TRIBUTE TO OLD VETERANS

Very Appropriate Services Held at the Presbyterian Church Previous to the Decorating of the Soldier's Graves, Which Latter Services Were Conducted by Little Girls.

From Friday's Daily.

The morning was fair and pleasant yesterday and the line of march for the Decoration day service was formed near the G. A. R. hall, as announced in the Journal. The W. R. C., the G. A. R. and the city officials all participated in the procession to the church, where the service was commenced at 9:15. On the platform was the commander of McConihie post, Edwin Bates; President of the W. R. C. Mrs. Cowles, Superintendent N. C. Abbott, Mayor J. P. Sattler, Rev. L. W. Gade, orator of the day; Mrs. George Dodge and Rev. A. L. Zink. Superintendent Abbott presided.

The service was opened by a prayer by Rev. Zink. The Glee club, with Miss Verna Cole at the organ, sang "The Call to Arms." Mrs. George Dodge then read Lincoln's address at the dedication of the battlefield of Gettysburg as a national cemetery. After the reading the Glee club sang a medley in which many of the war-time airs were blended. The old songs seemed to stir memories of the dark days of the rebellion, and many eyes were moist with the tears which recollection caused to spring unbidden to the eyes. Mr. Abbott then announced the speaker, and Rev. Gade began his address, preceding his discourse with a few preliminary remarks in which he expressed his appreciation of the honor the post had conferred upon him by inviting him to address them, and spoke in part as follows:

I am glad to speak to you old soldiers of the rebellion in commemoration of our soldier dead—of the patriotism of those who fell in battle by your side. This is a time for sentiment, a time for flowers, a time for tears. It is because of you men and your comrades dead that our Union stands one and undivided. Had it not been for the heroism of you men Ne Plus Ultra would have been inscribed on our country's future.

While out in our city's cemetery yesterday I saw an old monument, and by careful scrutiny I read the words, "gone home," but time had well nigh worn them away. The greatest monument that this nation has erected in honor of the brave men of the '60's is more lasting than the enduring marble. It is a monument of memory and memory never dies.

I have an optimistic view of this republic. I do not believe with some that the seeming spirit of unrest is pushing us toward the verge of ruin. I do not believe with those who are wont to say that this republic is fast running its course. It is yet in its infancy, and its greater and grander day is yet to come. And as the men of the '60's went forward with the blood of the revolutionary fathers coursing through their veins, so should a foe arise within or without threatening the vitals of this Union, the men of this day with the blood of the fathers of the civil war coursing through their veins, would go forward to give their life's blood to wash every stain from the stars and stripe of Old Glory.

were to withstand in the hours of awful struggle?

Disasters filled the land with horror. Armies moved according to his orders. Loud were the clamors against him, but out of the darkness and chaos and confusion of public sentiment there shone the light of victory; and in the midst of tempestuous fury, from the weariness of public trials and personal threats, we hear the tired president, the friend of the lowly, the leader of the great, the lover of the nation; supremus maximus—the greatest American—"he who spoke rebellion and liberty to the stars"—we hear him declare, "All that I am or may be I owe to my sainted mother." He believed in freedom and the equality of man at a time when American ideals seemed to be fading away, "and when the time came," said one, "that the world wanted a great man, a new trail led them out through the woods, up the hill to the log cabin, and the world walked up and rapped on the door—Abraham Lincoln, so big, so high, so tall, was at home."

I want you old soldiers to know that you are not going to be forgotten. Your sacrifices are going to be remembered. Rest assured that your deeds of heroism will be recited by preacher, and poet, and orator, until time shall be no more. And each recurring spring-time, when the birds sing and the flowers bloom, the children of this generation, and of generations yet unborn with affectionate hands, will gather earth's sweetest and fairest flowers, and twine them into wreaths of love and garlands of beauty in memory of the brave men who faced the frowning battle's front.

Now let them sleep, our fallen heroes, both of the blue and the gray—sectionalism and strife all gone, and the nation's discord silenced into peace. Let the summer flowers, with waving branch and golden blossoms and crimson hues, crown their last resting place in our cemeteries, in wooded glens, by mountain river, stream and sea. There let them rest beneath the sod—the blue and the gray, until God shall call them from their long sleep.

At the close of Rev. Gade's oration the Glee club sang "Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground," and Rev. W. L. Austin pronounced the benediction. The audience was requested to stand in their places while the G. A. R. and W. R. C. and the city officials marched out. Conveyances were provided for them to the cemetery. The procession was again formed under the direction of Captain Morrison, and proceeded to the cemetery, where the W. R. C. held the service for the "Unknown Dead." The service was conducted by Mrs. Cowles, president of the society, and the beautiful ritual of the order was used.

The members of the W. R. C. circled about the mound erected for the ceremony, while inside the circle were the fifteen little girls, the committee on decoration. A larger outer circle was formed by the members of McConihie post G. A. R. and the three circles joined in the service. After a prayer by Rev. A. L. Zink, the committee on decoration performed their task of strewing flowers on the graves of every soldier buried in Oak Hill and the Holy Sepulcher cemeteries.

Since last Decoration day seven new graves have been dug in the cemetery and the roster of the soldiers dead increased by that number. Those added during the last year were: John Duke, David Hawksworth, James Hickson, H. C. McMaken, A. L. Buzzell, William Dull and L. W. Lloyd. The list as furnished the Journal last year was as follows:

In the Toils Again.

Fred Ohm, jr., has violated the statute to keep the peace again, and yesterday at Louisville was arrested and taken before the justice, where he was placed under a $500 bond, which he could not furnish. Ohm was convicted of disturbing the peace and threatening his wife, whom he put in fear by his abusive actions and language. In default of the bond the prisoner was brought to Plattsmouth this morning on No. 4 by Town Marshal Cam Seybert, and thrown in the Cass county jail, there to remain until he can furnish a bond.

MRS. CONRAD SCHLATER GONE TO HER REWARD

Last Sad Rites Over the Remains of a Most Esteemed Pioneer Lady.

From Friday's Daily.

It is the sad duty of the Journal to again chronicle the death of a highly esteemed and greatly respected pioneer woman of this city in the person of Mrs. Mary Josephine Donelan Schlater, who died at the home of her son, ex-County Treasurer Frank E. Schlater, on North Fifth street, Wednesday evening, and her funeral occurred this morning at 10:30 from St. John's Catholic church.

Mary Josephine Donelan was born September 28, 1831, in Abington, Wayne county, Indiana, and was in her 81st year. She was sick but a short time, having been in her usual health until about two weeks ago, when she suffered from a stroke of paralysis, from which she only partially rallied, and has lingered between life and death during the time since her first attack.

Her girlhood was spent in her native county in Indiana, where she was married to Conrad Schlater July 9, 1856, and together with her husband came to Plattsmouth in the spring of 1859, where they resided for about 11 years. In 1870 the family removed to Mr. Schlater's farm near Louisville, where they resided for twenty-seven years, and in 1897 returned to Plattsmouth, which has ever since been her home. Her husband died March 18, 1910, since which time Mrs. Schlater has resided with her son, F. E. Schlater.

She leaves surviving three children, Mrs. Joseph Tighe of Havelock, Mrs. Ed Fitzgerald and Frank E. Schlater, and numerous nephews and nieces and several grandchildren. She was a devoted member of St. John's Catholic church and possessed a noble Christian character and her kindly, genial disposition endeared her to every one who came within the circle of her acquaintance. She was a loving parent, a loyal friend and an obliging neighbor and her sphere of usefulness in the community in which she lived was a wide one. She was one of the noble band of pioneer women who helped to make Plattsmouth and Cass county what they are.

The funeral occurred at 10:30 this morning at St. John's Catholic church, which was crowded with sorrowing friends and neighbors, many of them coming from Louisville and other places to take a last look at one whom they loved and esteemed so highly.

The requiem high mass was celebrated, Father Shine being assisted by Father Bradley of Lincoln and Father Vleck of Holy Rosary church, Plattsmouth. Father Bradley preached the funeral discourse. Interment was made in the family lot in Holy Sepulcher cemetery. The pallbearers were: James Stander, Henry Goos, Thomas Walling, Joe Droege, Columbus G. Neff and James Mauzy.

Sarpy County Officials Here.

Sheriff Grant Chase and County Commissioner J. G. Pflug of Sarpy county motored across the bridge yesterday and paid Plattsmouth a visit. Mr. Pflug is a pleasant gentleman to meet, and he has the honor of being the first republican county commissioner elected in Sarpy county for thirty-one years. He states that the Sarpy county board will do all that it can to make a good road to the Pollock-Duff bridges across the Platte river, and that the half mile or more of sand between the north end of the bridge and La Platte will be mixed with good clay and a good road made of it. Mr. Pflug spoke very complimentary of the road on this side provided by the Cass county commissioners, stating that it was a fine piece of road, taking a straight course from the end of the bridge toward Plattsmouth.

The Journal office carries all kinds of typewriter supplies.

LARGE PARTY TO TOUR OVER OMAHA-PLATTSMOUTH-KANSAS CITY ROUTE

Committee of Good Road Boosters to Pass Through This City on Friday, June 7th, Enroute to Kansas City—T. H. Pollock of This City and R. A. Duff of Nebraska City to Join Party

On Friday, June 7, 1912, a good roads committee of the Omaha Commercial club will start on a booster campaign for good roads and will pass through this city, reaching Plattsmouth at 8:30. T. H. Pollock and R. A. Duff will go to Omaha the evening before and join in the excursion.

S. A. Searle, president of the Good Roads association, elected at the Plattsmouth meeting at the bridge opening last fall, is boosting the automobile trip to start next Friday, with all the energy of which he is capable. He has written Mr. Pollock that he will be unable to join the party, very much to his regret, but that his daughter graduates from an eastern seminary about that time and he has promised his wife to be present with her on that occasion.

There is considerable rivalry among western towns at this time concerning the establishment of automobile routes over the new courses, and a little effort put forth right at this time will be of a vast amount of benefit in the future.

Any owner of a car who would like to join the excursion will be welcomed and it would please the committee greatly if they could increase their procession by ten or a dozen cars from this county. The object is to mark the course from Omaha to Kansas City; the Omaha party will bring with them markers and all the necessary data, which will be placed in the hands of the committee before leaving Omaha. Following the schedule, starting from Omaha June 7:

Miles.	Town.	Time.
14	La Platte	8:00 a. m.
20	Plattsmouth	8:30 a. m.

The Omaha Automobile club is joining in every effort to boost for the Scenic Route, and only a day or two ago the president of the club received a letter from the Denver good roads boosters, who leave Denver next week with a party of twenty-five machines, to make the run to Omaha and then to Kansas City, informing the Omaha club that their route lay through Council Bluffs, thence south through Iowa to Kansas City. Immediately the president of the Omaha club wrote the Denver boosters to try the Scenic Route, telling them the advantages over the Iowa side, and at the same time wrote to T. H. Pollock, president of the Plattsmouth Commercial club, informing him of the proposed trip of the Denver boosters. Mr. Pollock at once wrote them, sending them a map of the new Scenic Route and gave them many reasons why the party should come this way. It would be a big thing for our city if the automobile traffic can be turned our way.

A VERY PLEASANT HOME WEDDING

Miss Helen Travis United in Marriage to Mr. Archibald George Cole.

From Friday's Daily.

A very pretty home wedding took place Thursday afternoon, May 30, at the home of Judge and Mrs. H. D. Travis, when their only daughter, Miss Helen, was united in marriage with Mr. Archibald George Cole of Plainview, Neb.

The sweet song, "Because I Love You Dear," sung by Miss Helen Chapman, with Miss Estelle Baird at the piano, preceded the wedding march, which ushered in the bridal party. Mr. Cole, accompanied by Raymond Travis, brother of the bride, entered the library and was followed by the bride on the arm of her father, Judge Travis.

The solemn and impressive ring ceremony, which united the young couple, was read by Rev. Lew W. Gade, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The bride wore a wedding gown of embroidered voile over chiffon taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Helen grew to womanhood in this city, is a graduate of our local High school and the state university, and was afterward a successful teacher in our home High school.

Mr. Cole is a graduate of the Ohio State university, but has been for the past ten years a resident of Pierce county, Nebraska. He is a successful lawyer of Plainview and a young man of high standing in his home community.

Many beautiful and costly remembrances from the friends present will be cherished by Mr. and Mrs. Cole in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Cole left on No. 2 for Chicago last evening, and from there will go to the lake region of northern Wisconsin. After July 1 they will be at home at Plainview, Neb. The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mote of Plainview, Mr. Mote is a prominent banker of that city; Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wolcott and Mrs. H. B. Wolcott of Weeping Water; Misses Minnie Palmer and Irene Riley of Omaha; Mrs. Z. L. Hiddlecom and daughter of Havelock; Miss Laura Hassemire of Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Christie Metzgar of Mynard and Miss Amelia Metzgar of Cedar Creek.

One of the pleasant features preceding the Travis-Cole wedding was a handkerchief shower and luncheon given for Miss Travis by Miss Pearl Staats on Monday afternoon.

Making Too Much Speed.

J. V. Stradley, a traveling salesman of Greenwood, Neb., received serious and perhaps fatal injuries Wednesday morning when the automobile in which he was riding turned a double somersault at a point one and one-half miles northwest of Raymond. The injured man is now resting easily at a hospital in Lincoln and Stradley is suffering from a broken collarbone, a fracture at the base of the skull and severe contusions about the hip and back. It is thought that he also sustained internal injuries. The accident happened at about 11 o'clock in the morning. Stradley was driving a two-seated car and was just passing the farm house of H. H. Forke. It is related that as the machine struck a culvert it shot upward, turned two complete revolutions in the air, and finally landed at the side of the road. It was traveling at a high rate of speed, so that when it touched earth again it was completely demolished. Although the driver was thrown some distance, he did not lose consciousness.—Ashland Gazette.
