

GOOD Ready-Made CLOTHES for Men

never cost so little money as right today, despite the high cost of living. Do you believe it? Come in and we will demonstrate the truth of the assertion.

Such clothes as our Quality Clothes from $20 to $35 could not be had at all a few years ago outside the high priced custom tailor. A suit today at $15 possesses more value than a $20 formerly did, and we are selling suits for $7.50 and $10 that you could not buy in the times of 16c corn as good as these. Any way you can figure it you can buy better clothing today for the money than ever before in your life. Come and see.

Band of Mercy Meets.

The Band of Mercy held their regular meeting at the home of Miss Gertrude Ramsey Saturday afternoon. During the regular business session the election of officers was held, at which time the following were elected: Nora Livingston, president; Mary Rosenerans, vice president; Elizabeth Beeson, secretary and organist; Mariel Straight, treasurer and librarian. Following the election of officers the president read some animal stories. At the next meeting the lesson will be about cats. Every member is requested to tell a true story about a cat. There were seventeen members present. Everyone spent a lovely afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held June 22 at the home of Miss Mary Egenberger.

Fine Ceiling Work.

Kroehler Brothers, with their staff of up-to-date workmen, have been doing considerable ceiling work about the city during the past few months, and among the last two exceptionally fine contracts just completed is the one on the new Gem moving picture theater, to be opened by Manager Schlaes tonight. The patrons of this theater will please take notice of the work on this job, as it is an exceptionally fine piece of steel ceiling. The other one just completed by Messrs. Kroehler & Kroehler is that on the Ed Donat saloon building, which adds a great deal to the appearance of the room and reflects great credit upon the workmanship of those placing it there.

Has Finger Amputated.

Anton Svoboda, an employe of the local Burlington shops, had the misfortune Saturday morning while at work unloading iron at the new scrap pile near the lumber office, to get two of his fingers caught and so badly mashed that one of them had to be amputated. Anton was lifting at one end of a drawbar yoke when it was shoved upon him in such a manner as to catch his right hand and crush two fingers, as above related. The injury was dressed as speedily as possible and the hand made as comfortable as it could be under the painful circumstances. Anton will take a lay-off of several days, no doubt, on account of the accident.

A. O. U. W. Hold Memorial.

At the A. O. U. W. hall yesterday morning at 10 o'clock the members of the Plattsmouth lodges met to do honor to the memory of their dead brothers. Rev. W. L. Austin delivered the memorial address, taking for his subject "In Memory." The discourse was a very eloquent tribute to the deceased fraternal brothers, and was listened to with the greatest interest. After the discourse of Rev. Austin, a committee appointed for the purpose went to the cemetery and decorated with flowers the graves of the departed brothers. There was a good turnout, considering the threatening weather.

Dance a Success.

The dance under the auspices of the Cosmopolitan club at Coates' hall Saturday evening was very largely attended and was a pronounced success. There was a large number of young people present from Pacific Junction, Glenwood and Cedar Creek. The music was furnished by the popular M. W. A. orchestra.

VILLAGES MAY BE DESTROYED

Steamer Passes Through Hall of Ashes Of Alaskan Shore.

POISONOUS GASES ENVELOP.

Passengers Nearly Stifled by Fumes From Volcano and Boat Hurries Fifty Miles Out to Sea for Fresh Air. Earthquakes Disturb Water.

Seward, Alaska, June 10.—Passengers on the mail steamer Dora, which arrived from the west, after passing through a hail of ashes from Katmai volcano, believe that several small fishing villages on the shores of Shelikof strait were destroyed by the eruption. The revenue cutter service at Uplaska has been asked to send assistance.

The Dora steamed into the harbor early, the white covering of ashes giving it the appearance of a phantom ship.

The people on the steamer as it passed through the falling ashes were nearly suffocated by poisonous gases. In Sight of Eruption.

The Dora was in sight of Katmai when the eruption began and those on the vessel witnessed a brilliant spectacle. It was 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the mountain was in plain view. Frequently earthquakes disturbed the water of the strait, when suddenly a terrific explosion occurred in the mountain and a great mass of rocks was thrown into the air. The first explosion was followed by others in quick succession, each seemingly more terrific than the one preceding. Soon a steady stream of rocks and ashes poured from the peak and spread far over the surrounding country, obscuring the sun and shutting the troubled mountain from sight.

At 4 o'clock when the Dora was seventy miles from the volcano, total darkness came and ashes began to fall in thick clouds upon the deck, covering it with a white layer three inches deep.

Passengers Become Ill.

The stifling atmosphere made the passengers violently ill. Throughout the night the Dora steamed through the dust-laden air, and was rocked by the earthquakes that lashed the water while the mountain thundered menacingly in the distance.

At 5 o'clock Friday morning the Dora having steamed fifty miles out of the course, clear air was reached and the passengers were able to breathe freely again. Looking back, they could see the column of smoke and ashes still pouring out of the volcano.

The Dora was engulfed in darkness again Saturday as it neared Seldovia and felt its way carefully to Seward.

The volcanic disturbance is the most violent ever recorded in Alaska. It is estimated that an area of 300 square miles, much of it fertile territory, has been covered to a depth of several inches by the volcanic ash.

Volcanoes Still in Action.

Seattle, Wash., June 10.—Three slight earthquake shocks were recorded on the seismograph at the University of Washington, indicating that the volcanic disturbance in southwestern Alaska, which has agitated the instruments in observatories throughout the United States in the last few days, still is in progress, but is slowly subsiding.

The volcanic disturbance has completely paralyzed wireless communication in the north, and it is impossible to get definite information concerning conditions on Kodiak, Raspberry and Afogniak islands, the three most important islands in southwestern Alaska.

Of the four volcanoes reported in eruption, Katmai, long believed extinct, is considered most dangerous, overlooking, as it does, Shelikof strait, the strip of water that separates the islands from the Alaska peninsula.

FORM NEW POWER COMPANY

Lincoln Capitalists Back Koenig's Columbus Project.

Lincoln, June 10.—The Commonwealth Power company filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state with a capital stock of $7,500,000 fully paid up. It took a fee of $3,751.25 to get its articles filed.

The articles of incorporation show that the corporation expects to do a general business in acquiring and developing water power for heating and lighting purposes and water for irrigation. Headquarters of the company will be in Lincoln, but the power will be secured from the Loup river above Columbus. This is the power site which is in controversy before the supreme court and is known as the Koenig company.

Kosher Meat Riots in Chicago.

Chicago, June 10.—Police responded to fifty riot calls in the Ghetto to quell disturbances due to the kosher meat boycott. Nobody was seriously injured, and but few arrests were made. A number of mass meetings were held to protest against the high price of meat and fowl. "Wrecking crews," composed of dozens of Jewish women, made a tour of the kosher meat shops in the districts and poured kerosene on chickens exposed for sale.
