The High school proposition for this and the surrounding district was defeated, although unanimously carried in this district. The outside districts voted against it.

Hiatt & Tutt received many answers to their small ad in the Journal last week, in regard to the excavation of their 20x80-foot deep cellar. The leading question seem to be what the boys were going to do with such a cellar. One man even called to see about furnishing them with an elevator. Well, they got the desired figures and the cellar will be dug, but will not be eighty feet deep.

Postoffice Inspector Henry E. Randall was in Murray last week checking over the Murray postoffice. He found everything to be in the usual tip-top shape. This is the manner in which Postmaster Baker conducts the business of Uncle Sam, and they will never find it otherwise. With the establishing of the postal savings bank in Murray more work and a separate account is added to the business. This department was added July 1st, the first account having not yet been opened.

Serve Plate Supper.

On Wednesday evening of last week the teachers of the Presbyterian church served a plate supper on the beautiful lawn of Dr. G. H. Gilmore. The supper was all that one could ask for. Late in the evening Mrs. Gilmore moved her piano out on the porch and a great many musical numbers were rendered, principally by the children. Miss Anna Keenan of Omaha, Olga Minford and Ralph Kennedy favored the crowd with a great many numbers. Master Rudolph Keenan made quite a hit with his one-string fiddle of his own make. Madeline Dooly sang, which was much appreciated. This pleasant event will be remembered as one of the most pleasant entertainments given in Murray for a long time.

Funeral of F. M. Young.

The funeral of the late F. M. Young was held in Murray Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, from the Presbyterian church. Rev. Gade of the First Presbyterian church of Plattsmouth conducted the services. Interment was made in the Young cemetery, northeast of Murray. The services were largely attended, many friends and relatives following the remains to the last resting place.

To Those Interested.

The notes and accounts due the late firm of Edmunds & Brown are left at the State Bank of Murray for the convenience of those who may desire to settle. This is done because I will not be in Murray all the time, having business on my farm.
J. W. Edmunds.

I. B. Green arrived from Tabor, Iowa, on the morning train today, where he had been for a time on business.

There is Your Protection!

Daily the Newspapers Report Some Incident Where a Telephone Has Saved Life or Property.

It may be a fire that was reported before it was beyond control, a burglar frightened away or medical aid summoned in the nick of time—but whatever it may have been, the necessity of a telephone has been demonstrated.

A telephone means protection to the home. You cannot afford to be without one.

NOW FOR THE PARTY VICTORY

The Democrats Will Have No Trouble in Winning the Battle in November

Harvey E. Newbranch, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, who has been engaged as corresponding editor of that paper since the first day of the Baltimore convention, winds up his last article from that city as follows:

"The next president of the United States, a democratic house and a democratic senate, together with democratic administrations in most of the states of the union, were elected in Baltimore this afternoon when Woodrow Wilson was chosen to lead the hosts of a united democracy.

"This is the sentiment expressed and confidently believed by the democrats from all sections and of all previous conditions of presidential preference. After the longest and most exciting and determined struggle for the presidency ever witnessed, with one exception, in a national convention, the dove of peace and harmony miraculously appeared above the grimly contending hosts.

"Woodrow Wilson's nomination was brought about in an inspiring outburst of good feeling. Irresistibly it swept everything before it.

"Whatever of harsh and embittered sentiment may have been involved through the long struggle was not inherited by the militant executive of New Jersey. Neither he nor any of his spokesmen or representatives had involved themselves in the war of personalities nor had they in any wise encouraged it. By universal consent they had fought as clear and fair a fight as they had fought a hard and successful one.

"By the splendid and incomparable management of their forces they had won the admiring respect of the convention, and by their moderation and wise discretion in every critical moment they had earned its esteem and confidence. They had shown that they were fighting no factional battles, that they were inspired by no proscription spirit and that their dominant wish and purpose will be to advance the standard of the whole democratic party and insure its certain victory. That was why, though there was not whit of an abatement of Governor Wilson's militant ideals, though no compromising deals were offered or considered by his managers, the entire convention came at last gladly to enroll itself under his banner."
