The Right Kind of Creed.

Will Robinson, editor of the Roswell (N. M.) Register-Tribune, prints his creed at the head of the editorial column of his paper as follows: "I believe in the stuff I am handing out, in the firm I am working for, and in my ability to get results. I believe that honest stuff can be passed out to honest men by honest methods. I believe in working, not weeping; in boosting, not knocking; and in the pleasure of my job. I believe that a man gets what he goes after; that one deed done today is worth two deeds tomorrow, and that no man is down and out unless he has lost faith in himself. I believe in today and the work I hope to do, and in the sure reward which the future holds. I believe in courtesy, in kindness, in generosity, in good cheer, in friendship and in honest competition. I believe there is something doing, somewhere, for every man ready to do it. I believe I'm ready—right now."

Sunday School Picnic Yesterday.

About 200 enthusiastic young, middle-aged and aged Sunday school scholars and teachers of the Methodist church had a glorious time picnicking yesterday south of the shops a short distance. The picnickers went out to the ground on hay racks, in buggies, in automobiles and other vehicles. They were well supplied with ice cream, lunches and lemons. Base ball amused the boys for a time and a general good social time was enjoyed. Early in the afternoon the drizzle set in and put an end to the festivities, but the day was enjoyed by all who went out.
