Down on the Old Muddy, where the restless waters boil in a troubled way between its low, marshy banks—down where the deep-chested quack of the canvasback and red-head is music to the tired hunter, our genial banker, W. G. Boedeker, Walter Sans, Will Wehrlein, Ted Barrows and Harry Creamer spent a day between last week and this week, boring Dupont by the drums. They left more empty shells on the sandbars of Old King Hill and brought home with them, due to the discharge of the shells, a ringing in their ears, and nothing more. We have been told that they brought down six ducks, while Jeff Brendel, M. G. Churchill and Albert Young, who followed them a few days later, were not in the game at all.

State Medicine.

What is it that induces a few of our legislators at Washington to offer bills providing for a national bureau of health, when the public is already supplied with state and local health boards? The people are not asking for such a bureau and there is no apparent need for duplicating work already conducted at heavy expense. United States Senator Owen discloses the real motive when he says that the American Medical Association wants such a department to be created, and that he has entered such bills at the association's request.

The American Medical Association is the agency that has at various times conducted campaigns with the avowed object of so regulating the practice of medicine that those outside of what is known as the allopathic or "regular" school of healing would be barred from practice. Granting that there is merit in the allopathic method and that it should be easily available for all, is it not equally just that those who may desire the benefits to be derived from the homeopathic, osteopathic, eclectic or Christian Science treatment should have the privilege? We think so, and we believe that all persons should have the full advantage of any scientific research that may hereafter be conducted by these or other investigators.

We maintain the right to the religion of individual choice and there is no more justice in our government establishing state medicine, or a "medical trust," on the basis that what medicine the law prescribes is best for you, than there is in the government fixing a state religion. It is idle to say that the political doctors are using their time and money for any other purpose than to eventually fill a large number of government jobs for their own selfish ends. Let us eliminate politics from the practice of medicine. The surest way to put quackery out of business is to let the people decide from results secured, and no system possessing real merit will suffer under this test.

Theory and Practice.

Like every other science, medicine has its theories as to the cause, diagnosis and treatment of different diseases. Against theory stands practice, showing perfect results. These results give, to the people, full confidence in some remedies. Such a remedy is Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, which helped thousands of families in diseases of the stomach, the intestines and the liver, which in every case purified and strengthened the blood, which cured nervousness and weakness, which dispelled many attacks of rheumatism and neuralgia, which brought prompt relief to many women in their indispositions. Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, in the family practice, always had the best results in sudden weakness, constipation, internal pains, vomiting, headache and backache, jaundice, accumulation of gases. At drug stores. Jos. Triner, 1333-39 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Fairy Play.

The spectacular musicale, "Fairy Play," to be given in Jenkins' hall on Saturday evening, October 26, is the first attempt of this kind ever given in Murray. It is pretty, full of culture and very highly recommended for its excellence. It shows well the wonderful ability of the children of this community, and the talent of the young ladies that will take the heavier parts.

The thirty-two costumes made by Mrs. Chambers will present a very pleasing appearance. The benefit for which it is given should prompt each and every one to attend. The cast:
