

SHALLENBERGER IN THE SENATE

WAS ELECTED GOVERNOR ON STRONG PROGRESSIVE
PLATFORM.

IN OFFICE ONLY TWO YEARS

But During that Time Signed Bills
Carrying Out Every Pledge
in His Party's Platform.

Governor Shallenberger was elected upon the strongest progressive platform ever offered to the people of Nebraska. It promised to reform the tax laws and pay the floating debt which had always hung over the state treasury. His administration was in office only two years, but that was long enough for him to sign bills carrying out every pledge made in his party's platform, and these promises are all living laws today.

ASHTON C. SHALLENBERGER
Democratic Candidate for United

The Guaranty of Deposits law has a great fund collected and ready to protect depositors, should a bank fail. The fund will grow in strength as the years go on.

The people are going to choose their own United States Senator, because Shallenberger signed the bill that gives them the privilege.

The state was out of debt when Shallenberger went out of office, and the state institutions were carried on at a vastly less expense to the taxpayers than the cost of the same institutions since he went out of office.

No governor in the history of the country ever surpassed the splendid record of great progressive laws secured in a single term than was made by Governor A. C. Shallenberger during the two years the people trusted him.

Shallenberger now asks Nebraska to trust him to fight for her interests for a term in the Senate of the United States.

He made good as Governor. He will make good still more strongly as Senator, as he will have Governor Wilson and a democratic congress to help him.

Contrast the splendid record of things actually accomplished during the two short years of the Shallenberger administration with the ten barren years of Norris' services in Congress, and it is easy to understand why Shallenberger is carrying everything before him in the present campaign. The people of Nebraska want a man who gets results, and they know that Shallenberger understands their needs and knows how to do what he starts out to perform for them.

The farmers and laboring men, and the business men, generally, know that with Shallenberger in the Senate, they will be represented by a man who will look effectively and faithfully after every interest of the state.

The Country Needs Wilson and Wilson Needs Shallenberger in the Senate to help him.

Nebraska needs Shallenberger in the Senate.

Shallenberger's opponent talks about reforms in Nebraska, but voted for Joe Cannon and the Payne-Aldrich bill every time he had the opportunity in Congress.

Shallenberger put more reform laws through during his administration, more laws vital to good government and the interest of the people, than were ever enacted during any other period of the state's history. The Bank Guaranty law; the Corporation Tax law; the Physical Valuation of railroads; Anti-trust Discrimination law; the Daylight Saloon law; Tax laws were reformed; Taxes reduced, and the state gotten out of debt for the first time in its history.

Shallenberger made good as a Governor for two years. Give him six years in the Senate with Wilson as President and he will make good for Nebraska and the nation in pushing the great reform measures for which both Wilson and Shallenberger stand. Shallenberger is a fighter. He knows what the people need and he knows how to fight for it and has been fighting for every progressive democratic reform for twenty years.

SHERMAN DIES AT HIS UTICA HOME

Vice President of U. S. Passes Away.

END NOT UNEXPECTED.

In Comatose State for Several Hours Prior to Death.

LOSING GROUND MANY MONTHS

Examination by Doctors Shows Presence of Uremic Poison.

Utica, N. Y., Oct. 31.—After a long illness Vice President James Schoolcraft Sherman died in his home in this city last night at 9:42 o'clock of uraemic poison, caused by Bright's disease.

He had been sinking since early morning and it was realized that death was a question only of a few hours.

There was a slight relief shortly after 7 o'clock, caused by an apparent improvement in the condition of the kidneys, but it did not prove real or lasting and at best gave only temporary hope.

At 9 o'clock the patient's temperature rose to 106. From that time on his condition rapidly passed from bad to worse until the end. Mr. Sherman was unconscious when the end came and had been in that condition for hours.

All the members of the immediate family were witnesses to the final scene.

Life of Sherman.

The twenty-seventh vice president of the United States and the only one renominated, was christened James Schoolcraft Sherman. But, in nearly a quarter of a century of public life "Jim" Sherman he was to his intimates, and probably half the nation referred to him as "Sunny Jim," a sobriquet earned by a never-failing, all-year-round sunny disposition.

Sherman belonged to the school of republicanism nowadays popularly called regular and he fought his political battles without compromise or flinching. The events he helped to shape are so comparatively recent that history cannot assign him to his proper place until it also records the work of his contemporaries.

To the house of representatives of the Pittieth congress he came in the winter of 1887, just past his thirty-second birthday, with the energy and optimism of youth, and college bred from the halls of Hamilton. He had been elected mayor of Utica two years before. Like many others who came to lead in the national legislature, he brought with him an education in law. He was well born and well bred. His father, Richard W. Sherman, was an editor and public figure in New York state.

Close to the Leaders.

Two sessions of congress found

Sherman defeated and out of office, but not for long. Harry W. Bentley of Booneville, Oneida county, beat him by less than 1,000 votes in the race for the Fifty-second congress. In the interim Sherman went back to Utica, built up his law practice and returned to the Fifty-third congress with a signal victory. He remained in the house without defeat until the Sixtieth congress, when he was nominated and elected vice president on the ticket with Mr. Taft.

His first years in the house brought him into close association with leaders and in such an environment he worked to a high place in the councils and finally was numbered one of the big five in the house.

Cannon, Dazell, Payne, Sherman and Tawney were the great quintet during the comparatively recent years in which congress was Republican. Each of them invariably wore a red carnation for a boutonniere and when Sherman went to preside over the senate and occupy the coveted marble room in the other wing of the capitol he took the custom with him, and always appeared at every session of the upper house with a flower in the buttonhole of his coat.

Statutes Show His Work.

Any review of Sherman's life would not be complete without a reference to his work in the house. Briefly, there is ordered no time when he moved galleries to applause by a debate from the floor or changed any votes by eloquence. But the statutes bear marks of his work in committee and caucus, and the results of his labors on the rules committee, the interstate commerce commission and other branches of the machinery of the house, where the real legislating is done, while speeches prevail on the floor.

In New York politics Sherman was a leading figure. He was always active in state conventions and a figure at all national gatherings of the party.

Sherman went to preside over the senate just about the time when what is known as senatorial dignity was beginning to feel its first break. In the chair Sherman was dignity itself, fair in his rulings, his colleagues said; quiet, firm, sure and seldom reversed on appeal.

But dignity so far as the traditional frock coat and silk hat were concerned generally was absent. He regarded his time presiding over the senate as a day's business, to be attended to as if he were sitting in his bank in Utica or at the directors' table of one of the many enterprises in which he had found a fortune and laid the foundations of another for his sons. He usually appeared in a business suit. On a hot day he came in flannels and on a very hot day a palm-leaf fan displaced the handkerchief and perhaps a glass of lemonade topped off the book of rules.

Fell in With His Ideas.

Other senators, reluctant perhaps to transgress staid custom, fell in with his ideas, and nowadays on a blistering Washington summer day the senate looks like quite a business house.

The illness which proved fatal was little known in Washington until the last few months. Sherman was not present during the closing days of the last session and the senate—without a president pro tem, by the death of Frye, was unable to agree upon a successor—got along by temporary agreements, placing some senator in the chair for two weeks at a time.

Sherman will be genuinely missed in the capitol. It was an occurrence of an ordinary day with congress in session to meet Sherman walking down Pennsylvania avenue, often alone, rosy cheeked and cheerful, returning the salutations of scores who knew him by sight as "Sunny Jim" and greeted him with "Good morning, Mr. President." The passerby who recognized him was greeted as heartily as the senator who met him next.

Vice President Sherman was born in Utica, Oct. 24, 1855. He was married in 1881 to Carrie Babcock of East Orange, N. J. They have three sons Sherrill, Richard U. and Thomas M. all living and in business in Utica. The vice president was an Elk, a trustee of Hamilton college, a member of the Dutch Reformed church, a member of many clubs and a business man of wide interests.

TO NAME SUCCESSOR TO MR. SHERMAN

Hilles Calls National Committee for Meeting in Chicago.

New York, Oct. 31.—Chairman Hilles of the Republican national committee this morning announced that he had called a meeting of the national committee for Nov. 12 in Chicago to select a successor to the late James S. Sherman as the Republican candidate for vice president.

Mr. Hilles made the following statement:

"The national convention which met in Chicago in June delegates to the national committee power to fill vacancies on the national ticket. The death of Mr. Sherman, candidate of the Republican party for vice president at the coming election, makes it incumbent upon the national committee to nominate a candidate in his place. The nomination, however, can not possibly be made prior to the election next Tuesday.

"Such a nomination can properly be made only after due and considerable notice to all the members of the committee. Such notice cannot be given in less than six days. It is therefore manifestly impossible to hold such a meeting prior to the election. Mean time, no difficulty or inconvenience arises to the voters at the election next Tuesday, because the votes to be cast are for electors and not for candidates for either president or vice president and the death of Mr. Sherman therefore does not affect the validity of the election of the electors." "Therefore, there will be no defect in the ballots to be cast for the Republican candidates for presidential electors, even though they appear, as in some states, under the names, 'Taft and Sherman.'"

T. R. GREETED BY IMMENSE THROG

Demonstration of Forty-Two Min- utes as Roosevelt Appears.

COLONEL TALKS IN NEW YORK

Speaks One Hour and Twenty Minutes and is Apparently None the Worse for Exertion—Listened to With Close Attention.

New York, Oct. 31.—Showing no physical evidence of the shock of his attempted assassination in Milwaukee Oct. 14, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt faced for an hour and twenty minutes a Progressive political rally which gave many thousands of his fellow New Yorkers a chance to accord him an uproarious welcome.

For forty-two minutes after his entrance into crowded Madison Square Garden, Colonel Roosevelt stood at the edge of the high-perched speakers platform, unable to make himself heard above the din of cheers, songs and band music. His gestures to the crowd for silence served only to intensify the noises, and when, after twenty minutes of cheering, Colonel Roosevelt made a determined effort to begin his speech, the immense audience was swung off into another period of cheering by the beginning of the chant "We want Teddy," "We want Teddy."

The attention and silence that greeted the address by Colonel Roosevelt was as marked as the demonstration that preceded it. At the first attempt to interrupt with applause, the presidential candidate motioned imperatively with his left hand for silence.

Governor Hiram Johnson, Progressive candidate for vice president, and Oscar S. Straus, candidate for governor of New York, preceded Colonel Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt adhered to the text of his prepared speech, without changing scarcely a word throughout. His voice was full and strong, penetrating to the extreme corners of the amphitheater. His right hand, because of the wound in his right side, was scarcely moved in gesture, although he tapped with it emphatically several times upon the railing. He gestured vigorously with his left arm throughout his speech.

Wins Suit for Two Millions.

Colorado Springs, Oct. 31.—Two million dollars' worth of the capital stock of the Grand Union Mining company of New York and Mexico will be awarded to Dr. J. G. Hollingsworth of Kansas City in his suit against Edward Tufts, whom Hollingsworth claimed he grubstaked several years ago, if the recommendations of Referee O. E. Collins, made to the district court here, are carried out.
