Some Corn Looks Good.

Philip Keil and Alf Nickels, two of the rustling farmers from east of Murray, left a few sample ears of corn at the Journal office a few days ago. These few ears look mighty good, and if they are samples of entire fields, there will surely be some corn here this fall. Of course we know if it is not all like this, but it is a good sample from the fields of both these gentlemen.

The Mirror of Health.

The face can be pronounced as the mirror of health. Seeing a man of a clear, white complexion, with a light pink hue, of bright eyes, red lips and sound teeth, you will say, without hesitating, that he is healthy. If his complexion is yellowish, the face full of eruption, the eyes dull, the lips pale, the teeth bad, you will at once say that he is not well. His trouble is usually to be found in the digestive organs, and we should recommend him to use Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, as the best remedy. Whenever it is necessary to bring the stomach, the liver or the intestines to a better performance of their duty, and to increase the strength of the nerves, Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine will do it. In poor appetite and in sluggishness of the bowels, in disorders of the digestion, this remedy will give you satisfaction. At drug stores, Jos. Triner, 1333-39 So. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.

We are in receipt of a communication from C. W. Pittman of Medford, Oklahoma, in which he encloses $1.50 subscription money and says that all are well and everything looks fine. He also states that the fall wheat almost covers the ground, and that he has his mules and cows on feeding it down and that he is very well satisfied.
