THANKSGIVING DAY WILL SOON BE HERE

There Are a Great Many Things That the People Generally Have Cause to Be Thankful For.

From Saturday's Daily.

Only a few more days and the readers of the Journal, along with the few people who do not read it, will stop to consider that Thanksgiving day has arrived, and to give a thought, perhaps, to what they have to be thankful for. Perhaps some of them will answer, "Very little," but we believe almost everyone will agree with us that a serious thought will reveal a great many reasons for giving thanks.

For one thing, the election is over. Even the defeated candidates are thankful of that, and the innocent bystanders are one and all throwing mental cartwheels through sheer joy at the relief. Perhaps we are not all thankful it's over.

Then again, the hot weather is gone, and with it the heavy summer work. Of course we will all keep busy in the winter, too, but we will be thankful for a change. Crops have been good as a rule and the person who takes this as too much a matter of course to be thankful for that is a mighty ungrateful citizen. Most of us are still alive, some more than others, and a lot of us ought to be considerably thankful for that alone.

Getting away from the things right around us, however, every person who is living now ought to be thankful for his opportunity. The pessimist will tell you that the world is getting worse and will point to the dissention in the churches, the revelations of graft and crime and all the other unsavory things that are coming to light today to prove his argument.

We do not believe all this, and we are thankful that we don't. The world is getting better every day, and we are thankful we are here to see it and believe it and help make it true. The United States, and the whole world, is in a period of transition and revolution and change, but we firmly believe that it is all a change for the better. When graft and crime is brought to light it means to us that this graft and crime is being stamped out and will not be allowed to go on as it has been doing under cover. When we see thinking people dissatisfied with many things in the churches of today, we believe that it does not mean a letting down in the moral and spiritual attitude and standing of these people, but a desire to correct many things which every one of us knows can be found in connection with almost every church organization.

Maybe you have been up against trouble this year and feel that the world has given you little to be thankful for individually. For your individual troubles we are sorry, but try to forget that in taking a bigger, broader view of the world today and we think you will agree that it is a good old world after all, and you are thankful you have been permitted to live in it.

TIE UP AT NEBRASKA CITY TO RECRUIT PROVISIONS

From Friday's Daily.

A few days ago three young men—one from Lincoln and the other two from Plattsmouth—started from the mouth of the Platte for a trip to the mouth of the Mississippi. They constructed a fine boat, fully equipped, and expected to have easy sailing from their starting to their point of landing. They had not left Plattsmouth behind but a few miles before they struck a sandbar and remained there for a few days. They were wet, cold and hungry, but could not reach the main land nor could they get help. They reached here a couple of days ago and one of them is now working in the Duff garage and will remain until he earns enough to get provisions for the others. After they pass Kansas City they expect to have easy sailing.—Nebraska City News.

IMPORTANCE OF THE USE OF THE COMMA

From Friday's Daily.

The comma is a very small thing, yet it cuts an important figure sometimes in the transaction of business. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reports the following incident, which shows the power of the comma:

The absence of a comma in an insurance contract cost a Kansas City man $7,000. Had the comma been placed after the word in the contract, J. Sidney Smith would have received the money. The suit was to collect payment for the loss of grain destroyed on a side track near an elevator. The sentence in the contract which was in issue in the suit read: "Grain in cars on sidetrack within one hundred feet of the elevator."

Smith contended the sentence should read:

"Grain in cars on sidetrack, within one hundred feet of elevator."

The court, however, held that it should read:

"Grain in cars, on sidetrack within one hundred feet of elevator."

Rebekah Social.

From Saturday's Daily.

A large number of ladies assembled at the pleasant home of Mrs. M. Hild yesterday afternoon, at which time the Rebekah lodge held a social meeting. The time was enjoyably whiled away in games, interspersed with social conversation and music, which made the occasion a most delightful one. During the course of the afternoon the hostess served some excellent refreshments, which was likewise thoroughly appreciated. At a late hour the ladies dispersed, very much indebted to Mrs. Hild for her kind hospitality and the splendid entertainment afforded them on this occasion.

Prof. J. W. Gamble III.

From Saturday's Daily.

The many friends here of ex-Superintendent J. W. Gamble will learn with regret of his illness in Omaha and that his condition has become such that it was found necessary to remove him to the Clarkson hospital for treatment. It is to be hoped that it will not be necessary to perform an operation upon him and that he may soon be able to resume his duties.

TELEPHONE BUILDING RECEIVING FINISHING TOUCHES

From Saturday's Daily.

The interior of the new telephone building is receiving the final touches of the painter and presents a very handsome appearance. The room to be used by the electrician of the company has been finished in olive green, while the new room for the switch board has been painted a very soft cream color, making it very light and at the same time a color that will not strain the eyes of the operators. The new rest room that the company has prepared for the employes of the company is done in two shades of blue and this room has been painted with the dull finished paint and it will make a splendid room where the telephone girls can go for a few minutes of nerve-relaxing rest. When the building is entirely completed it will be one of the most convenient, as well as the handsomest, buildings in the city, and the painter, Mr. Frank Gobelman, may well feel very proud of his work, as it is certainly very artistic.

"It is a pleasure to tell you that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best cough medicine I have ever used," writes Mrs. Hugh Campbell, of Lavonia, Ga. "I have used it with all my children and the results have been highly satisfactory." For sale by F. G. Fricke & Co.
