THE KIND OF STREET WORK THAT SHOULD BE DONE

There is one thing that the city should do in their street work, and that is the narrowing of the streets and the installing of the combined concrete curbing and guttering, which will add materially in cutting down the expense of keeping the streets in repair. The streets with their present width are altogether too wide to keep in proper shape, when if a strip eight or ten feet wide was left between the curb line and the sidewalk it would take away that much of the street that would not have to be worked and make the streets present a very handsome appearance. This plan has been adopted in a great many of the towns the size of Plattsmouth and has almost always proven the most successful, as well as the neatest method of arranging the sidewalks and streets. The combined curb and gutter will furnish a means for the surplus water to run on each side of the street and will, if the street is properly graded up in the center, do away with the trouble usually experienced with the washing of large holes in the streets.

WILL WORK FOR NEW ROAD LAW

Important Meeting of Automobileists and Good Roads Boosters in Lincoln.

The Nebraska State Automobile association concluded its annual meeting at Lincoln yesterday with a business session, at which was elected the officers for the ensuing year and plans for uniting with other organizations for the securing of the passage of laws for the improvement and betterment of the roads throughout the state were completed. It was decided by the association that its representatives would participate in the meeting to be held in that city on December 12, at which time all the organizations interested in the good roads movement will send representatives to aid in shaping measures for introduction at the next session of the legislature.

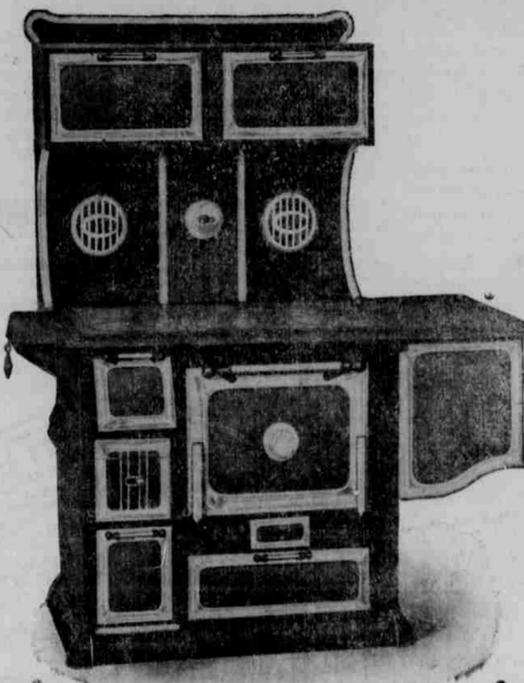

A. G. Batchelder of New York City, a representative of the American Automobile association, who was scheduled for an address Tuesday, arrived in time to make a short talk just previous to the adjournment. Mr. Batchelder devoted his time to an exposition of methods whereby his home state had solved the good roads problem. He declared that two $50,000,000 appropriations have been made in the state for state highway building, these including roads between county seats of all the counties of the state. He declared that the problem of maintenance, which was the first nut to crack after the roads had been built, was worked out by the automobilists who allowed substantial registration fees to be collected upon their cars, these bringing in a total of $1,000,000 a year, or almost $10 per car. He advocated state and county highway commissions which would work in harmony and which would be given aid in the form of taxes. Money spent in this direction, he said, would be amply repaid in time, and would later be a source of gratification to the people of this state.

The association, at their morning session, discussed the proposed state highway commission, which the good roads boosters will urge upon the next session of the legislature. This commission is to consist of the governor, land commissioner and attorney general, and this body shall appoint three deputy highway commissioners to be at the head of the highways of the state. These officials are to serve without compensation and are to aid all road overseers and supervisors in planning and maintaining the roads over the state.

The Plattsmouth good roads boosters should get busy and send representatives to this meeting, as this city is located on one of the great automobile routes of the country, and have the shortest and most beautiful scenic route between Kansas City and the south and Omaha, where the automobile road to Denver starts.
