LAUDABLE ACT OF THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

From Wednesday's Daily. The county commissioners at their session yesterday afternoon did a very laudable act in passing a resolution calling for bids for the grading of a road from this city to Weeping Water and Nehawka, connecting with the O street road leading into the city of Lincoln. The road will also be graded north from Weeping Water to Louisville, giving the people living in that section a good road over which they can travel to Omaha, Lincoln or Plattsmouth. The grading will start at the U. B. church, south of this city and run west into Mynard, going south from there through Murray and thence to Nehawka and Weeping Water. This will give the people of this county a splendid thoroughfare over which to travel.

Most disfiguring skin eruptions, scrofula, pimples, rashes, etc., are due to impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters as a cleaning blood tonic, is well recommended. $1.00 at all stores.

Want Good Roads.

From Tuesday's Daily. There was quite a delegation of Weeping Water citizens in the county seat today interviewing the county commissioners in regard to getting the roads in that portion of the county put in better shape. Among those in the party were J. M. Teegarden, R. D. McNurlin, E. D. Taylor, Troy Davis and Bert Philpot.

ENTERTAINED AT THE F. H. STEINKER HOME

From Wednesday's Daily. Mrs. I. Pearlman and daughter, Mrs. Ida Kendis, of Omaha, were in the city yesterday and were entertained most pleasantly at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Steinker at their pleasant home on South Seventh street. Mrs. Pearlman and her daughter have not been here for some time and were surprised at the changes that had occurred in the old town since their removal several years ago to Omaha. The visit of the ladies was a most unexpected and delightful surprise for Mr. and Mrs. Steinker, they being old friends of the Pearlman family.

THE POOR BOY AND HIS ASPIRATIONS TO CLIMB

It is Customary and Considered Entirely Proper to Laud Such Young Men.

From Wednesday's Daily. Not infrequently one sees in the papers today stories of how some poor boy is working ten or twelve hours each day at hard manual labor and then walking a long distance at night, perhaps, to attend a night school and acquire an education. Or perhaps he is supporting his widowed mother and baby brothers and sisters and sitting up all night studying to be a lawyer or doctor or some other professional man.

It is customary and considered entirely proper to laud the actions of these young men as highly commendable. In them we try to recognize the spirit of Lincoln or other of our national heroes who have forced their way up through adversity through untiring effort to success. We point to the boy who is willing to make this sacrifice for self betterment as a shining example of nobility, to be looked upon as a pattern by Young America in general.

Far be it from us to discourage or underrate a boy who is making a noble fight against adversity and using every effort toward these boys is a mistaken one.

We believe this for two reasons. In the first place, it is the exception, rather than the rule, that a young man can do an honest day's toil and be physically or mentally able to carry on heavy work in addition without doing himself serious and permanent injury. If this is the case it is not right for him to make this sacrifice. Better to do the thing that must be done and trust to a better time or more favorable conditions for the other thing than to utterly destroy health by making the sacrifice not a few of these honorable, ambitious young men are doing.

Then, looking at it from the standpoint of the world, are we not right when we say that a condition of this sort is not something to be applauded from the sidelines, as it were, but something that the world in general ought to be interested in relieving? True, it may be a great discipline for the young man to rise through adversity to success—if he rises. But if you will show us one of these young fellows who has risen through these conditions you think he is so noble to surmount, we will easily show you many times that number who have sunk down to hopelessness under the press of these same tempering circumstances.

When the young men who are really "up against it" through no fault of their own need is not a great round of impersonal applause for their heroism, but a readjustment of conditions which will make it possible to reach success without battling conditions under which something like nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand go down.

Is the worth of that one physical and mental giant who battle through the success enough to overbalance the potential worth of the others who fail to make good, so that it is better to leave the economic and sociological conditions of today as they are, to prove the tempering fire for the one, the unsurmountable barrier for the many others? We seriously doubt it.

Little Boy Breaks Arm.

The fracture was reduced by Dr. Ballard and the little fellow is getting along fine.—Havelock Times. The little boy is a son of Mike Wurga, Jr., formerly of this city, and a grandson of Andrew Matous and wife, and their friends here will regret to learn of the accident.
