CASS COUNTY NAMED IN HONOR OF LEWIS CASS

Life's History of the Illustrious Statesman and Born Patriot of His Country.

Some days ago the Journal called attention to the fact that Judge Ramsey was then engaged in the preparation of a life sketch of Lewis Cass, the distinguished American statesman, in whose honor Cass county, Nebraska, was named. With much care and labor this life sketch has been completed, and it is a biography which will certainly interest every man, woman and especially the younger generation in Cass county. Judge Ramsey has traced the history of this remarkable man and most eminent statesman, back 130 years, to the time of his birth, and down through more than fifty years of public life, wherein Lewis Cass rendered the most valuable services to the United States government.

This sketch should especially interest school teachers, because, as shown in the biography, Lewis Cass began his successful public life as a school teacher. It should and doubtless will very much interest the student of history, as it touches upon the "Barr conspiracy," the war of 1812, and last but not least, the beginning of the great war between the north and south in 1861. This biography also takes the reader to the French court, where Lewis Cass was resident minister, and shows his powerful influence, even with the French officials. The sketch also explains why Nebraska and at least six other states have counties named in honor of Lewis Cass.

This biography of Lewis Cass is one which should be preserved and kept by every citizen of Cass county, Nebraska, because, by reference thereto, in a short time, you know the history of the man after whom Cass county, Nebraska was named.

This week the Journal expects to publish this instructive and most interesting biography of Lewis Cass, as prepared by Judge Ramsey. With the biography there will appear the pictures of Lewis Cass and J. Sterling Morton, which will appear from plates made by a firm in New York, and at no inconsiderable expense to the Journal.

Judge Ramsey is perhaps the oldest pioneer teacher in Cass county, having taught his first term of school forty-eight years ago. He has prepared this biography of Lewis Cass in the belief that it is in the line of education, and that it will be considered so by the people of Cass county. The Journal feels a sense of pride in having the opportunity of publishing this highly interesting and instructive biography and expects to print several hundred extra copies, for which orders may be left at any time.

WHY NOT STAY IN NEBRASKA?

In 1912 Over 4,000 Were Induced to Go to Canada From Iowa and Nebraska.

That 4,463 people were induced to forsake Nebraska and eastern Iowa in 1912 and cast their lot with the Canadian agricultural countries, is the proud boast of the immigration officials of these Canadian countries. Such statements are being published promiscuously in Canadian papers and are being used to induce other Nebraskans to emigrate to Canada.

"The property and money represented by these people is $5,165,485, and 1913 promises to surpass even the records of 1912, which are represented by the figures here given." This is the prognostication of Canadian reports.

That emigration from Nebraska is greater than immigration is the statement of men well versed in Nebraska affairs. That something must be done to check this emigration is the consensus of opinion. But opinion has not yet taken definite form.

However, house roll 423, which provides for the creation of the Nebraska Conservation and Welfare Commission, and provides further for the teaching of "Nebraska to Nebraskans," was drawn for the purpose of making Nebraskans more contented with their lot. The commission is empowered to make or cause to be made surveys of the state, which will establish the fact that Nebraska is even a better agricultural country than those Canadian countries, which are not profiting from the judicious use of publicity.

In the face of the above facts regarding emigration from Nebraska, it is high time that something was done to meet the condition. Nebraskans may wait until it is too late. Now is the time, and house roll 423 is the most immediate solution of the question. Every Nebraskan who has the interest of his state at heart should urge the passage of house roll 423.

PASSING OF MRS. URSULA LINVILLE

Funeral Occurred Today and Interment Made Beside Husband, Near Glenwood, Iowa.

The death of Mrs. Ursula Linville Saturday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Wiles in this city, came as a great shock to the friends, who had grown to love and respect this most worthy lady during the years she had made her home here. Mrs. Linville retained her mental powers to the last, and although her age was close to the century mark, her memory was clear and the events of her long and useful life were fresh in her mind until the last moments of her life. The years of her life lay along the most eventful in the history of the country, and she saw the hardships of pioneer days blossom into the fruits of modern day conditions and she was able to appreciate to the fullest extent the advantages we enjoy today.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the home of Captain Isaac Wiles, and were conducted by Rev. D. L. Dunkleberger of the Christian church, and were largely attended by friends of the family, who gathered to pay their last tribute to this most worthy lady. Rev. Dunkleberger spoke very feelingly from the text taken from the fourth chapter of Thessalonians 14-16, as follows: "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." A choir composed of B. A. McElwain, Dr. O. Sandin, Misses Golda and Florence Dunkleberger, sang several hymns that had been favorites of the departed lady, and which better than words told of her Christian, upright life. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful and silently attested the high regard felt for this lady.

The funeral of this worthy pioneer lady was held today at the old home in Glenwood, Iowa, and the body laid to rest beside that of her husband in the cemetery south of that city. The casket was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Wiles, Thomas Wiles and Miss Ursula Harmer.

Ursula Sublette Day was born in Lincoln county, Kentucky, April 15, 1823. She was married to Henderson Linville in June, 1849, and died in Plattsmouth, Neb., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Isaac Wiles, March 1, 1913. After the death of her husband, which occurred December 27, 1899, she came to Plattsmouth, where she resided until she was called to her final home. Two of her five children preceded her to the Better Land. They were Dawson and Barbara J. The three living are Mrs. Isaac Wiles of this city, Mrs. Minerva Harmer of Weeping Water and Frank Linville of Carson, Iowa.

Grandma Linville was a woman of rare quality and sterling worth and so much in her life was worthy of imitation. At an early age she confessed her faith in Christ, and her last words—"Oh, Lord, come"—proved her faith unbroken. What comfort to feel that our loved ones have only journeyed on before. That they are waiting for us beyond the veil.

Would we strive to gain the Promised Land

Without a single beckoning hand, With no hushed voice we loved of yore,

Calling us to the far-off shore? Where mother calls we long to go. Dear mother, ah, we loved her so. The distant echoes come today from hillsides of the far-away, Where childhood life, from care was free,

And child life sweet as life could be.

All down the passing years come still

Those echoes from the far-off hill; We listen, as they rise and fall, And mother's voice is in them all. Till time for us shall be no more We'll hear those echoes o'er and o'er;

But, oh, how sweet it is to know That sometime we, too, all may go To where our loved and lost ones are.

Where mother waits "beyond the bar."

HUGO B. KOCH AT PARMELE THEATER

Very Small Audience Present to Witness the Great Play, "The City," Saturday Night.

Clyde Fitch, the famous playwright, whose work has delighted millions of the American theater-going public, has produced in "The City" a drama filled with strong forceful object lessons and the audience that saw it presented at the Parmele theater Saturday night were delighted with the manner in which the play was rendered.

The story opens in a small town in New York state, with the village banker and his family discussing their removal to New York City, and his opposition to the leaving of the old home, where he has achieved such a measure of success that makes him the richest man in the town, and it is during this act that he unfolds to his son, George Rand, jr., his story of his various financial dealings. The appearance of an illegitimate son of George Rand, sr., causes him to tell the story of his wrongdoing to his son, and the death of the old man gives the family the chance to remove to "the city," where the son is very successful in business and politics. On the eve of his nomination for governor the bubble of hopes built on the years of deceit and wrongdoing bursts and his ambition is crushed beneath the misfortune and shame of himself and family. The youngest sister of George Rand marries her illegitimate brother, and is shot by her husband on the discovery of the truth. George Rand, jr., rises to the situation, and casting off the fruits of the years of shame, decides to face the world anew with the woman he loves.

Hugo B. Koch, who appeared as George Rand, jr., is an actor far above the average in his presentation of this character, and he offers the solution to the problem of the play "where is the best in you brought out?" The male characters were greatly superior to the women in the play, not only in being given the stronger parts, but in the manner presented, as the only weak parts in the acting was in the manner in which the female characters were presented.

LIGHTING COMPANY WILL MOVE OFFICES TO NORTH SIXTH STREET

The Nebraska Lighting company expect to move this week to the building just north of the telephone building on North Sixth street, where they can have a more convenient place for the handling of the business of the company. The building occupied by the light company at present, it is understood, will be taken by Jesse Wurga and Albert Schuldice, who will conduct a plumbing, wiring and tin shop. Both of these gentlemen are good workmen, and Mr. Schuldice has had a great many years' experience in the tinning business in this city, and they should be able to make their new venture a most successful one.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but of what he has done. That is the only true test. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by F. G. Fricke & Co.

T. J. SOKOL HALL IS SCENE OF FINE TIME

A Magnificent Farewell Gathering and Banquet Tendered Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jiran.

The members of the T. J. Sokol society and the Z. C. B. J. lodge of this city Saturday evening tendered a magnificent farewell to their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jiran and family, at the T. J. Sokol hall, on West Pearl street. There was a large crowd present at this party and universal regret was expressed at the prospect of losing these worthy people, who have made so many friends while residents of this city, where Mrs. Jiran was born and reared to womanhood, and in their removal to North Dakota they take with them only the best wishes for their success and happiness.

A most sumptuous banquet had been spread on tables in the main hall and the tables fairly groined under the weight of the delicious viands and the party gathered around the festal board will long remember the enjoyment of the evening, although it was tinged with the sorrow of losing an old and much beloved friend.

During the course of the banquet several speeches were made by the different guests, and at the close Mr. Emmons Plak, in a few well chosen words, presented Mr. Jiran with a "forget-me-not" in the shape of a handsome gold-mounted fountain pen, in order that in their new home he could drop his old friends a line occasionally to let them know how they progressed in their new home and keep green the friendships made in this city. Mr. Jiran was almost overcome by the demonstration of the high regard in which he and his family was held by their friends and was hardly able to respond to the presentation speech, but finally managed to express how much he appreciated the gift and the spirit that inspired it.

After the banquet the hall was cleared and the party enjoyed dancing until a late hour, to the delightful music furnished by an eight-piece band, which had been prepared for the occasion. This event will be one of the most pleasant recollections of the memory of Mr. Jiran and his charming wife, and while the Journal, in common with the friends here, regret to see them leave our city, we hope that in the future they may again return to make their home here. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Henry Donnat, Mrs. Frank Vitmas and Mrs. Anton Hudeck of Omaha.
