IN MEMORY OF WILLIAM WYNN, MY DEPARTED FRIEND.

(Written for the Journal.)

Can it be true that my friend is dead And I shall see his face no more, That his spirit from this world has fled, To rest where toil and pain are o'er?

My friend, though born in a foreign land, So far beyond the deep blue sea; Yet the kindly touch of his gentle hand Bound him forever a friend to me.

For years we labored in daily toil, In Plattsmouth shops, from morn till night; And he never feared his hands to soil, If only his spirit might keep white.

His cheerful ways and his pleasant voice, Through time well spent together there, Made his friendship still to me more choice, And leaves a memory bright and fair.

But memories sweeter than these by far Are centered in the house of God, Where oft we met at hour of prayer, With those who walk the Heavenly road.

His faith was strong in God's holy word; In it he truly did believe, A "new version" just direct from God, The only change he would receive.

In the Bible school he had his place, And on him they all could depend; And there he taught as he grew in grace, While all could truly call him friend.

Now he has gone, his work is done, But he was faithful to the end; And when at last I shall be gone, In heaven above I'll meet my friend.

—C. W. Greig.

TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF A GOOD MAN

The Journal has been given the privilege of publishing the following beautiful tribute paid to the memory of the late William Wynn by Rev. A. A. Randall of Nebraska City, a former pastor of the Methodist church of this city and an old friend of our departed citizen. Nebraska City, Neb., August 29, 1913.

The Rev. W. L. Austin, Plattsmouth, Neb.:

My Dear Austin—I find it will be impossible for me to go to Plattsmouth tomorrow for the funeral of our sainted Brother Wynn. I cannot express my regret at the news of his death. Surely a great saint of God has laid down his armor to receive his crown. A truer man I never knew. I never have known any who, to the fullest limit of his strength, was so entirely given up to the service of his God and fellow men. Knowing, as he did know so well, the fullness of salvation through the merits of the atoning blood of Christ and experiencing in his own soul the joy, the happiness, the blessing and eternal security that comes to a redeemed soul, he was anxious that all men should taste and see that his God is good.

Brother Wynn was the source of great inspiration and help to me while I had the honor to be his pastor. His gentle, kindly disposition, coupled with his keen sense of justice, made him an excellent counselor. Many are the times I have gone from his presence, after an hour's conversation, feeling that I had been in the presence of one who was in the closest touch with the Heavenly Father, and by my association with him I have been lifted nearer to God. His was a child-like faith, and yet it had in it the strength of a giant. Doubt and distrust had no place in his thought. He was one of God's noblemen, humble and lowly and Christ-like.

The church, with hundreds of hearts, will miss him; miss his prayers, his cheerful greeting, his glad smile, his warm hand-clasp, and above all, the helpfulness of his holy life. But none, aside from those nearest to him, will miss him more than I. He was my friend, my father in Israel; I loved him. May the blessed Heavenly Father comfort and bless these stricken companions, the sons and daughters and all who are afflicted by his going. His life was well lived; may we imitate it, following him as he followed Christ.

Brother Austin will you carry to the family my regrets because I am not able to be at the services with you. With regards I am very truly your brother,

A. Allen Randall.

FALLS CITY BASE BALL CLUB TRIES BOOSTERS SUNDAY

The base ball fans of this city are promised the appearance here Sunday of the Falls City base ball team as an attraction, as the management has secured an agreement from the boys living down the road to stop off here for a wrestle on the local diamond for the gate receipts. The Falls City team is supposed to be "some" team, and will find they have struck some pretty fast company in the Boosters and will be kept busy trying to save themselves from defeat. The addition of several new players in the last few weeks to the line-up of the locals has strengthened them very materially and they can give a good account of themselves against the strongest teams in this part of the state, as was shown in the game Labor day against the A. O. U. W. team of Omaha. The season will soon be drawing to a close and the fans should turn out and give the boys a boost for their excellent work this season on the diamond.
