

RECENT FASHIONS CLEVERLY PRESENTED

Shown in Cinematic Pictures and Dramatic Living Tableaux

MANY INNOVATIONS ANNOUNCED

New York, October 15. New York has been much interested recently in the fall openings of the big shops. Most of the more important stores inject into this occasion more or less of a social element. Elaborate settings are prepared and invitations extended to patrons either by letter or newspaper announcement, to attend at specified hours, when the costumes are displayed upon living models.

A round of the various exhibitions gives one a very good idea of the new modes which will be brought out in the metropolis. Of course, the more extreme styles are most conspicuous in displays of this kind, as they are bound to depend more or less upon the spectacular for their appeal. However, as modifications of these advance ideas will be seen throughout the country, a study of the costumes presented is very interesting.

Two distinct styles seem to be struggling for supremacy—clinging coats suits a strong preference for draped styles and blouses of the Balkan style. In the evening gowns, shown in the pictures in the wonderfully beautiful gardens connected with his French establishment, the crinoline, as he called the hooped and ruffled effects, was very much in evidence. Voluminous coats of velvet, cloth, and regal furs also formed an important part of the impressions upon these films of fashion, which so interested his American audiences. In confirmation of the anticipated acceptance of shorter skirts, practically all of the skirts on his models were shown ankle length or shorter, both in suits and dancing dresses, even when the latter had trains.

There now remains little doubt of our wearing shorter gowns this winter; and while we cannot but regret the passing of the more graceful long skirt, to which we have become accustomed, shorter garments have hygienic and economic advantages which no practical woman will overlook.

But returning to the fashion supplement openings, one of them in particular, by its originality and cleverness of conception, and its artistic consideration of detail, merited special recognition. As a theme, the influence of Persian styles was chosen, and the printed programs contained appropriate parodies upon Omar made to fit the three tableaux, Morning, Noon and Night, in which the toilettes were shown. The setting was a Persian garden, and graceful girls in the robes of the new fashion posed in a quaint kiosque occupying the center stage.

We have already commented upon the richness of the materials used this season, but so emphatic is this feature of the new modes that we cannot but mention it again. Gowns of the type which we show in our second illustration appeared everywhere. This one is of heavy cream-and-black brocade, threaded with gold. The skirt has a clever drapery arrangement at the center-front, which brings it in closely at the feet. The upper part of the waist is of plain cream chiffon, with dull gold fringe finishing the sleeves at the elbow. The lower part of the waist is of the brocade, and a girdle of black velvet tied directly at the front of the figure and ending in heavy black-and-gold tassels, gives an attractive finishing touch. Crowning the toilette, and quite in harmony with it, is a little hat of antique gold lace. It is quite transparent, permitting the coiffure to show through. It has an easily-fitting crown and a tiara-like upstanding frill at the front, which is most becoming.

The tiara and other types of Russian jewelry, will, they tell us, be much worn at formal functions this season. Buckles, girdles, bracelets, and other articles of jewelry in more general use are shown in the intricately-wrought designs set with dark, semi-precious jewels characteristic of this semi-barbaric country.

The top-boot is another extreme novelty which has recently been imported from Russia. This was shown at the fashion openings, not only in black but in brilliant red and green leathers. Whether or not it will be taken up to any appreciable degree, it is impossible to say at this early day. One fact may unhesitatingly be stated, however, and that is that we are to have a revival of fancy street footwear. The vogue of hosiery of a contrasting color worn with pumps, which was noted during the summer, has been transferred to a call for shoes with vari-colored tops. Broche silk in gray, brown, terra-cotta, blue, and Russian green is being used in the uppers of shoes of dull and patent kid made by a prominent bootmaker.

In evening footwear, sandal effects are strong, and slippers with novel trimmings. Our second illustration shows a little gold lace butterfly ornamenting the slipper, and in the first the girl's black suede pump has a very smart finish in the form of a single crystal button. This picture shows the practical and popular sports' coat used as an evening wrap. It seems anomalous that a garment originally intended for outdoor, sporting events should now be worn with frilly evening garb, yet such is the case. Attending the theaters any evening, one notes numbers

GEORGE WASHINGTON WAS A DISTILLE AGRICULTURIST CORDING TO RECORDS

The following is the full text of the last will and testament of General George Washington, first president of the United States. Judge from this when "I, George Washington, of Mount Vernon, a citizen of the United States, and lately president of the same, do make, ordain and declare this instrument, which is written with my own hand and every page thereof subscribed with my name, to be my last will and testament, revoking all others:

Item—To my dearly beloved wife, Martha Washington, I give and bequeath the use, profit and benefit of my whole estate, real and personal, for the term of her natural life.

As I also do my household and kitchen furniture of every sort and kind with the LIQUORS and groceries which may be on hand. I give and bequeath to the said Lawrence Lewin and Eleanor Parke Lewis, his wife, and their heirs, the residue of my Mount Vernon estate—all the land north of the road leading from the ford of Dogue Run to the Gum Spring as described in the device of the other part of the tract to Bushrod Washington until it comes to the stone and three red or Spanish oaks on the knowl—thence with the rectangular line to the back line (between Mr. Mason and me) thence with that line westerly along the new double ditch to Dogue Run, by the tumbling dam of my mill, thence with the said Run to the ford aforementioned to which I add all the land I possess west of said Dogue Run and Dogue Crk. bounded, easterly and southerly thereby, together with the mill, DISTILLERY and all other houses and improvements on the premises, making together about two thousand acres be it more or less."

Mount Vernon, 9 July, 1799. George Washington.

State of Virginia, County of Fairfax, to wit:— I, F. W. Richardson, Clerk of the Circuit Court, of said County, the same being Court of Probate and of Record, and having a seal, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the last Will and Testament of George Washington, deceased, as the same appears of record in the will books of said County in Liber H, o. 1, folio 1, and that the original of said will is now on file in my said office in said County.

IN TESTIMONY of all which I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Court at Fairfax, Virginia, this 7th day of February, A. D. 1912.—Salina (Kas.) Union.

House Party at the Gass Home.

From Saturday's Daily. Miss Olive Gass is entertaining a house party of relatives this week. Mr. and Mrs. McJunkin, of Crestline, Ohio; Mr. C. B. Wintersteen, of Minneapolis, Minn.; and Mrs. E. M. Wintersteen, of Kansas City, Mo. This is the first time they have met together and they are enjoying the visit to the fullest extent and agree that Plattsburgh is a beautiful city, especially at this time of the year.

NEW FIXTURES ARRIVE FOR WESCOTT'S SONS STORE

From Saturday's Daily. The firm of C. E. Wescott's Sons has just received new fixtures for their store that are the finest ever received here, and which are the last word in the line of clothing display cabinets. The cabinets are made of Amberg oak and are ninety-two inches high and thirty-four deep, and the three of them will afford places for the display of 300 hats and 400 suits of clothes, and the beauty of these specially constructed cabinets is that the salesman can show any suit on the racks without having to remove them from the cases, as they are provided with revolving hangers that allow the suits to be brought out in sight of the customer.

The cabinets are provided with doors that can be pushed back into the interior of the cabinet and be entirely out of sight, as well as the way of the salesman and customer. They are absolutely dust-proof and there cannot any dirt reach the clothing hung in them, and with the large plate glass doors can easily be seen by the customers. A large, solid mirrored alcove is placed between the cases, which is lighted by an electric light in the top, and in this alcove it is possible for a person to obtain a complete view and to see how the suit or hat of the customer appears, and this feature is one of the latest to be put on the market.

The new fixtures also have a handsome, well-lighted dressing room attached, which also makes it much more convenient for both the customer and the salesman. They are finished in a beautiful manner and add greatly to the appearance of the handsome store, as well as to the ease of handling the trade, and this makes the Wescott store, in equipment and stock, the equal of any store in the state, as these fixtures are the same as are used in the largest stores of the country.

ing draperies which reveal the silhouette, and the more bouffant effects recently imported from Paris, expressed in wired tunics, ruffles and panniers. Almost all the shops showed both, with a preponderance of draped styles.

A well-known French dress-maker, whose cinematic pictures of his newest models have set the fashion world agog, evidenced in of young girls wearing these smart little coats over lace and chiffon gowns. Sometimes they are in strong colors, such as cerise, hunter's green, and orange, and very frequently also in white "bearcloth," which is a new and attractive member of the chinchilla family. Bearcloth has a very high pile, or nap, but is supple to the final degree. It is warm and hangs in beautiful folds, and promises to be very popular.

Under her white coat, this young girl, whom we saw at the opening of a new play the other evening, is wearing a frock of broidure chiffon in old blue and rose. On her head appears a little black velvet hat of modified mushroom type, with a quaint little wreath of blue-and-rose flowers, and a black velvet bride under her chin. The bag, which she carries, exemplifies an interesting development of the fad for furs.

For every possible purpose the pelts of fur-bearing animals are being employed. Fur buttons, fur buckles, fur ornaments and accessories in every form have been originated.

Another interesting fashion fact is the return to favor of ostrich. We see it on the millinery in the form of high, upstanding trimmings and bands about crown and brim.

Cattle Profits

depend on the number of head you can run to the acre, and cost per acre. We are selling irrigated hay meadows that will pasture two head per acre, also close to Natural Forest Reserves pasture, perpetual paid up water rights—no failure. No winter feeding, no blizzards. Land would raise double the average of Cass county in small gardens. Fine for potatoes, alfalfa, etc. Price, $30 to $35 per acre; good terms. To fifteen buyers we have shown we have sold eleven of them. If interested write me.

SIGNAL HONOR COMES TO HON. MATTHEW GERING OF THIS CITY

From Saturday's Daily. Hon. Matthew Gering of this city has received a signal honor from the hands of ex-President William H. Taft, president of the American Bar association, in being appointed a member of the international law committee of the American Bar association. The full extent of this honor can be appreciated from the fact that the leading lawyers of the United States are members of the association, and the position on this committee is one that is sought by some of the most eminent attorneys at the bar in the United States, and the committee will have great force in its sphere of action. Mr. Gering has won much fame and prominence through his long practice of law and is undoubtedly one of the leading attorneys of the west, and the recognition that has come to him and the state through his selection on the committee will be greatly pleasing to the members of the Nebraska bar. Mr. Gering was in attendance at the meeting of the bar association, held in September at Montreal, Canada, and had the pleasure while there to meet some of the leading members of the legal profession in the United States and Canada, as well as the lord chancellor of England, Lord Haldane, who came to America especially to address the gathering of the attorneys.

Here From Scribner.

From Saturday's Daily. Claus Ploehn and wife and daughter, Miss Anna, arrived Friday evening from their home near Scribner, Neb., and are visiting near Cedar Creek at the home of Mrs. Ploehn's sister, Mrs. F. J. Hennings and family. This morning in company with Mr. Hennings they drove to this city to spend a few hours visiting with their old friends.

VISITORS AT THE HOME OF COUNTY ASSESSOR BRYAN

From Saturday's Daily. This morning Mr. and Mrs. Ed Avis of Custer county, Nebraska, arrived in this city for a short visit at the home of County Assessor W. R. Bryan and family. Mr. Avis, when a lad, made his home with the Bryan family at their farm near Ashland, and still retains the warmest feelings for the worthy assessor and his charming wife for the care and attention bestowed upon him when a mere lad in their home. Mr. and Mrs. Avis have been visiting at Ashland with friends and came on to this city this morning to visit their old friends.

Ed. Egenberger Around Again.

From Saturday's Daily. Edward Egenberger, who for some weeks past has been confined to his home suffering from an attack of rheumatism, has so far improved that he was able to be down town yesterday for a short time to visit with his friends. It was very pleasing to the many friends of this worthy gentleman, to see his smiling face among them again and to know that he was feeling so much improved in health.
