People who have lived here all of their lives barely realize the magnitude of the orchard business as handled by E. M. Pollard. Despite the fact that the crop was cut almost a third they will ship over $30,000 worth during the season. They are shipping upwards of two carloads of apples every day, and this will be kept up for weeks yet.

John Opp and Mrs. Katie Curtis surprised their many friends by going to Lincoln on the early train Saturday and getting married by the county judge of Lancaster county. They were accompanied by Will Black and Miss Lulu Opp, who assisted them through the ordeal. Monday night about a dozen young people went out to charivari them and were invited in and served with cake and other refreshments. They will make their home on the farm east of town. The News joins their friends in wishing them a long and prosperous life together.

Will G. Richmond, a resident of Inglewood, Cal., will answer any inquiries about Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. He says further "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has greatly benefited me for bronchial trouble and cough, after I used other remedies that failed. It is more like a food than a medicine." Do not accept a substitute. For sale by all druggists.

EASTERN STAR HOLDS INTERESTING SESSION LAST NIGHT

The Ladies of Home Chapter Order of the Eastern Star, held a most interesting meeting at their lodge rooms in the Masonic temple last evening that was attended by a large number of the members of the order. The lodge received into its membership, Mrs. A. R. Lang, who in a short time will depart for Ancon, Panama. The work of conducting the candidates through the mysteries of the order was conducted with the usual solemnity and beauty of the Eastern Star ritual. Following the initiation and meeting of the lodge, the members were invited into the banquet hall, where a most sumptuous banquet had been arranged by the ladies of the lodge and the feast of good things to eat and interesting talks by the different members was one of the most pleasant that this splendid order has held. The banquet was presided over by Worthy Patron J. C. Peterson.

A New Rain Gauge.

Jack M. Patterson, cashier of the Bank of Union, has installed in the bank a late invention in the way of a rain gauge, an apparatus for registering the rainfall to the fraction of an inch. This is a very neat and convenient gauge and is so arranged that when there is any rain it will show the amount in a glass tube on the bank counter. The apparatus is attracting much attention, and it is very interesting to watch during a rain. Step into the bank and see this gauge, and when there is a rain consult it for the exact amount.—Union Ledger.

COMMERCIAL CLUB ENJOYS FINE MEETING

feature of the day, as it did not carry out the true idea that there would be bargains offered by the merchants in altogether different lines of goods.

Mr. Thierolf called the attention of the club to the inconvenience that was experienced in getting freight into this city from Chicago, as in the past they had been able to get two cars of freight from that place a week and now it was carried through to Lincoln and then sent back here, causing several days' delay. This matter was referred to the transportation committee to take up with the railroads.

The question of the electric light service furnished in this city by the Nebraska Lighting company was the subject of much discussion among the different members. Mr. Parmele had been informed, he stated, by members of the light company that their line from Red Oak would take care of the service here until a new plant could be put up in this city, and then the plant here would take care of the service into Louisville, as well as in this city, and that the present plant here could not carry the amount of current used at present in this city.

Mr. Thierolf stated that the light service was certainly about as poor as it could possibly be, and that while their store was well equipped with lights, on Saturday nights when they remained open until late it was almost impossible to see with the electric lights, as the picture shows on the same circuit, as soon as they were started up, caused the electric lights to die down, making it necessary to light the gas in order to see how to wait on the customers.

Councilman Hallstrom, chairman of the light committee of the council, was present at the meeting of the club and he expressed his dissatisfaction at the street lights, but had done his utmost to have them kept in good shape, but was unable to get the police to keep a check on the lights, which were out, but he thought the fault was in the company trying to run the plant as cheaply as possible, as they did not exercise proper care in having the lights turned off in daylight, but allowed some of them to burn during the daytime, with the result that the mantles were burned out and at nights the lights were no good.

In many towns of the state, Mr. Parmele stated, the citizens had installed porch lights at their residences and the city had paid for the current used in these at night, and they had furnished excellent light along the residence streets.

Mr. Halt had visited the different property owners on the south side of Main street in the block between Fourth and Fifth streets, and they had all agreed to join in the purchasing of three electricity for use in that block if the city would furnish the electric current to light them. Mr. Barclay, he also stated, had agreed to see the merchants on the north side of the street on a similar proposition and try and put this block in first-class shape in the matter of lights. This is the manner in which most of the smaller cities of the state have secured their excellent lights, and it is to be hoped that the proposition is taken up here and put through.

That the city would be willing to furnish the payment for the current if this arrangement was perfected, there did not seem much doubt to Councilman Lushinsky, and he personally favored the proposition. He thought a committee should be appointed to canvass the different business men of the city and if possible secure a uniform size and number of lights to a block and submit the matter to the city council at an early date.

Councilman Hallstrom was very much opposed to the proposition to furnish the current to the business section of the city unless the merchants put up for it, but thought that lights should be erected on high poles on the hills around town.

Mr. Lushinsky took a very just view of the matter as to the lighting of the main street of the town, as he expressed the undisputed fact that the lighting of the street properly was of lasting benefit to all who resided in the city, and that it was a matter in which those who resided out in the residence part of town were as deeply interested as those in business on Main street, and did not feel that the business interests of the city should be compelled to foot the entire cost of buying and maintaining the lights.

That the city could operate the lights at almost the same cost as at present was pointed out by Mr. Parmele, as at present the old, useless gas lights cost about $28 each to maintain for the year and the electric current used in the proposed lights would not cost much more and make the lights much better.

Frank Rauen of this city received a message this morning announcing that his brother, John Rauen, had died at his home at Norwood, Ohio, a suburb of Cincinnati, yesterday afternoon. The deceased was a former Plattsmouth man, having been born and reared here, where his parents, Peter Rauen and wife, resided for a number of years. Mr. Rauen was reared to manhood in this city and about twenty-five years ago removed from this city to the east. For the past few years he has been employed as an engineer on the Norfolk & Western railroad, and it was while acting in that capacity that he received the injuries that ultimately caused his death. He fell from his engine several weeks ago and in the fall ruptured a blood vessel in the abdomen, being later operated on in one of the Cincinnati hospitals, but his condition gradually grew worse until he succumbed to his injuries. He was about 46 years of age and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss and several brothers and sisters, among them Frank Rauen of this city, who expects to leave this evening on No. 2 to attend the funeral.

Mr. Richey made the motion, which was adopted unanimously, that a committee of three be appointed to wait on the Nebraska Lighting company to find out their intentions in regard to what they were going to do here in regard to furnishing better service.

On motion of Mr. Halt a committee of three will be appointed to canvass the business houses of the city and ascertain just what kind of lights could be secured to light the streets, and to have them uniform in size and style.

The matter of maintaining the band during the winter months was discussed by the different members present and they all agreed that the club should aid the boys in keeping up their rehearsals during the winter, and Director Schulhof, of the Burlington band, who was present, was asked by the club members to express his views on the matter. He stated that the most valuable work of the whole year could be derived at the band practice and that the band would be greatly improved by the training and practice of the winter. He was willing, he stated, to instruct the band at one concert a week during the winter months at $15 a month. The matter was settled by a motion of Mr. Wurl that the Commercial club would raise the necessary amount to pay the instructor and allow the band the use of the club rooms for practice during the winter.
