SHIRT-TAIL PARADE BY THE HIGH HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Last evening a number of the students of the High school, attired in night shirts and white masks, started out a few minutes after 8 o'clock to indulge in a small-sized night-shirt parade, going up and down Main street and into the different business houses, where they passed through, giving their yells, and then took up their visits to the adjoining stores until a complete round of the business houses were made. The boys behaved themselves very well and did not cause any damage. The only place where any trouble occurred was at the Grand theater, where they boys attempted to force their entrance, and Manager Shlaes objected, telling the boys that the theater was crowded to the doors and they could not get in. The "night-shirters" attempted to push their way in anyway, and the manager was forced to push them back, which caused some of the paraders to show a spirit of resistance, but they finally departed on their way without any further warlike demonstrations. Mr. Shlaes stated to the reporter for the Journal that he had no objection to the boys parading through his theaters if they had not been so crowded, but feared that someone might get excited and start a panic, in which someone would have been injured, and he had no desire to be responsible for any accident of this kind. There is no one who objects to the boys having their fun, and in all the places they were not molested and did not do anything out of the way.

Sale Not Very Satisfactory.

The sale of the stock of thoroughbred Poland-China swine belonging to the estate of the late August Gorder, yesterday at the home in the south part of the city, attracted quite a number of buyers, although the animals did not bring as good a price as they should. There were some forty-nine sold, which will average about $30 apiece. One thoroughbred boar was sold to an Iowa breeder for $135, being the highest-priced animal sold.

GOVERNOR MOREHEAD'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION JUST OUT

In keeping with the custom of returning thanks for the many blessings that have been visited upon the people of Nebraska during the year, Governor John H. Morehead has issued the following proclamation, setting aside Thursday, November 27, as a day of thanksgiving, and asking that the people of this commonwealth assemble and return thanks for the favors bestowed upon them:

"Beginning in colonial days and continuing without interruption, we have set aside one day in each year as a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God for His manifold blessings to us as a nation.

"The president of the United States has designated Thursday, November 27, as Thanksgiving day, and in accordance with the established custom and because it is fitting and proper that a day be set aside for this purpose, I, John H. Morehead, governor of the state of Nebraska, do hereby designate Thursday, November 27, 1913, as a day of thanksgiving and praise by the people of the state of Nebraska.

"In these things that make for civic righteousness and permanent good our state has gone forward and our people are contented and happy. Let us then return thanks to an all wise and beneficient Creator for these blessings which we enjoy, and, not forgetting the needy and afflicted, make such contribution as is commensurate with our ability to alleviate their suffering and make light their load."

CASS COUNTY JAIL AS REPORTED TO THE STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES

John W. Shanan of Lincoln, secretary of the state board of charities, who a few days ago visited this city to inspect the jail and other county buildings, has submitted his report to the governor, including this county in the list of those which he visited. He found the Douglas county jail the best that he visited, and those in the smaller counties in very poor shape. His report on the Cass county situation is as follows:

"The county jail at Plattsmouth, in Cass county, is a very old building. It is a two-story brick, about 25x48 feet, and a deputy sheriff lives in the second story. The jail is on the first floor and is equipped with two cages having two cells in each cage, one for male and the other for female prisoners. The building is kept clean and the prisoners are as well taken care of as is possible. I am glad to report that the commissioners contemplate building a new up-to-date jail in the near future.

"The county poor farm of 120 acres in Cass county is well cared for by J. H. Tams, the superintendent. The main building was burned down during the summer and a temporary building was erected to care for the inmates until a new building could be erected and workmen are now busy putting up a new up-to-date two-story and basement brick building. There are fourteen inmates at this farm, all old people."

LITTLE LEONARD BORN MEETS WITH A VERY SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Leonard, the little 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Born, residing a few miles southwest of this city, met with an accident yesterday afternoon that it was feared for a time might result in the loss of the sight of one of his eyes. The little boy was playing around with his schoolmates at the school house, near the Born home, and in running around he fell into a pile of brushwood, with the result that a branch penetrated through the lower eyelid and just escaped running into the eyeball, which would have caused the loss of the eyesight. The little lad was taken to Omaha at once by the frightened parents and an eye expert called to look after the boy, but he found that the accident would not interfere with his eyesight unless other complications set in. The fact that Leonard escaped in the accident without the loss of his eye will be the cause for much pleasure to the friends of the Born family throughout this section of the county.

THE DEATH OF A MOST WORTHY LADY

Remains Taken to Her Old Home in Virginia for Final Resting Place.

Mary Emily Hays was born October 6, 1837, in Smyth county, Virginia, and died Monday, November 3, 1913, at the home of Lee Farris, near Union, Cass county, Nebraska.

The death of this good old lady occurred after only about two weeks of serious illness, although her health had been failing gradually for the past two years, due principally to her advanced age. During the past few years she had made her home with her two daughters, Mrs. C. F. Harris and Mrs. E. L. Daniel, near this village. While visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Faris a mile north of here she became seriously ill, and from that time she lost strength rapidly until the end came on Monday. Brief services were held at the Faris home Tuesday morning, conducted by Rev. W. A. Taylor, after which the remains were brought to this place for shipment back to her old home at Chilhowie, Va., where funeral services will be held. The remains were accompanied from here by her daughters Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Daniel. The pall bearers here were Winfield Swan, James Niday, W. F. McCarroll, J. C. Hansell, J. D. Bramblet and Stephen Copenhaver.

The writer had not the pleasure of the acquaintance of the deceased, but from the words of those who knew her best none can doubt her being a most estimable lady, one for whom all her companions had the highest esteem. Her maiden name was Mary Emily Faris, and her life was spent in her native state until a few years ago. She was married near the place of her birth, her husband being John W. Hays, whose death occurred February 21, 1893. They were the parents of three sons and two daughters, the sons being deceased, and the two daughters are Mrs. C. F. Harris and Mrs. E. L. Daniel, both of whom reside near this village. The deceased was a good Christian lady, having been a member of the Baptist church the past fifty-five years, and her influence was always for the happiness and upbuilding of the communities in which she lived. The death of such a person is a loss not only to the immediate family, but to the society in which her efforts were for the good of all.—Union Ledger.

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN THE UNION RESTAURANT AFFAIR

Another chapter has been added to the complications that has befell the Union restaurant at Union, in this county. The owner of the restaurant, B. H. Dahlan, left that place for parts unknown several weeks ago, leaving several creditors holding the sack. The stock of goods was attached by Sargent & Rice of Nebraska City, but was afterwards replevied by Walter Green, the endorser of the note of Dahlan at the Union bank, and settlement was secured with the wholesale house. Yesterday the stock of goods was again attached by L. R. Upton, and today a replevin was secured by Frank Boggs, who purchased the restaurant from Green, who had secured a transfer from Dahlan.

VERY NARROW ESCAPE FOR NIGHT YARDMASTER B. J. REYNOLDS

Last evening about 7:15, as B. J. Reynolds, the night yardmaster in the Burlington switch yards, was engaged in his duties, he met with an accident that might have terminated fatally. He was assisting in the work of switching some cars and was crossing the track in front of the approaching switch engine to set a switch, and made a miscalculation of the speed at which the engine was approaching or its distance from him and it was upon him before he realized its nearness. Mr. Reynolds jumped from the track just as the engine came up and was struck a glacing blow on the left side and fell, fortunately on the outside of the track, and suffered only a dislocated left shoulder as a result of the encounter with the engine. He was at once taken to his home and medical attendance summoned to set the injured member, and he was made as comfortable as possible, although he suffered a great deal of pain from the injury, but he can feel very thankful indeed that he was not thrown under the engine to be ground to pieces or have an arm or leg taken off. One of the things that was greatly in favor of Mr. Reynolds escaping was the fact that the engine was only running at a rate of about six miles an hour. The accident occurred in the north part of the yards, just above the switch shanty.

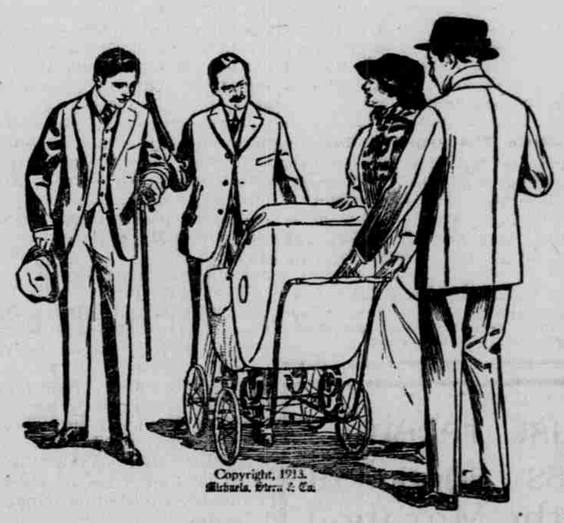
ANOTHER FINE SUSPENDED AND FELLOW INVITED TO LEAVE THE CITY

Yesterday afternoon, with a voice choked with emotion, Charles Callahan, a man who has been employed by the Nebraska Lighting company on the work of extending their lines from this city, acknowledged the fact before Judge Archer that he had been found by the police Tuesday evening in a state of beastly intoxication, and he asked that the court be merciful in meeting out justice, and in view of his plea the judge assessed a fine of $2 and trimmings, but on the promise of Charles to go and leave this little city the representative of the law suspended the sentence in order that the prisoner could put many miles between himself and this city, and he lost no time in complying with the request of the judge, and at last reports was still headed for the land of the setting sun and going at a very lively gait.



IF you think about it a minute, you'll readily see that paying $10 or $12 for a suit of clothes may really be extravagant, even wasteful, as compared with paying $18, $20 or $25.

The $10 or $12 suit may not be worth the price in quality and service; and the $20 suit may be worth more than the price. There's another phase of it, however, quite as important—the $10 suit may be worth $10 in actual quality, but buying it may even then be an extravagance; for many men ought to wear better clothes than they do. Not because the clothes are not worth what they paid for them, but because they're not worth enough.

We want to see you in our good clothes from $18 to $25, for your economy; we can sell you lower priced clothes if you say so; worth all we ask. They're not cheaper; just lower priced. But when we advise you to buy our clothes from $18 to $25, we are really giving you our best judgement as to what's best for you.

Some fellows always have the new things first; better get in at once if you want to be among the first to wear the "BRETTON"—the new white satin stripe madras collar. Made high in front with long points.
