You Receive the Greatest Value from the Telephone

There is no commercial service or home necessity where so great value is given as in Telephone service.

A telephone costs a few cents a day. The service it renders could not be duplicated for many dollars, and in some cases, hundreds of dollars. The daily cost of this valuable service is measured in cents and is easily within the reach of everyone.

A telephone installed at once will produce the maximum of results during the coming cold, snowy winter days, when visiting and shopping may be enjoyed without leaving your own fireside.

afternoon for their home at Oak- the players were admirably cast. As Marie Louise Voysin, the erring wife, Miss Janet Allyn gave a most acceptable accounting of herself. She classes high with an emotional actress. Her work here has not been surpassed or a local stage this season, except, possibly by Mrs. Leslie Carter, In the second act, which is tense from beginning to end, she was seen in a thorough test and her work brought repeated and merited encores. In the third act, where she makes her final appeal to her husband, she gave a powerful touch of realism to her part. To add a sense of the completely artistic, the stage setting throughout was well adapted and elaborate, making the play as a whole one of the notable theatrical offerings of the year,"
