WEEPING WATER OLD SOLDIER IN BAD SHAPE

This morning Wesley S. Walker, an old soldier, residing at Weeping Water, was in the city consulting the county judge in regard to securing admission to one of the Soldiers' Homes. Mr. Walker is well advanced in years and possesses a small residence property in Weeping Water and has a pension of $30 a month from the government, but finds it impossible to get along very well, as he is not in the best of health and needs the care of someone.

DELIGHTFUL TIME AT THE PETER MUMM HOME

A very pleasant and delightful time was had at the Peter Mumm home on Vine street Thursday afternoon and evening, when a large number of the friends of Mrs. Mumm and family gathered to spend a few hours most pleasantly. A supper, the sight of which would break a Pankhurst "hunger strike," was served to the company at an appropriate hour, which was done ample justice to by the company.

IN PLATTSMOUTH FORTY YEARS AGO

Items of Interest to Our Readers Gleaned from the Newspaper Files of Many Years Ago.

Am. Latzby goes it "alone" after this.

Hugh Orr, old settler, Cheyenne man now, is visiting us for a short time.

J. H. Painter, the original Granger of Nebraska, now resides in Lincoln.—Journal.

Vancil, once a newspaper man at Brownsville, has gone out to Bloomington to live, and proposes to turn merchant.

Charles Viall, good boy from Otoe county and agent for the Grover & Baker sewing machine, was in town Friday. So wags the world.

Messrs. Samuel Rector and Harvey B. Lathrop of Weeping Water made the Herald a call and a present of the needful during our absence. We were sorry not to have seen them. Call again.

G. W. Worley of Three Groves called on the Herald yesterday and fixed up the Herald for a good way in advance. Good man, wish we had more of his kind in Cass county.

J. W. McLaughlin, for some time a resident of this place, and a brother-in-law to Mr. John R. Clark, will take the place of cashier at the First National Bank, Plattsouth, vice T. W. Evans, resigned.

Cap. Palmer, the ubiquitous and ever ready insurance man, leaves us this week for an extended trip westward, through Colorado, New Mexico and part of California. He is hunting a new variety of lizards that will lay twice a day and three eggs on Sunday—likewise his health, and some insurance business, and expects to find a gold mine or two, and so on.

Judge Ellison, our well known butcher, proposes to try a new, and we think a very sensible method of transacting his meat business. As everyone knows in that business the amounts purchased at a time are small and widely scattered over the whole community, and often among irresponsible parties.

The Methodist church was brilliantly lighted up and densely packed with people. Two large and handsomely decorated trees were there, growing in a "meeting house." The branches were pulled down with the weight of good things, and any good unsewered man would have been alarmed at that tree, if it were a favorite, and be assured that it would bear no fruit next year, for trees that bear so luxuriantly one year are apt to go barren the next, you know. The festivities were opened by singing from the Sunday school scholars; then prayer by Rev. McElvey, their minister.

Mr. John Donelan of Kansas, brother of our Dr. Donelan, is visiting us for a short time.

Hon. T. M. Marquett just hobbled by our office last week. We hardly got a glimpse of him.

Last big thunderstorm the lightning paid its attentions to Gen. Thayer's mansion. This time Dan Wheeler catches it. These lightning strokes so long before election begin to look suspicious.

As will be seen elsewhere, the firm of S. Bloom & Co., long known in Plattsouth as a clothing house, has dissolved, and Mr. Herold takes the stock of the firm. We are sorry to part with S. Bloom & Co., and would be sorrier still to shake a good-bye to Mr. Newman.

Married—Al his residence in Shove Creek precinct, Cass county, on the 27th day of January, Mr. John H. Stages to Miss Mary S. C. Kreamer, by Dr. J. A. Kenaston of the M. E. church. All present joined heartily in congratulating the happy couple. May their cup of bliss be as full as their friends wished them.

Hon. J. Sterling Morton, president of the state board of agriculture, and one of Nebraska's most prominent public men, was in town last week. The Bee calls him "Jay-seed Morton, but that's a falsehood, for Dan Wheeler and this editor both examined his head, through a powerful double opera glass, and there's bigger things than hay-seed in Morton's head.

Died—In this city on Wednesday, January 21st, at 10:30 a. m., after one week's illness from infantile remittent fever, Frederick Holbrook, son of F. W. D. and Nellie J. Holbrook. Aged 2 years and 5 months. Mr. and Mrs. Holbrook's many friends will join with us in heartfelt regret at the sad bereavement which has befallen them. Three of their children became ill last week with infantile remittent fever, and on Wednesday evening the little boy, Frederick, died. The others will probably recover. If sincere sympathy can assuage in the least the pain and grief which parents must feel in such an affliction it is theirs. Chaplain A. Wright will offer prayer at their house at 2:30 o'clock this (Thursday) afternoon.

The temperance people of this place held a meeting on Friday night last at the Methodist church, and on Tuesday evening at the Baptist church. On Wednesday afternoon the ladies held a private meeting to consult on the best methods of reducing "intemperance." Tomorrow (Friday) evening there will be another meeting at the M. E. church and on Sunday evening a grand union temperance prayer meeting will be held at some place to be announced during morning service from the pulpits, of those entering upon this work.

Crossing the river on the new with teams commenced yesterday for the first time this winter.

Rudolph Heisel takes charge of Schmidt's new flour and grocery depot.

John Gammans, esq., new county treasurer, from this time forth; and W. L. Hells returns to the "barzoo" of his family. More next week.

The U. S. land office will open for business on January 2, 1874. Parties having business with the office will subscribe their interests by writing to or calling on W. E. Sheldon, near the land office.

At the Presbyterian church they had a very fine Christmas tree indeed, and as the nappy faces gathered around to receive the wonderful things that grew on that tree, it was a genuine merry, pure and happy time for a short season. Gift after gift came down by the hands of these older children, Mr. Parmele, Mr. Clark, Mr. Pollock and Mr. Evans, who no doubt thought of the days when they "staked" chestnut trees for their big stators or hooked apples from the topmost branches and passed them down to the "smaller fry" beneath, who could not climb so well, and if they did not think of these days we did for them, the resemblance was so strong. Merry, happy children, Merrier, happier old folks, living their youth over in the enjoyment of the hour.

The Methodist church was brilliantly lighted up and densely packed with people. Two large and handsomely decorated trees were there, growing in a "meeting house." The branches were pulled down with the weight of good things, and any good unsewered man would have been alarmed at that tree, if it were a favorite, and be assured that it would bear no fruit next year, for trees that bear so luxuriantly one year are apt to go barren the next, you know. The festivities were opened by singing from the Sunday school scholars; then prayer by Rev. McElvey, their minister.
