A PLEASING LECTURE BEFORE THE Y. M. B. C.

Address to Young Men One Filled With Many Good Thoughts.

From Wednesday's Daily.

A very pleasing lecture was given at the Young Men's Bible class rooms Monday evening by Mr. C. V. Tourtelotte of Lincoln, who was visiting in the city at the home of his sister, Mrs. William Baird, and who kindly consented to address the young men. Preceding the lecture two very pleasing vocal selections were given by Mrs. A. O. Eganberger, which were greatly enjoyed by the young men and their friends, and displayed the splendid musical talents that are possessed by this charming lady. Mrs. Baird also gave two readings that were much enjoyed and added greatly to the pleasantness of the evening.

The address of Mr. Tourtelotte was on the subject of "The Ideal Man," and he took up and discussed in part the nine qualities which enter into the making of the ideal man. The address was a clear-cut one and the facts that were brought out by the speaker were very useful in pointing the way to greater and better achievements to the young men who compose the bible class, and they appreciated to the utmost the rare opportunity to hear the lecture of Mr. Tourtelotte. At the close of the lecture a short business session of the class was held.

Mrs. M. Archer Returns Home.
From Tuesday's Daily.

Mrs. M. Archer returned yesterday from Chicago, where she was called a few days ago by the illness and death of her sister, who passed away before her arrival there. The brother-in-law of Mrs. Archer, who was quite sick with pneumonia, was slightly improved at the time Mrs. Archer returned home, and the attending physicians held out the hope that he might recover from the attack.

AN OLD TIME PLATTSMOUTH MAN WRITES

Old Plattsmouth Man Writes of Early Days in the Railroad Business.

From Wednesday's Daily.

The Journal has just received from C. W. Green, for many years a resident of this city, a very interesting letter of the old times in this section and it will probably be very interesting to the old friends of Mr. Green, as well as the older residents of the city. The letters is as follows: Editor Journal:

Dear Sir—It has become quite a popular custom nowadays for the people in various ways to celebrate the anniversary of the most noted events in the annals of their lifetime. Least we forget to honor this custom, the writer's request is that the Plattsmouth Journal make a record of the memorable event of two men who sought to cast their lot as pioneers among the uncivilized Indians and whites of the wild and woolly west and that a copy of same be filed among the archives of the Journal, there to remain sacred to the memory of these men until fire or time shall blot out its emity. As a rule there are three noted epochs in the life of all people—birth, marriage and death—the second is sometimes omitted and sometimes repeated on a sliding scale, but the first and third are fixed by an unalterable law, yet we have no knowledge of these most sensational events. Like the comet, we come across the continent and leaving a trail of blessing to the world or nothing to leave our name for good to posterity.

Two brother craftsmen had for years labored side by side in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad shops at Baleski, Ohio. Business had run along smoothly so far as public opinion had knowledge, up until October, 1873, Grant was in the presidential chair, when like a clap of thunder from a clear sky a financial crash took place in the east, paralyzing business almost to a standstill, especially the railroad business. Men were put on half time and hundreds of them were turned off with nothing to do. The far west was not so badly affected and men who had no families scattered throughout the country, mostly westward, for new fields of labor. Reports from those who had gone west were favorable for better times. The Horace Greeley advice, "Go west young man," arrested the attention of everybody who desired a material change for the future welfare of their families. The crisis was on for weal or woe with myself, partner and our families. The first of May, 1878, we bid our families farewell to hunt homes in the west. We bought our tickets at Cincinnati for Cozad, Nebraska, via Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. It was an eventful trip, like going to Europe a hundred years ago. Our tickets told the conductor how to handle us and our baggage, and we forgot our appetites for three days, Sunday morning, May 3d, we were told that we were at Council Bluffs, Iowa. We crossed the Union Pacific bridge into Omaha's cow-shed depot and met an old friend who had just preceded us a few months. Omaha at that time had no Sunday or civic rules to observe the Sabbath as a day of rest. All days were alike to the people of Omaha and Council Bluffs. We wore our stove-pipe hats and craft badges and were told in Omaha that Cozad was a dead town and not to go any further west. We sold our tickets and remained in Omaha for a few days and looked around through the town for work, but found nothing doing; were told that we were a month ahead of the spring work. We pulled out for Lincoln and secured work on the B. & M. My partner pulled out for Pittsburg, Kansas, but not securing work there, returned to Plattsmouth and got work in the car shops, and is and has been a model citizen of Plattsmouth ever since. We, the writer, after the building of a depot at Beatrice, moved to Plattsmouth for two years and then to Omaha for seven years, and back to Plattsmouth for fifteen years as a shop hand in the coach department under Wash Smith as superintendent, and he was a good boss. We have been informed in the last few years reforms have been inaugurated in the shops and work is controlled by better systems than of yore. There were a few factors in the management that deserved what they got. Many of our old shop comrades are out of the service list of life, and we hope to meet them in the bye and bye.

WOODMAN CIRCLE HAVE MOST INTERESTING MEETING LAST NIGHT

From Wednesday's Daily. The Woodman Circle last evening held a most enjoyable and largely attended meeting at their lodge rooms in the A. O. U. W. hall. There were two new candidates initiated into the mysteries of the order at the meeting, the floor work being put on by the fine drill team of the order under the leadership of the captain, Mrs. M. E. Manspeaker. The members of the degree team made arrangements to hold a social dance on the evening of April 14, the Tuesday after Easter, and the occasion promises to be one of much enjoyment and pleasure to the members and their friends. This order has grown to be one of the largest and most progressive in the city and the members are constantly striving to bring it still further to the front and are meeting with great success in their work, as they have a progressive list of officers and a wise-awake deputy, who are on the job all the time to see that the Woodman Circle does not fail in its purpose of being one of the best of the fraternal societies.
