CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Plattsburgh Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of this vicinity who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Plattsburgh kidney sufferers.

Mrs. Zink, Weeping Water, Neb., says: "I suffered from lumbago and kidney trouble and often my back and head ached. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention I got a supply and it wasn't long before they restored me to good health. I endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills some time ago, and at this time I take pleasure in confirming my former endorsement."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Zink had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props, Buffalo, N. Y.

Another "Mere Shack"!

The above engraving, from a photograph taken less than a year ago, represents one of 15 University buildings on the present city campus in Lincoln, which the "removalists" or so-called "concentrationists" ask the people of Nebraska to abandon and convert into junk. Do you believe it is good business to wantonly waste 15 buildings like this?

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA—MUSEUM BUILDING

Only one wing completed. Built of common brick, sandstone trimmings, slate roof, fireproof construction. Erected 1906. Cost, with display cases, electric elevator, and laboratory tables, $50,000. Depreciation in 6 years up to 1912, is about $3,000. Estimated present value, $17,000.

To reproduce this building on the State Farm in the best modern construction, will cost $65,000. Removal will destroy about $5,000 worth of fixtures.

THE TAXPAYERS' DUTY.

All admit that it is the plain duty of the taxpayers of the state to provide an opportunity for every boy and girl to secure a university education. As nearly as possible the university should be equally available to all the energetic and ambitious youth of the state. Luxuries and luxurious surroundings are not essential. Reasonable provisions for athletics, recreation, and amusement should be provided. For all these purposes the taxpayers will bear the burden cheerfully. They will manifest much pride and enthusiasm in developing a great institution of learning.

On the other hand if a policy of unnecessary expenditures is once adopted and the taxpayers' money is spent for needless luxuries—spent more for beauty, art and luxury than for education—then the burden becomes onerous to the taxpayers and they will rebel against it. They may be depended upon to spend millions for education, but nothing for extravagant beauty and luxury. The sons and daughters of the pioneers, who have made Nebraska a great state, are not yet so much better than their parents that they cannot be housed and educated in the fifteen splendid brick buildings on the present university campus.

What is needed is more buildings to give greater capacity and relieve the congestion. Several of the buildings on the campus are of fire-proof construction, and of course all new buildings should be of modern fire-proof construction. The burden the taxpayers will cheerfully bear, but they will never tolerate the proposed abandonment and destruction of the present plant that they have been forty years developing.

STANTIAL BUT NOT GORGEOUS.

Many of the really sincere removalists, who talk about taking a "long look ahead," dream about a "united university" on the farm campus, say fifty years hence, which for sheer beauty of buildings and grounds shall rival oriental descriptions of paradise. They forget that the four years' course always ends with a commencement day, which marks the graduates' entrance into a world of rush and push and haul and pull that is quite different from the lotus-eating life which would inevitably result from four years' sojourn amidst luxurious surroundings.

Even in the more commonplace matter of fact, workaday institutions, many students find their surroundings so much superior in appearance and conveniences, that after graduation they find a return home brings a sense of dissatisfaction, which too often results in a ruined life. Charlotte C. Worley, Alliance, classes of '08 and '06, writing in the Lincoln Daily Star, thus comments on the folly of university gorgeousness:

"The royal outfitting of the new university is bound to exaggerate to great weakness of a college career. I refer to the fact that it is more dining hall and rooming houses shut up on a college campus for four years, enclosed about by the college society, absorbed in college interests, insured to institutional life, to go back to the commonplace things of an everyday world and be satisfied. The four years' leave of absence makes it hard to get the adjustment again. It should be remembered that the college course no longer prepares only for flights of greatness and the years of farm; but quite the contrary prepares largely for commonplace walks in life."

ATTORNEY DOUGLAS OPPOSED.

Oscar Douglas, Attorney at Law, Tecumseh, Neb., June 12, 1914. University Home Campus Extension Committee, Lincoln, Neb. Gentlemen: Yours of the 11th just received. Put me down as being first, last and all the time OPPOSED to university removal. Very truly yours, OSCAR DOUGLAS.

THE AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL.

Friends of the Agricultural school should be unanimous in their opposition to removal. The agricultural school has actual need for every acre of the present farm. Any sort of "concentration" at the state farm is nothing less than stealing from the school of agriculture. Development is what we want; development and growth of the university on its present campus as it will be enlarged, and growth and development of a splendid agricultural school at the state farm.

Every farmer knows the importance of the school of agriculture. Of all of our state institutions the school of agriculture is about the only one that is devoted directly to interests of the farmer. As it develops a better grade of agriculture it benefits every line of business activity in the state. There is no more profitable expenditure that Nebraska can make than in the encouragement of better farming. The school of agriculture was established for this purpose—it is the only expenditure directly for the farmer's benefit, and now the removalists, "concentrationists" propose to rob him of about one-fourth of his farm to convert it into campus, parks, and playgrounds for the university. Will the farmers permit it? Never.—Frank D. Eager, U. of N., '03, Campaign Chairman University Home Campus Extension Committee, in Lincoln Daily Star.

A PHYSICIAN'S VIEW.

Das, Moore & Simeon, York, Nebraska, June 12, '14. U. H. Extension Committee, Lincoln, Neb. Gentlemen: Put me down as opposed to removal for several reasons:

1. Because the plan originally springs from men who will profit by the removal.

2. Because removal would cut off entirely the alumni interest born of associations connected with the old campus, the old buildings, the old town. This alumni association interest is worth more to the university than all the political and other interest because it springs from the hearts and not the pocketbooks and policy parts of men. Active alumni are what western colleges have always needed, and what we are about to come into possession of unless politicians interfere.

3. Because art and horse breeding, and medicine and cow barns after removal will not mix. Both are important, but need separate places for attention. The state farm is a grand, very necessary institution, more useful perhaps than other branches of instruction, but it will need all the land it now has to properly conduct its activities.

4. Because of the useless expense and the waste of buildings and property on the present campus.

Yours very truly, Geo. P. Simeon.

FORTY-ACRE CAMPUS SUFFICIENT.

That forty acres is sufficient for the needs of the campus is shown by the fact that the plans and drawings made by the advocates of removal to the state farm show the proposed campus proper as covering only forty acres, the same size that the present campus will have when extended. The additional ground proposed to be used by the removalists to the farm is for beautiful parks, drive-ways, by-ways and hedger, woods and cow barns, which could be more properly described as "spoiling grounds." If the state provides such facilities it must expect the usual results. A campus of more than forty acres is impracticable on account of the waste of time for students in passing from class in one building to another. The present campus extended to forty acres as proposed will be ample for a university with 12,000 students or four times as many as are an attendance at the present time.—Frank D. Eager, '03, in Lincoln Daily Star.
