GERMAN AMERICANS AGAINST A SELFISH PRESS

Of Which They Have a Right to Feel Grieved With the Manner in Which War News is Received in This Country and Published.

Since it was advised in a German mass meeting in New York to boycott those stores which advertise in papers which by their false war reports and by their antagonistic spirit towards my country, as well as my countrymen, I desire to thank the editor of the Journal that he has not joined the army of the anti-German editors, but has, by a number of short articles, shown that he is not longing for the victory by a semi-barbarian nation, or by a nation which caused our fathers to fight for an independent America. Among the numberless resolutions passed by the different German societies of our great union I heartily endorse the resolutions passed by the Germans of our metropolis:

"Resolved, That we, American citizens of German descent, assembled in mass meeting and representing all elements of our large German population, deplore deeply and sincerely the frightful war which has engulfed Europe and threatens to sacrifice hundreds of thousands of innocent lives, the flower of its youth; to annihilate the glorious achievements of decades of peaceful effort and development, resulting in a tremendous setback to civilization.

"We lament from the depths of our hearts the hostility and race hatred engendered by this terrible conflict in Europe, and apprehend with dismay that such enmity will spread to these United States, the country of our choice, our home. We fear that some seeds therefore have already been sown by the prejudiced attitude of a part of the American press, being the unfavorable comment of the German cause on unreliable war news, secured entirely through English, French or Russian channels.

"As a number of prominent metropolitan dailies remind their readers, war reports must be considered as news coming from the enemies of Germany, which itself is cut off from communication with the outside world.

"We declare that it is not only a great wrong, but against the best interests of our adopted country and harmful to civilization at large that the great German empire and its highly civilized people to whom so many of our people are linked by the strongest ties of blood, should be held up to the American public as the foes of civilization; as barbarians, who wantonly and without reason or need brought this terrible war upon themselves and their neighbors. We have a right to expect from our fellow citizens and from the press of this country, for the independence and preservation of which hundreds of thousands of our compatriots freely shed their blood, that they withhold their judgment until the real facts and underlying reasons may become known, and to abstain from hasty condemnation until the truth that Germany is not fighting a war of aggression, but of self preservation, may be established. We expect from our fellow citizens that they give the German people of Europe and their governments the benefit of the doubt to which they are entitled. We appeal to them to study the question thoroughly, weigh it carefully, and judge fairly, and to bear in mind that historical conjunctures of Russia's pan-slavic policies, of France's cry for revenge for the lost provinces, which were only recovered by Germany as rightful German possessions, and of England's well grounded fear of losing prestige against Germany's commercial and industrial ascendancy. Even the British cabinet was split on the question of who was the real aggressor.

"We call attention to the notorious editorial in the London 'Saturday Review' some years ago, boldly stating that England's prosperity could only be secured by Germany's annihilation; 'If Germany were tomorrow wiped off of the face of the earth, there would not be the day after an Englishman who would not be the richer for it. The growth of the German navy would be weighten the blow England will strike. Its ships will be sunk or taken as English prizes. English guns will seal German ports until indemnities are paid, and when our work is done England may say to France or Russia, go take what compensation you wish, help yourselves to any part of Germany you like, you can have it, Germania esse declendam! 'Down with Germany.'"

"We also recall the wave of anti-German agitation when British jingoists, supported no doubt by Germany's enemies abroad, only three or four years ago, caused plays to be enacted on many English stages picturing an invasion of England by German troops and committing brutalities in English homes, for the pernicious purpose of inciting national and personal hatred. Do not such incidents recall to the American public England's attitude during the civil war and its covert support of the confederacy? Did it not aid the south in every possible way in the destruction of our merchant marine then an active competitor that the United States have never recovered? And was not England's principal object pure commercialism, i. e., the protection of its cotton monopoly? Did not England in those days cause Lincoln, our martyred president, the most harrowing anxiety, and is not England the United States' only traditional enemy now also the ally of Japan? who in 1862 would have recognized the belligerency of the south but for the protest of other nations? Tens of thousands of Germans fought for the union; is there any record of any number of Englishmen enlisting in the union cause?"

OVER ESTIMATED HIS CAPACITY AND FINED FOR OVER-LOADING HIMSELF

From Wednesday's Daily.

This morning C. H. Menfee and Jacob Stevens were haled before Judge Archer at his office in the city hall to answer to the charge of being in a state of intoxication upon the streets of the city, and for this offense they entered a plea of guilty. Menfee is a pencil peddler, who has been here for the past few days plying his trade, and yesterday concluded to celebrate, with the result that the jail was his resting place for the evening following his liquid joy ride. The judge, after hearing the facts in the case and in view of the personality of Menfee, decided that a fine of $2 and costs would about suit him, and suspended sentence for thirty minutes, provided the man would get himself out of the city, which he did without delay, and the last seen of him he was lifting it for the great golden west.

Stevens, who stated he was employed on a railroad gang, had also come here to celebrate, and over estimated his capacity and was given a fine of $2 and costs and was released to return to his duties on the east side of the river with the promise to return after the pay car came and distributed its golden shackles to the Burlington employes and liquidate the amount against him amounting to some $5.

NO MORE MONEY ORDERS ISSUED TO POINTS IN THE AUSTRIAN EMPIRE

The post-office department at Washington has sent out from the office of Third Assistant Postmaster General Dockery a notice to the different postoffices of the country that there can be no more money orders issued to points in the Austrian empire, on account of the war troubles. A similar notice has been sent out by the postoffice department of Austria in regard to the sending of money orders to the United States. There are quite a number of residents of this city who frequently send orders to their relatives in Austria, and they will bear this notice in mind that under the present troubled condition in Europe there can be no more money orders sent there until the war clouds clear away. Postmaster Morgan received the notice yesterday and it will go into force at once.

Among the marriage licenses issued in Omaha yesterday appears the names of two Cass county young people, Mr. Archie Gregory, aged 21, of Weeping Water, and Miss Helen Buchler of Plattsmouth, aged 18. The bride is quite well known among a large circle of friends here and has resided with her parents at their farm home near this city. The groom is a very popular young man residing at Weeping Water.

John Liddy and P. F. Dugger of near Alvo were in the city yesterday for a few hours looking after some matters of interest at the court house.

DEPARTMENT AT WASHINGTON WILL LOOK AFTER AMERICANS IN EUROPE

Advices from Washington state that the state department has become active in looking after the interests of the Americans in the countries in Europe that have become involved in war, and among the parties to be looked after by the American representatives abroad is Miss Agnes Knodlick of Plattsmouth, who is in Prague, Bohemia, where she has been for the past year studying music in that city. While the city where Miss Knodlick is staying has not as yet become drawn into the zone of war activities, it is quite likely to be, and the government will exercise all power to see that she is protected. She is studying the violin there under some of the ablest instructors of Bohemia, and with her wonderful natural talent she is developing into one of the most finished of musicians. The friends here of this charming little lady will anxiously await some word from her as to her situation, but the present condition of the countries at war there makes it almost impossible to expect any word from her for the present. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Knodlick, residing in the northwest part of the city.
