

The modern chicken doctor

treats the flock rather than the individual bird. He knows that most of the troubles are flock troubles, though not apparent in all at the one time. He knows that most sickness of Chicks, Chickens, or Pigeons comes from infected food and drink, or defective housing. His favorite prescription is Germozone.

Germozone is generally used for flock treatment, though individually where necessary. Thousands give it twice a week regularly, a little in the drinking water. It is a great bowel regulator as well as a germ destroyer and, with chickens as with humans, the bowels largely gauge the health.

Germozone is especially desirable for use during changeable fall weather, warding off illness which, if permitted a foothold, may drag along all winter, if not immediately fatal.

For Roup, Canker, Swelled head, Sore throat, Sour crop, Loss of feathers, Chicken pox, Bowel complaint, Cholera, Worms, Gapes, etc., Germozone carries a full guarantee with every package.

Germozone is a valuable remedy for all domestic stock

INTEREST IN THE REVIVAL MEETINGS AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH CONTINUES

The interest in the revival meetings of the Christian church still increases as the meetings go on. Last evening a large crowd were in attendance, and with the most perfect order they listened to the able discourse which was made by the Rev. Meyers on the subject of the six kingdoms, which were illustrated by a diagram. The first was the kingdom of childhood, which must some time terminate, and the child go somewhere else, which was shown was into the Kingdom of Christ, or the kingdom of the world. From both the kingdom of childhood and the kingdom of the world ways led to the Kingdom of Christ.

Another way from the kingdom of the world led a passage to another kingdom, that of darkness or Hades. From this kingdom there was no exit, although it had two entrances.

From the Kingdom of Christ there were two exits, one leading upward to the Kingdom of Heaven, another leading downward to the kingdom of apostates, or the backslider, which also had an exit leading into the kingdom of darkness, which is without hope and from whence no traveler returns.

There was one addition to the church, with the interest increasing.

The subject for this evening will be "Scriptural Repentance," what it is and what it is not.

Excellent music and a large chorus which handles the singing, making it one of the features of the services which can be appreciated by all who attend.

FINAL INSTALLMENT OF "TREY O'HEARTS"

As the final installment of "The Trey o' Hearts" series draws nearer, it becomes more and more apparent that never before in the history of film production has a series, so fraught with dangers for the actors, been attempted. Each chapter brings with it the story of some near-fatal accident, narrowly averted by some strange freak of Fate.

The last, but by no means least of these hair-breadth escapes, fell to the lot of Miss Cleo Madison, in the production of the twelfth installment of the series. That she escaped with her life was little short of a miracle.

For purposes of production, Miss Madison was tied to the back of a half-tamed horse and started across the desert. Scorning the use of a double, the plucky little lead was fastened into the saddle, the horse was struck a blow across the flank and the action started.

Then it was that something went wrong. The horse, realizing, perhaps, that the inert bundle of humanity on his back was unable to control his movements, went temporarily mad. His eyes bulged, nostrils distended, and, with shaking head and outstanding tail, he began running and plunging over the plain, headed straight for a canyon. In his maddened condition it was patent that he would likely rush manfully over the edge of the bluff, in which case both he and his rider would undoubtedly be instantly killed.

When they saw what was happening, several cowboys who were stationed there for just such an emergency, put spurs to their horses and gave chase. Three hundred yards ahead of them plunged the famous horse, Miss Madison's body swaying and beating against the saddle horn with every jump. If Miss Madison's animal had been less intent upon throwing her, the story would have a different end. As it was, however, he was within twenty feet of the edge of a canyon when two of the pursuers came within roping distance.

White-faced, they cast their lariats, and as they saw them settle over the horse's head, drew their own mounts back on their haunches. A few seconds later and it would have been useless. As the horse was dragged back from the bluff, the others rushed up, and with swift hands released Miss Madison from her perilous position.

In a semi-conscious condition she was removed to an auto in the shade of a live oak, where restoratives were administered and she was brought back to consciousness. A hasty examination on the part of the accompanying physician indicated no broken bones, in spite of the bruises.

It was some time before the nerves of Wilfred Lucas, director, would admit of the taking of the remainder of the scenes. The millions of spectators who see Cleo Madison and George Larkin risk their lives each week have no realization of the strain which comes on Mr. Lucas, who has on his shoulders the safety of the entire company and the terrible responsibility which it entails.

MUSIC WILL BE TAUGHT IN THE HIGH SCHOOL, SO SAYS THE SCHOOL BOARD

Some time ago the board of education of the Plattsmouth schools was presented with a petition signed by the student body requesting that music be added to the course of study afforded the pupils of the High school. The request of the young people was deliberated by the board and at their meeting Monday it was decided to allow the teaching of this course in the schools to supplement the regular courses of study now in use there. The young people of the school have been very much pleased with the manner that music was taken up by the children in the grade school, and feel that with the formation of a High school glee club a much greater interest can be created in this line of work in the schools that will be greatly enjoyed by the young people as well as proving very beneficial to them in every way. Mrs. Morgan has been secured as an instructor in the music department and the major part of the work will be carried on outside of the regular school hours and not cut down any of the courses of studies carried by the pupils.

MR. AND MRS. O. P. NEWBRANCH ARRIVE FOR A VISIT WITH DAUGHTER

O. P. Newbranch and wife are in the city for an extended visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. Travis. Mr. and Mrs. Newbranch have been out on the Pacific coast for the past summer, visiting in the hopes of benefiting the health of Mrs. Newbranch, but the climate there does not seem to agree with her, although Mr. Newbranch thinks that the coast was most beneficial to him, and he was able to reduce his weight in a manner that was very gratifying and puts him in great trim for the winter. They have been visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. N. C. Abbott, at Nebraska City, and came up for a stay with their daughter, Mrs. Travis. Their many friends will be much pleased to meet them and to learn they have been spending such an enjoyable time this summer.

FORMER PLATTSMOUTH BOY VISITS IN THE CITY FOR A FEW HOURS

The friends of Wayne Murphy, a former Plattsmouth man, were very much pleased yesterday when this genial young man arrived in the city for a few hours' visit. Wayne has been living in the east for the past few years and has been unable to visit back here at the old home, and while he has changed greatly in appearance he is still the same genial gentleman as when a resident here. He is at present located at Brookfield, Mo., where he is employed as an auditor for the Burlington there, and being in Omaha on business decided to run down to Plattsmouth. He reports that his brother, Clyde, is located in Chicago at present and doing nicely.
