

"A MODERN EVE" AT THE PARMELE THEATRE DEC. 9

A Comic Opera Composed of Forty Artists and Endorsed by Press and Public.

From Tuesday's Daily. Read what the Manhattan (Minn.) Daily Evening News has to say about this great comedy opera company...

"Pretty rich, songs that are sweet, music that is classy, dancing that fascinates our clever acting, witty sayings and catches on present day conditions go to make up that delightful and soul-stirring operetta, 'A Modern Eve'...

Two great marks on 'A Modern Eve' and they are full of action. There is not a dull and tedious moment in the entire performance, and the spectators are not permitted to lapse into a boring don't-care-what-happens-just-let-me-get-out-of-here attitude...

"The management of 'A Modern Eve' makes no claims of carrying a large crop of headlines, but at that the cast combine a lot of exceptionally clear people, who from the very beginning of the play dance and sing their way into the good opinion of the audience...

Remember the date—at the Parmele theatre, Wednesday night, December 9.

PLENTY OF TIME IS ALLOWED TO ADJUST MATTERS

How the New Government Tax Law is Working Out in the Larger Cities.

From Wednesday's Daily. Special advice received by Acting Collector of Internal Revenue E. W. North yesterday afternoon will go far to clear up the clouds of doubt in the minds of many who have special revenue stamps to buy or taxes to pay...

In the matter of those persons who had special taxes to pay and failed through no fault of their own to get their returns into the office of the collector sooner, there will be much comfort in the message Mr. North received from the treasury department...

"Date all special tax returns November 30 until you are able to handle all applications promptly, unless you have information that no effort was made to file same prior to that date..."

The latter part of this message will relieve a considerable anxiety on the part of agents of the railroad companies, who have been handicapped by the shortage of revenue stamps...

Considerable difficulty has also been experienced by dealers in proprietary articles on account of the shortage of stamps prescribed for use in connection with their sale.

Since no stamps are required to be put on telegrams, the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies have no difficulty even if the supply is short.

Mr. Nurb's office force has been laboring night and day since November 1 and it is more than likely now they will be kept on extra hour shifts for another month or six weeks.

The office is open for business from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The public must transact its business during these hours.

Numbers of owners of realty bought in the last two or three years who had neglected to file the deeds 'got under the wire' Monday to avoid the war stamp of half a dollar for each $500 of value conveyed.

Bankers invested in 25-cent protest stamps with a heartfelt wish that the small supply would last a good long time and that stamps on notes would be their chief output.

Insurance men and contractors and others carrying casualty insurance were 'on the job' as to having stamp policies and contracts.

Railroad ticket clerks and agents were having a merry time of it yesterday in explaining the workings of the new tax law to patrons of the several lines.

There is a tax of one cent on all Pullman tickets, but this is paid from the revenue of the Pullman Co. and not by the consumer.

When a steamship ticket is sold for a sailing from New York or some other United States port, the local agent indorses the ticket to the effect that the tax has been paid...

If the traveler is to sail from a Canadian port, or any port outside the United States, the local agent collects the tax from the patron, goes to the local revenue office, purchases a stamp, and affixes it to the ticket here.

Dogs, baby carriages, bicycles and other shipments of the sort, which are not accepted as baggage on a passenger ticket, but which are shipped as excess baggage under one charge, therefore are also to be taxed one cent.

All railroad agents were in a turmoil Tuesday, battling with the details of the new law. The Union Pacific sent out 750 circulars to its agents in the principal towns, explaining their duties.

A MEASURE THE LEGISLATURE WILL GRAPPLE WITH Another Effort Will Be Made This Winter to Repeal Smith Mortgage Tax.

One of the measures which the legislature must grapple with this winter will be the Smith mortgage exemption tax law and amendments thereto. So sure are brokers in mortgages on real estate that efforts to repeal the measure will arise that they are advertising the advisability of investing in tax free mortgages now, says the State Journal.

Probably more objection has been made to the Smith law because of its workings in the matter of taxation than for any other cause. Indeed this is the constant cause of attack. Under it a bank or other corporation which has a right to invest its funds in real estate mortgages can deduct the amount of these investments from the capital stock and pay taxes only on the remainder.

In the practical workings many savings banks and some trust companies pay no taxes at all except on their furniture and fixtures. One of the arguments used against this provision, arguments backed up by supreme court decisions as to the meaning of the law, is that a bank cannot differentiate between its capital stock and the deposits whether it is loaning from its deposits or from its capital and that if a deduction is to be made it should be only in the ratio of the capital to the deposits.

One man who has been interested in the net and its workings in matters of taxation and who defends the practice of deducting mortgages from the capital stock says that banks ought not to escape their just share of taxation and would not do so if assessors did their full duty. He declares that the present law is ample to compel the banks to pay. If the assessor would tax capital stock at its market value in place of at its book value the bank would have to come across with taxes. The book value is made up of the total par value of stock, plus the surplus, and the undivided profits, all divided by the number of shares of stock.
