

DATE CHANGED IN "THE WINNING OF BARBARA WORTH"

Coming to the Parmele Monday Night, May 3, Instead of Friday Night, April 30, as Heretofore Advertised.

Theater-goers who enjoy a good, wholesome drama of the great "outdoors" will welcome the coming of the new Studebaker theater, Chicago, production of "The Winning of Barbara Worth," a dramatization of Mark Swan of the famous novel by Harold Bell Wright, which comes to the Parmele theater Monday night, May 3.

"The Winning of Barbara Worth" stands forth distinctly. In a season which came with an on-rush of sex-plays, a representative managerial firm offers here a drama of grit and manliness, love and fidelity, two big and important things. And into it has been poured a fortune to show that there are among those who control theatrical destinies believers in productions that teach instead of expose; that entertain in stead of shock.

Lincoln Journal: With the legislature out of the way and politics in abeyance for the better part of a year, Nebraska is free to consider its approaching fiftieth birthday anniversary. On March 1, 1817, less than two years hence, Nebraska will end its first half century of statehood.

William Holmes, an eastern engineer, comes. He proves himself that man. His test comes in the defeat of the intrigues of a band of speculators who are exploiting the early reclamation improvements for dividends. A great disaster follows when the Colorado river tears out the flimsy bulwarks erected against it.

CELEBRATE NEBRASKA'S SEMI-CENTINIAL IN 1917

Lincoln Journal: With the legislature out of the way and politics in abeyance for the better part of a year, Nebraska is free to consider its approaching fiftieth birthday anniversary. On March 1, 1817, less than two years hence, Nebraska will end its first half century of statehood.

It is not too soon to be thinking of the form which the recognition of the coming date shall take. The celebration should be as broad as the state, and should be all inclusive in spirit. It should not be a mere flash of a day or a week. It should be the culmination of months of attention to the building of the past and future Nebraska.

LINGERED UNTIL HE GOT MORE AT THE HANDS OF JUDGE ARCHER

On Saturday evening Grey Jackson, who claimed that he expected to be employed on a farm a few miles south of this city, and who was evidently suffering from an overdose of old red-eye, was gathered in by the police and kept in the safety of the city jail until Sunday morning, when he promised to appear in the court of Judge Archer Monday morning, and it was hoped that perhaps he might shake the dust of the city from his feet, but instead of Grey doing this he lingered in the city and thereby his downfall occurred, as instead of sobering up yesterday morning he brushed up his jag and was finally rounded up by the police, who, deaf to his entreaties and promises, thrust him into jail, where he remained until yesterday afternoon, when he was given his deserts in the court of Judge Archer, who placed on him the sentence of $2 and costs, and in failure of his settlement of the same was committed to jail, where he will rest until Thursday to satisfy the feelings of outraged justice.

IF YOU LIVE IN THIS TOWN YOU SHOULD BELIEVE IN IT

From Wednesday's Daily. If you live in this town, you should believe in it. If you do not believe it is a little better in most respects than any of its neighbors, then you ought to move out. Like other places it has advantages that others have not, and should not prevent you from making that fact known whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Learn to believe also that in addition to living in the finest town in the state, that you have the finest country surrounding it. If there are any drawbacks, why mention that? The people and the newspapers of competing towns will not neglect that task.

JAMES INGWERSON ESTABLISHES RIGHT TO SHARE IN ESTATE AS AN HEIR

The case of James Ingwerson vs. Richard H. Ingwerson, et al, which had been occupying the attention of the district court, was concluded yesterday, when the attorneys concluded their arguments and submitted the case to the jury for judgment. The jury was out only a short time and at 2:30 p. m. returned a verdict finding for the plaintiff and awarding him the sum of $50 damages, which was asked for, as well as the establishing of his rights to the estate of Frederick A. Ingwerson, deceased, who passed away at his home near Nehawka, on September 1, 1882, leaving the widow and several children, among them the defendants, as heirs of the estate.

In the suit just closed the issues were contested quite warmly, as the defendants set up the claim that the plaintiff was not entitled to share in the estate by reason of not being a son of the deceased, Frederick Ingwerson, but this view was not taken by the jury in finding for the plaintiff, and awarded him the amount of damages asked for, as well as establishing his heirship in the estate.

The reports of the different societies and guilds showed a most satisfactory condition of the parish and the hard work done by the members certainly made a splendid showing.

CHIEF RAINEY PREVENTS A RIOT BY MAKING A SCATTERMENT OF HOBOS

Yesterday afternoon Chief of Police Rainey was called down to the spring on the way to the Burlington bridge by a small-sized riot that was being indulged in by a number of hobos who were assembled there enjoying a rest and lunch. The disagreement between the parties was ended when they caught sight of the chief, and they all made a break for a freight train that was passing and made a getaway, with the exception of one of the men, who was taken in, but later allowed to go on his way.
